A further sharp distinction exists between the majority of the county which is agricultural, and the north-west which is part of the important industrial complex of South Wales. It was the Industrial Revolution that was to change what was a predominantly agricultural area. The development of ironworks and collieries was accompanied by rapid population growth as workers moved into the county. Today these industries do not have the overriding control over the life of the county they once had. Basic industries like coal and steel, aluminium and man-made fibres remain among the largest employers in Gwent, but the industrial pattern of the county is changing as a large number and variety of industries have been introduced to create a more balanced industrial structure. New firms can benefit from government financial assistance available to all the county and also from the excellent access to the industrial areas of the West Midlands via the new A449, M50 and M5 motorways, and to the south-east via the Severn Bridge and M4 motorway.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
The administrative counties of Anglesey and Caernarfon.
The administrative county of Merioneth except the rural district of Edeyrnion.
In the administrative county of Denbigh:
the urban district of Llanrwst;

In the rural district of Aled, the parish of Llansantffraid Glan Conwy;
In the rural district of Hiraethog, the parishes of Eglwysbach, Llanddoget, Llanrwst Rural and Tir Ifan.

By any standards the area of the county is one of spectacular natural beauty, containing within its bounds some of the most consistently lovely scenery to be found in the whole of Europe, and providing much scope for imaginative planning. The new county contains the whole of the Snowdonia National Park, which stretches from near Conwy in the north to the Dyfi estuary in the south, and covers an area of 804 square miles, or 53·5% of the Gwynedd area. Further areas under protective designation are the Llŷn area of outstanding natural beauty with an area of 60 square miles, and the Anglesey Coast area of outstanding natural beauty, with an area of 83 square miles. Jointly these comprise a further 9·1% of the new county area. The Great Orme, the coast of Llŷn and five sections of the Anglesey coast have been designated as Heritage Coasts and comprise 100 miles of the county's 311 miles of coast. Some 135,000 people in the county, 65% of the total, are Welsh speaking, the highest percentage of any county in Wales.

The new county contains five district council areas—Arfon, Aberconwy, Ynys Môn, Dwyfor and Meirionnydd. Geographically the county falls into five distinct physical areas, which in turn have a noticeable effect on economic structure and settlement patterns. These are as follows:

(a) Ynys Môn—The Isle of Anglesey

The island has a beautiful coastline with many sandy coves much frequented by holidaymakers, and rising in places to form spectacular cliffs.

At present there is only one highway bridging point between the island and the mainland—at Menai Bridge, with the Britannia Bridge further up the Straits providing the rail link. Holyhead, situated on Holy Island in the extreme west, is a deep water port, and an important road and rail terminus. A ferry service to Ireland commences there.

The island is bisected by the A5 trunk road linking Holyhead, Birmingham and London, and a little farther to the south, the London to Holyhead railway line. Traditionally, Anglesey has always been a rich farming area.

Apart from agriculture, the island's economy also shows a considerable reliance upon tourism. There is a major aluminium smelting plant at Holyhead, a nuclear power station at Wylfa and an Oil Terminal off shore at Amlwych, with other, mainly light, industries concentrated in the larger towns, particularly at Holyhead, Amlwch and Llangefni, where there is an industrial estate.

(b) Snowdonia

Snowdonia consists primarily of an extensive mountainous tract, with large areas lying above the 2,000-ft. contour, and rising in Yr Wyddfa (Snowdon) and the Carneddau to over 1,000 metres. Most of Snowdonia has been included in the Snowdonia National Park. Large stretches are covered by heath and heather moor, with extensive sheep farming the main economic activity. Slate quarrying, the area's unique industry, which developed rapidly in the 19th century and resulted in the growth of the area's most notable settlements, is still carried on at Bethesda, Dyffryn Nantlle and Blaenau Ffestiniog.

Three major economic features of the mountain core area may be mentioned—agriculture, forestry and tourism. Agriculture is the largest single land use in the upland areas. Large areas of this region are at present under forests—mainly coniferous species, and these forests have a very considerable impact on the landscape. By far the largest operator is the Forestry Commission, although some areas are under the control of private concerns.

The other major economic factor in the National Park area is tourism, although the tourist industry is of major importance throughout Gwynedd. The National Park is within easy access of the Midlands and North West England, and attracts large numbers of visitors during the summer months, in some cases to the detriment of the environment. Some of the mountain masses are suffering from excessive visitor usage.

(c) The North Coastal Belt

An area which may be taken as extending from Llandudno in the north-east to Caernarfon in the south-west. A comparatively small area, this coastal zone nonetheless has a more diversified economy than any other area in Gwynedd. The northernmost of the coastal settlements, Llandudno, is a 19th-century resort town of spacious layout, and characterized by numerous large hotels. Conwy and Caernarfon both boast medieval castles of outstanding importance and within their town walls both still exhibit a well-preserved medieval street plan.

Bangor is a University town with much employment associated with both the University College and other branches of further education.

The county is much in need of manufacturing industry to diversify an economy which at the moment is too narrowly based, and a good selection of vacant sites, some in local authority ownership, are available to attract prospective industrialists. The whole of the county of Gwynedd is a Government Assisted Area for Expansion and qualifies for financial assistance under the Industry Act 1972. North West Gwynedd is designated a Special Development Area, while the remainder of the county has Development Area status with the exception of Llandudno, which is designated an Intermediate Area.

(d) Dyffryn Conwy

In many respects this area is associated economically with the preceding North Coastal Belt, but is considered separately chiefly on the grounds of its distinct geographical unity and character.

On either side the wooded sides of the valley rise steeply into the hills of Denbighshire to the east, and the mountains of Snowdonia to the west. The sides of the valley hold many small villages, and there are no large settlements, Llanrwst being the market town.

(e) The Llŷn Peninsula

An outstandingly attractive area. It is a strongly agricultural region of small, isolated farms, and scattered villages and hamlets. It has long been a stronghold of the Welsh language and culture.

This is an area which has long suffered from rural depopulation, and apart from farming, forestry and tourism, there is little source of employment to maintain a large population. There are a few small manufacturing industries at the towns of Pwllheli and Porthmadog.

Tourism is an important aspect of the local economy. The area possesses a superb coastline.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county borough of Worcester.

The administrative county of Herefordshire.

The administrative county of Worcestershire, except the boroughs of Halesowen and Stourbridge.

The county of Hereford and Worcester stretches from the outskirts of Birmingham to the Welsh Border. Scenically it ranks among the foremost, including among its attractions the beauties of the Wye Valley, the Malvern Hills, the Black Mountains, the Vale of Evesham, and the Broadway area of the Cotswolds. This is a county of cathedrals, abbeys and priories, whose festival music attracts many. The Wye is one of the finest fishing rivers in the country, and the Severn provides rapidly expanding leisure facilities for boating. At blossom time the Vale of Evesham and the Teme Valley rival the Dutch bulb fields as a vision of delight.

Although the county has strong tourist attractions, it also enjoys vigorous industrial growth. Well served by motorways, new industries are fast developing, particularly at Redditch New Town and at Droitwich where a town expansion scheme is well under way. At Hereford new industrial opportunities are opening out at the former Ministry of Defence Depot at Rotherwas, and sites are expanding at Leominster, Ross-on-Wye, Bromyard, Kington and Ledbury. The administrative county is comprised of nine districts and includes 433 civil parishes of which seven are successor parishes.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county boroughs of Blackburn, Blackpool, Burnley and Preston.

The administrative county of Lancaster, except the areas in Cheshire, Cumbria, Greater Manchester and Merseyside.

In the administrative county of Yorkshire, West Riding—
- the urban districts of Barnoldswick and Earby;
- the rural district of Bowland;
- in the rural district of Skipton, the parishes of Bracewell, Brogden and Salterforth.

The county includes the north-west coastal resorts of Morecambe and Heysham, Fleetwood, Blackpool and Lytham St. Annes, and the historic county town of Lancaster and in the east the Forest of Bowland and Ribble Valley where access areas for public enjoyment have been acquired, as well as the industrial areas around Blackburn, Burnley and Preston. Preston and Fleetwood are also important trading ports. The Central Lancashire New Town is entirely in the county area.

The county adjoins Cumbria to the north, Yorkshire—West and North—to the east, and Merseyside and Greater Manchester to the south.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The County comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1 April, 1974:

- The County Borough of Lincoln.
- The Adminiistrative Counties of Lincoln (Parts of Holland) and Lincoln (Parts of Kesteven).
- The Administrative County of Lincoln (Parts of Lindsey), except the areas transferred to Humberside.

Lincolnshire, the second largest county in England, has surprising contrasts of scenery. The Fens and Lowlands in the south have attractions for ornithologists and wild-fowlers and also rich agricultural land and acres of bulb fields around Spalding. The south-west is well wooded and served by several rivers, the Welland, Glen, Eden and Slea.

Along the east coast there is a vast expanse of sandy shores and dunes with nature reserves at Gibraltar Point and Saltfleetby. These make a wonderful background for the holiday resorts, such as Skegness, Mablethorpe and Sutton. In the north-east the Lincolnshire Wolds rise to over 500 feet, providing spectacular views.

Lincoln, the County town, is a centre of archaeological interest with remains dating from the Roman times and has a magnificent Cathedral, castle and museum.

Throughout the County, there are other towns rich in history and interest, such as Boston—an ancient port, Sleaford, the County town of former Kesteven, Stamford, an architectural gem second to none with Greystone houses and churches, Louth with its famous fifteenth-century church, and Woodhall Spa, an inland resort. In addition, there are many charming villages such as Tealby, Bolingbroke and Fulbeck.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The county comprises the area of the administrative county of Northumberland (except the areas in Tyne and Wear) which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Northumberland, England's most northerly and sixth largest county in area, has six districts; Berwick upon Tweed, Alnwick, Castle Morpeth, Wansbeck, Blyth Valley and Tynedale. Its Parliamentary divisions are Berwick upon Tweed, Morpeth, Blyth and Hexham.

The Northumbria Police Authority is a combined authority for Northumberland and the Metropolitan County of Tyne and Wear.

In association with the district council the county has promoted the New Town of Cramlington (planned population 62,000), the new county's main growth point, and pursues a vigorous programme to rebuild its economy by the introduction and development of new industry. The Northumberland National Park lies wholly within the county's boundary.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county comprises the area of the administrative county of Salop which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Under the Local Government Act, 1972, the boundary of the county remains unchanged, but the county has been divided into six districts, namely, Oswestry, North Shropshire, Shrewsbury and Atcham, Wrekin, South Shropshire and Bridgnorth.

Shropshire is divided diagonally by the River Severn into a hilly area in the south and west, and an undulating plain in the north and east. As a result, the county is famous for its varied geology, and for the variety and beauty of its scenery.

Archaeologically, it is rich in prehistoric settlement sites and iron-age hill-forts; and it includes Viroconium which, after London, was probably the largest city of Roman Britain.

After the Saxon invasion, Shropshire became part of the Marches of Wales, and a double chain of castles was built to defend the border. Monasteries were founded which have left notable remains, particularly at Wenlock, Buildwas and Haughmond. Shrewsbury, the county town, Bridgnorth, Wenlock, Ludlow, Oswestry and Biship's Castle established themselves as royal boroughs, while other places became busy market towns with a prosperity based on agriculture, especially Shropshire sheep and cattle. All our towns have interesting architectural features: Ludlow is outstanding as a place in which castle, church, houses, bridges, and setting are all things of beauty and there is hardly a building which does not merit preservation.

Shropshire in the 18th century became "the cradle of the Industrial Revolution". At Coalbrookdale in 1709, Abraham Darby discovered how to smelt iron with coal and for a hundred years the iron industry of Shropshire was the most prosperous in Britain. Here the world's first ironbridge and iron ship were built. Caughley and Coalport became famous names among collectors of fine china. Now the Ironbridge Gorge Museum Trust is establishing a museum of industrial archaeology at Coalbrookdale and Blists Hill to preserve relics of Shropshire's great industrial past.

In the industrial present, a new town is being created in the same area of the county, and has been named Telford, after the engineer and road builder, who was Shropshire's first county surveyor from 1788-1834.

Charles Darwin, the great naturalist, was born in Shrewsbury in 1809.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county borough of Cardiff.

In the administrative county of Glamorgan:
- the boroughs of Barry and Cowbridge;
- the urban district of Penarth;
- the rural district of Cardiff except the parishes of Llanfedw, Llanilterne, Pentyrch, Rhydygwern, Rudry and Van;
- the rural district of Cowbridge except the parishes of Llanharan, Llanharry, Llanilid and Peterston-super-Montem.

In the administrative county of Monmouthshire, in the rural district of Magor and St. Mellons, the parish of St. Mellons.

South Glamorgan—population of 391,600 situated on the coastal plain of South Wales, includes the City of Cardiff, the seaside towns of Barry and Penarth, the ancient market town of Cowbridge and the Vale of Glamorgan.

Although Cardiff—capital and largest city of Wales—has for 150 years been a major city, for centuries it was smaller than Cowbridge.

The expansion of Cardiff came largely as a result of the building of the Docks to export coal and iron from the Valleys which fan out to the north.

Since the mid 19th century, Cardiff has developed into the major commercial, administrative and financial centre for Wales and it has a wide range of arts, entertainment, cultural and sporting facilities.

There is Cardiff Castle, which for centuries was the heart of the community, also Llandaff Cathedral, the National Museum of Wales and the St. Fagans Folk Museum.

The Arms Park—the National Rugby Stadium—is known throughout the world and other sporting facilities include Ninian Park (Cardiff City AFC headquarters) and the National Sports Centre for Wales.

Despite the disappearance of the coal export trade, Cardiff Docks still flourish and, in addition to being a major office centre—it has the Welsh Office and other Government Regional Offices—it also has a wide range of industries including steel making and car component manufacturing.

Barry, the second largest town in the county, also has a busy docks and is also known as one of the major holiday towns in South Wales, with many tourist attractions including a huge holiday camp. It also has many industries.

Penarth is another favourite South Wales seaside resort and has developed as a popular residential area.

Cowbridge and the Vale of Glamorgan make up one of the most beautiful and rich farming areas in Britain.

A feature of the recent development of the county has been the improvement in communications by road, air and rail.

London is less than 2½ hours away by train and under 3 hours by car, while there is an impressive airport at Rhoose with the most modern air traffic control and passenger handling facilities.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

District (a)

The county borough of Barnsley.

In the administrative county of Yorkshire, West Riding—

- the urban districts of Cudworth, Darfield, Darton, Dearne, Dodworth, Hoyland Nether, Penistone, Royston, Wombwell and Worsbrough;
- the rural district of Penistone;
- in the rural district of Hemsworth, the parishes of Billingley, Brierley, Great Houghton, Little Houghton and Shafton;
- in the rural district of Wortley, the parishes of Tankersley and Wortley.

District (b)

The county borough of Doncaster.

In the administrative county of Yorkshire, West Riding—

- the urban districts of Adwick le Street, Bentley with Arksey, Conisbrough, Mexborough and Tickhill;
- the rural districts of Doncaster and Thorne.

In the administrative county of Nottinghamshire—

- in the rural district of East Retford, the parish of Finningley.
- in the rural district of Worksop, in the parish of Harworth, the North ward, so much of the East ward as lies east and north of Ordnance Survey parcels 4800, 4749, 5136 and 8630, and the detached part of the West ward which includes the hamlet of Hesley.

District (c)

The county borough of Sheffield.

In the administrative county of Yorkshire, West Riding—

- the urban district of Stocksbridge;
- in the rural district of Wortley, the parishes of Bradfield and Ecclesfield.

District (d)

The county borough of Rotherham.

In the administrative county of Yorkshire, West Riding—

the urban districts of Maltby, Rawmarsh, Swinton and Wath upon Dearne; the rural districts of Kiveton Park and Rotherham.

The area of the South Yorkshire County Council includes the city of Sheffield and the large towns of Barnsley, Doncaster and Rotherham together with many smaller towns and communities.

The county, sixty-seven square miles of which lies within the Peak District National Park, stretches from the hilly Pennine district in the West to the flat Eastern lowlands of the Doncaster/Thorne region.

Industries of the area include the manufacture of a great variety of steel products, coal production, engineering, glass and bottle making, wire, nylon, plastics, clothing and food manufacture.

The county is well served by rail and road communications, being intersected by the M1 and M18 motorways and the A1 trunk road, which for the greater part of its length in the county is of motorway standard.

South Yorkshire is a metropolitan county and the more important services for which the county council is responsible are planning, highways and transportation, police, fire, consumer protection and refuse disposal. Within the county there are four metropolitan district councils and the services which they administer include education, personal social services, libraries, housing, planning and refuse collection.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county boroughs of Burton upon Trent and Stoke-on-Trent.

The administrative county of Staffordshire, except the urban districts in West Midlands.

With reorganization Staffordshire lost Aldridge-Brownhills Urban District to the West Midlands Metropolitan County but incorporates the county boroughs of Stoke-on-Trent and Burton upon Trent. The new county comprises nine districts. Staffordshire has been an administrative area for more than a thousand years, and was formed from the five "hundreds" of the Anglo-Saxon Kingdom of Mercia which were taxed for the upkeep of the Stafford fortress. The county was sparsely populated until the Industrial Revolution, when its rich resources of clay and coal were exploited, giving rise to rapid growth in the "Potteries" of North Staffordshire, made famous by the name of Josiah Wedgwood, and to the "Black Country" in the south. This growth left a legacy of despoliation and dereliction, and attempts are now being made to reclaim many of the worst areas still remaining. The county town is also an important industrial centre, especially for electrical engineering. Staffordshire has always been at the centre of national transport routes, from the age of the canals to the present day, with the main London–Glasgow railway line and the M6 motorway running through the county.

There are many areas of beautiful countryside in Staffordshire, including part of the Peak District National Park and Cannock Chase Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. Other attractions are the Chasewater Recreation Centre, Trentham Park and Alton Towers in the Churnet Valley. Lichfield Cathedral is also a major tourist attraction and the city is also famous as the birthplace of Dr. Johnson.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The county comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April, 1974:
The county borough of Ipswich.
The administrative county of East Suffolk, except the areas in Norfolk.

Greater

The administrative county of West Suffolk.

Suffolk is the twenty-fifth largest out of the 39 new non-metropolitan counties in England. However, the average density of 0·61 persons per acre illustrates the sparsely populated agricultural nature of much of the area. Yet it is in relative terms one of the fastest growing areas of the country.

The basic road framework of the county consists of the A12 London to Great Yarmouth trunk road and the A45 Midlands to Felixstowe trunk road. The extreme western part of Suffolk is crossed by the A11 London to Norwich trunk road. These roads, together with the A140 Ipswich to Norwich road, provide the principal internal and external road links for the county.

The settlement pattern of the county exhibits a fairly well-defined hierarchy of settlements with the main towns, the market towns and village centres each providing social and community facilities for their area at a scale appropriate to their size and function. The major centres of Ipswich, Lowestoft and Bury St. Edmunds can be expected to maintain or enhance their position while towns such as Beccles, Felixstowe, Stowmarket, Woodbridge, Hadleigh, Sudbury, Haverhill and Newmarket will continue to provide locally important shopping and service facilities. At the lower end of the scale it may become increasingly difficult for the smaller market towns and villages to provide economically the range and standard of service which will be expected.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county boroughs of Bradford, Dewsbury, Halifax, Huddersfield, Leeds, Wakefield.

The municipal boroughs of Batley, Brighouse, Castleford, Keighley, Morley, Ossett, Pontefract, Pudsey, Spenborough, Todmorden.

The urban districts of Aireborough, Baildon, Bingley, Colne Valley, Denby Dale, Denholme, Elland, Featherstone, Garforth, Hebden Royd, Heckmondwike, Hemsworth, Holmfirth, Horbury, Horsforth, Ilkley, Kirkburton, Knottingley, Meltham, Mirfield, Normanton, Otley, Queensbury and Shelf, Ripponden, Rothwell, Shipley, Silsden, Sowerby Bridge, Stanley.

The rural districts of Hepton and Wakefield.

Parts of the rural districts of Hemsworth, Osgoldcross, Skipton, Tadcaster, Wetherby, Wharfedale.

West Yorkshire is one of the six metropolitan counties prescribed by the Local Government Act 1972 for administrative purposes. The county extends from Todmorden in the west to Knottingley in the east and from Ilkley in the north to Denby Dale in the south.

The more important services for which the county council is responsible are planning and transportation, police, fire, consumer protection and refuse disposal. The county comprises the metropolitan districts of Bradford, Calderdale, Kirklees, Leeds and Wakefield and the services administered by their councils include education, personal social services, libraries and refuse collection.

The converging valleys of the River Aire and the River Calder and their tributaries provide the key to the distinctive character of West Yorkshire. In the hilly western section of the county the valleys cut deeply into the hard sandstones and gritstones of the Pennine Range and most of the woollen textile industries of Yorkshire are located around this area. Towards the east the valleys become wider until the terrain gradually flattens out near the edge of the Vale of York, and in this eastern section of the county many coal-mining communities are to be found. There is a great diversity of other industries in West Yorkshire, including the manufacture of textile machinery, various engineering trades, glass manufacture and chemicals.

An important feature of the county's highway network is the central length of the Lancashire—Yorkshire Motorway M62 which crosses the county boundary at Windy Hill and runs to the M1–M62 interchange at Lofthouse, south of Leeds. This route scales the once forbidding barrier of the Pennines and links the West Yorkshire industrial area with the Greater Manchester complex. It is expected to play a vital role in realizing the economic potential of both regions. Work continues on the M62 and the M18 towards the Humberside ports.

So far as air transport is concerned, the Leeds–Bradford Airport at Yeadon provides scheduled service flights to other parts of the United Kingdom and to certain continental centres.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county comprises the area of the administrative County of Wiltshire which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Wiltshire is a county of contrasts—a countryside of vast chalk downs, rising to almost 1,000 ft. in places, of clear flowing streams, often in deep valleys and fertile vales, and numerous well-wooded districts. From Salisbury Plain and the Marlborough Downs radiate all the chalk ridges of southern and eastern England.

Here were the early centres of civilization, for Wiltshire has more prehistoric relics than any other county, notably the gigantic circles of Stonehenge, its prototype of Woodhenge, the even older Avebury, and Silbury Hill, the greatest artificial mound in Europe.

Apart from the growing industrial and commercial town of Swindon and the city of Salisbury, Wiltshire towns are small in size. The villages and market towns are characterized by picturesque groupings of stone-built or half-timbered and thatched houses and many dignified later period residences and public buildings. The churches are ancient and display many features of great architectural interest. Wiltshire is celebrated too, for its magnificent and historic county mansions.

With an area of 860,000 acres, Wiltshire is one of England's largest inland counties. Wiltshire is essentially a farming county; agriculture and its associated rural undertakings are still the principal industries, as they have been for many years.

Although predominantly rural, Wiltshire is, nevertheless, in terms of population and new building a rapidly expanding area. With a population of just over half a million and a birth-rate higher than the average, the county is expected to continue to grow. Expansion is most likely in three areas—Swindon, already by far the largest centre of population and industry; around Salisbury; and in the West Wiltshire towns.

There are five district councils. These are, with their administrative centres: North Wiltshire (Chippenham); Thamesdown Borough (Swindon); West Wiltshire (Trowbridge); Kennet (Devizes); Salisbury (Salisbury).

SECTION 33

GREATER LONDON GOVERNMENT

Under the London Government Act 1963, the Greater London Council and the 32 chartered boroughs came into existence on 1st April 1965. These bodies replaced the London and Middlesex County Councils, the County Boroughs of Croydon, East Ham and West Ham, 28 Metropolitan Boroughs, 39 non-county boroughs and 15 urban district councils. The City of London Corporation remained undisturbed with greater powers.

Functions of the Greater London Council, the City Corporation and the London Boroughs are summarized under the respective headings in the following pages. Both the Chairman of the Greater London Council and the Lord Mayor of London have the privilege of being addressed as "The Right Honourable".

Aldermen of the Greater London Council and of London Boroughs number one sixth of the Councillors, but the Local Government Act 1972 provides that the office of alderman shall cease to exist in the G.L.C. and London Boroughs on the fourth day after the G.L.C. election in 1977 and the 1978 election as regards the London Boroughs.

Greater London Council and London Borough Councillors have four years' terms of office retiring together. The next election of Greater London Council Councillors will be held on 5th May, 1977. Under the London Government Act 1967, the next London Borough Elections will be held on 4th May, 1978.

Populations given are the Registrar General's estimates at 30th June 1975.

GREATER LONDON COUNCIL

The County Hall, London, SE1 7PB (01-633 5000).

Pop., 7,111,500, RV, £1,910,000,000; General Rate, 16·20p; Net Debt, £1,396,000,000, Area, 390,302 Ac.

A brief summary of the principal services provided by the GLC is given below.

The Council, as strategic planning authority for Greater London, has prepared the Greater London Development Plan, which has recently been modified by the Secretary of State for the Environment in the light of the findings of a Public Inquiry. The Secretary of State is now considering objections to the modified Plan. The Plan lays down basic principles for future development and, in addition to its main policies for housing, population, employment, transportation and environmental matters, covers such subjects as the River Thames, the Green Belt, public open space and recreation, town centres of strategic importance, shopping, public utilities and other subjects that affect the life of Londoners. The Plan, in the form in which it is eventually approved by the Secretary of State, will provide a framework for local planning by the London Borough Councils. Major schemes with which the GLC is concerned include the replanning of the Covent Garden area, the redevelopment of the 8½ square miles of the London Docklands, and Thamesmead, a large housing development on what was once marshland. The Council is also planning the introduction of a Thames Barrier designed to prevent the Thames from flooding without interfering with shipping at normal times.

Although the borough councils are the planning authorities in their own areas, they have to refer certain applications to the GLC for planning permission. These include applications having more than just local significance, and those within the Council's own comprehensive development areas. The Boroughs also seek the Council's direction on some types of applications, e.g. departures from the Initial Development Plan, and proposals which could affect a GLC road or its responsibilities for traffic and transport.

The Council is responsible for the broad policy and financial control of the central (red) buses and the underground services provided by the London Transport Executive. As highway authority, the Council is responsible for the construction, improvement and maintenance of some 870 miles of main thoroughfares (the metropolitan roads), their maintenance being by and large delegated to the London Borough Councils.

The Council maintains three road and two pedestrian tunnels under the Thames, the Woolwich free ferry, nine river piers, sixteen road bridges over the River Thames between Waterloo and Hampton Court (responsibility for the last named being shared with Surrey County Council) and various lengths of river wall embankment, which have recently been the subject of works to raise the river wall as an interim protection before construction of the Thames Barrier. It also maintains most metropolitan road structures, namely bridges, flyovers, underpasses, subways, etc., and approximately seven miles of pipe subways.

The Council is the traffic order-making authority for nearly 8,000 miles of roads in London. Its responsibilities include the introduction of measures of traffic constraint, bus priority and environmental measures as well as measures to assist pedestrian and traffic flows and safety. The Council's Inner Parking Area of some 40 square miles extends from Hammersmith to Bermondsey and from Camden Town to Brixton. It also has powers to control off-street parking and the provision of parking spaces for new developments in central London. Schemes to control overnight parking of heavy lorries in residential streets in inner London, and to ban the movement of very large lorries through the sensitive central area have recently been implemented.

It is the authority for all traffic signals and pedestrian crossings (except on trunk roads) in the Greater London area. It is currently bringing signals under centralized computer control (about 560 now completed), in association with a control centre in New Scotland Yard.

Although the London boroughs are the primary housing authorities, the Council builds over 6,000 new homes each year and uses these and another 7,000 relet or modernized homes to rehouse families it displaces from slum or other clearance areas as well as other priority cases. About 7,000 transfers or exchanges are arranged every year. Assistance is given to Housing Associations to convert houses or build new ones. The Greater London Council is the sole London authority for providing new homes outside Greater London and each year helps provide new homes for about 2,500 London families in 27 expanding towns. It also provides homes for elderly tenants at seaside towns. On 1 April 1971, over 44,000 GLC homes were transferred to the London Boroughs, and a further 5,000 dwellings have been transferred since that date.

As a regional parks authority the Council maintains 47 parks and open spaces covering around 2,200 hectares (5,500 acres). It does a great deal to give them colour and animation; arranges an extensive programme of entertainment each year; and caters for almost every game and sport. For children in particular there are playparks, playgrounds, summer shows and zoos. At Crystal Palace alongside the Council's 70-acre park is the National Sports Centre, owned by the Council and managed by the Sports Council.

The Council is also a land drainage authority for a large part of Greater London and has Thames flood prevention powers along about 120 miles of riverbank. Temporary protection against tidal flooding to the low-lying central areas of London has been provided by a limited raising of the level of the river walls. Permanent protection is now under construction in the form of a permanent flood barrier across the Thames in the Silvertown area, coupled with further raising of the downstream flood defences to give equivalent protection.

As refuse disposal authority for the whole of the Greater London area the Council deals with almost 3 million tons of solid wastes each year. About 84% goes to landfill sites for land reclamation and the rest is incinerated. Of the refuse transported to landfill sites about one quarter is taken by barge, the remainder by road. The Edmonton incineration plant in North London accounts for all but about 2% of the incinerated element and produces electricity for sale to the Eastern Electricity Board.

The Council is responsible for providing the fire service for Greater London which is amongst the largest in the world. The London Fire Brigade has an authorized strength of 6,458 uniformed men, 114 stations and 2 river stations with some 570 fire fighting appliance vehicles and fireboats.

The Council is the licensing authority in Greater London for certain places of entertainment, betting tracks and petroleum installations and, as agent for the Department of the Environment, licenses motor vehicles and drivers.

Other responsibilities and services of the Council include an intelligence unit for Greater London; scientific, purchase and supplies services; the Royal Festival Hall, Queen Elizabeth Hall, Purcell Room and Hayward Gallery on the South Bank of the Thames near Waterloo Bridge; certain courts and judicial services; preservation of historic buildings; street naming; Iveagh Bequest, Kenwood; Marble Hill House, Twickenham; the "Roman" Bath in Strand Lane; Cleopatra's Needle on the Thames Embankment; Eros in Piccadilly, and Lesnes Abbey in Abbey Woods, Erith.

The Greater London Council's budget for 1976–7 (including grants to Passenger Transport Executives) amounts to £1,941 million of which 1,493 million is revenue expenditure (including £453 million for the Inner London Education Authority) and £448 million capital expenditure (£25 million for the inner London Education Authority).

Revenue expenditure during the year will be met by precept on the London Borough Councils (£740 million); income from loan repayments, rents, reimbursements for town developments, fees, etc. (£322 million); London Transport fares, etc. (£265 million) and be Exchequer grants for certain works and services (£166 million). The Inner London Education Authority determines the amount the Council must precept on the rating authorities in Inner London for education purposes.

Capital expenditure is met principally by external borrowing.

THE INNER LONDON EDUCATION AUTHORITY

The ILEA is responsible for the education service provided in the 12 inner London boroughs and the City of London. It is a special committee of the GLC, special in the sense that it is virtually autonomous. In practice the GLC and the ILEA work closely together.

The Authority consists of 48 members, 35 of whom are members of the Greater London Council, elected for the inner London boroughs. The remaining 13 comprise representatives for each of the 12 inner London borough councils and of the Common Council for the City of London.

The ILEA operates through an Education Committee consisting of the 48 members of the Authority together with 17 other people experienced in education. Five of these additional members are serving teachers with the Authority.

The detailed work of the Education Committee is done through five sub committees: Development; Finance; Further and Higher Education; Schools; Staff and General.

The central offices are at County Hall and the Authority is organized in 11 administrative branches, 10 divisional offices situated in the boroughs, and the Inspectorate. Of the administrative branches, five manage sectors of the service—primary schools, secondary schools, special education, further and higher education, community education and careers. The remaining six provide specialist help for the management branches—Development and Equipment, Education Catering Service, Establishments (dealing with non-teaching staff), Finance, External Relations, and Teaching Staff.

The Chief Inspector is responsible for a team of 96 inspectors and also for the schools' psychological service.

During 1976–77 the ILEA's gross expenditure will amount to £478,217,000; £24,850,000 of this, to be charged to capital account, will be spent on long-term assets and will be met by loans; £453,367,000 is for revenue expenditure, including interest on and repayment of loans. Income from government grants, other local authorities and from fees will amount to £51,468,000. The GLC makes precepts and raises loans on behalf of the ILEA.

The Authority employs over 24,000 teachers and caters for about 400,000 children in more than 1,200 schools.

The Authority's education welfare service assists in promoting the welfare of school children, so that children are able to take maximum advantage of education facilities. The EWS works in co-operation with other statutory and voluntary welfare agencies.

GREATER LONDON AREA, CORPORATION of LONDON and LONDON BOROUGHS: GENERAL STATISTICS

The ILEA Careers Service gives guidance to pupils and students in schools, colleges or polytechnics, in order to help them decide on a career and to find suitable employment, training and further education. Careers Officers work closely with teachers, parents and employers. They follow up the progress of young people after they have entered employment, and assist young workers to find new jobs during the early years of their careers. Well over 50,000 vocational guidance interviews are given each year.

The Authority either aids or maintains 43 colleges (including five polytechnics and eight colleges of education) attended by over 200,000 students. A wide range of courses is provided in colleges of further and higher education, schools of art, specialist colleges, polytechnics and other aided colleges, and colleges engaged in the training of teachers. The courses prepare students for a great variety of careers in science, technology, business, art and design, education, the social sciences and other fields, and range from general and non-examination courses to craft and technician qualifications, degrees and post-graduate qualifications and research.

The Authority provides over 100 youth centres and youth clubs for young people aged between 12 and 21. It also spends over £2 million in aid to about 4,000 voluntary youth clubs.

About 300,000 people attend the Authority's adult education institutes which offer arts and crafts, physical activities, music, drama, literature, modern languages and current affairs.

MEMBERS OF THE INNER LONDON EDUCATION AUTHORITY

Membership (48) of the ILEA comprises the 35 Greater London Councillors elected for the inner London boroughs (marked * on list of members of the Greater London Council on earlier page) and the following representatives (13) appointed by each of the inner London borough councils and the Common Council of the City of London.

CORPORATION OF LONDON (CITY)

Night Pop., 5,400; Day Pop., 400,000 approx.; RV, £237,000,000; Rate, 73·48p; Debt, £134,253,236; Area 677 Ac.*

Constitution

The Corporation of London is unique among municipalities for its constitution, its 800 years of history and its somewhat exceptional powers and activities. The City—known as the Square Mile—is a county in itself, and the Corporation has many of the functions of a County Council.

The legal definition of the City Corporation is "The Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the City of London". It is governed by the Court of Common Council, which consists of the Lord Mayor, 25 Aldermen and 150 Common Councilmen. The Common Council is not merely a deliberative body: it is also a legislative assembly and can remodel its own constitution. It has no party politics. The Lord Mayor is nominated by the livery voters of the City Guilds and elected by the Court of Aldermen. Aldermen are elected by those eligible to vote in the several Wards, who also annually elect Common Councilmen.

Committees

Like Borough Councils, Common Council works through Committees, some of which consist of four Aldermen and 29 Commoners, others have 3 Aldermen and 15 Commoners, the former being nominated by the Court of Aldermen, the latter by members of the 25 Wards. Each committee member serves for four years. The 350-year-old Committee, now known as the City Lands and Bridge House Estates Committee, is regarded as the premier Committee, and its chairman is designated Chief Commoner. It manages the lands and buildings belonging to the Corporation (with certain exceptions).

Revenue from the City's Estate is known as City's Cash, and out of it certain expenses of civic government are paid with no charge to the ratepayer. Out of the revenue of the Bridge House Estates, four Thames bridges (London, Southwark, Blackfriars and Tower Bridge) are maintained and rebuilt when necessary. The new London Bridge was completed in 1973.

The Coal, Corn and Rates Finance Committee is the finance committee of the Corporation, comparable to the finance committee of a county council. There are separate committees for the Barbican Development, Schools, Epping Forest and Open Spaces, General Purposes, Housing, Libraries, Planning and Communications, Markets, Museum of London, Music, Police, Health, etc. The Policy and Parliamentary Committee (created in 1966) co-ordinates, and is responsible for public relations.

Planning, Development and Housing

The Second World War destroyed 104 acres of buildings completely, and 121 acres partially. This fact, together with a positive development policy, has enabled the Corporation to implement some highly imaginative planning proposals. Among them are the Paternoster development to the north and east of St Paul's Cathedral, the North Bank Scheme and the revolutionary Barbican Development in which, for the first time on such a scale, vehicles and pedestrians are segregated by walkways. The 35-acre Barbican was conceived, from 1957 onwards, as "a genuine residential neighbourhood incorporating schools, shops, open spaces and other amenities". This "Living City" is planned to contain ultimately 2,117 flats, maisonettes and terrace houses for up to 6,500 residents, a 200-room hostel for young City workers, and parking for 2,500 cars. Much of this has already been realized; and the ambitious Arts Centre (comprising a theatre, conference/concert hall, art gallery, lending library, cinema, and new buildings for the Guildhall School of Music and Drama) should be completed in 1977.

As a housing authority, the Corporation has provided or has under construction 2,626 houses and flats (not all of them in the City area) including special accommodation for old people.

Education

Four schools (three of them actually in the "Square Mile") are run by the Corporation. The City of London School, a leading public day school for boys opened in 1837, stands on the Victoria Embankment, Blackfriars, and it is planned to move into new riverside buildings directly below St Paul's as part of the North Bank Development. The City of London School for Girls (also an independent day school), opened in 1894, is now in the heart of the new Barbican. The City of London Freemen's School (opened at Brixton in 1854, and now at Ashtead, Surrey) is co-educational and caters for both day-pupils and boarders. The Corporation awards a number of scholarships each year in open competition at all three schools.

The Guildhall School of Music and Drama, founded by the Corporation in 1880 as Britain's first municipal school of music, is now of university status and is the only school in England and Wales which treats music and drama as equal partners. When the School realizes its ambition to move into a new home in the Barbican Arts Centre, the City will have this century's first purpose-built School of Music and Drama with 2,000 students and the great advantage of proximity to the Royal Shakespeare Company and the London Symphony Orchestra.

In Common with the Inner London Boroughs the City contributes towards the funds of the Inner London Education Authority. The City's contribution for the year 1976–77 is estimated to amount to £79,706,000.

The Gresham Trust, administered jointly by the Corporation and the Mercers' Company, is devoted to the maintenance of the Royal Exchange and Gresham College, and seven Gresham Professors are elected annually to deliver lectures in Music, Divinity, Geometry, Astronomy, Law, Physics and Rhetoric to students and members of the public at the City University, which was inaugurated in 1966 with the Lord Mayor as Chancellor.

Libraries

The Guildhall Libraries, Museum and Art Gallery are in the care of the Library Committee. The Library, which dates back to 1425, is one of the leading public reference libraries in the country, with 155,000 books, 40,000 manuscripts and 48,000 prints and maps (many of them on the history and development of London) as well as the special libraries of the Worshipful Companies of Gardeners and Clockmakers, and the Exhibition of clocks and watches belonging to the latter. The City Business Library in Basinghall Street, with its special material of financial, economic and statistical interest, meets the day-to-day needs of the City's business community.

The St. Bride Printing Library (off Fleet Street), with over 30,000 books and pamphlets and 500 periodicals, is internationally recognized as a major source of information on the development of printing techniques and type design. A collection of early presses and types is displayed in an adjacent room.

City residents, workers and students are served by the Bishopsgate, Cannon Street, Cripplegate and St.

Bride Lending Libraries. Special collections include loan material on economics, finance, banking and City history. A further lending library, to include a music and gramophone library, has been planned as part of the Barbican Arts Centre. The Corporation of London Records Office contains the finest collection of municipal archives in the country, spanning nine centuries, from William the Conqueror's Charter to the present day.

The Museum of London (formed by amalgamating Guildhall Museum and the London Museum) is due to open late in 1976. The new Museum will present the biography of the whole London area and be a centre for London studies at all levels. It is financed and supported equally by the State (DES), the Corporation of London and the Greater London Council. The building, adjoining the Barbican, at the corner of Aldersgate Street and London Wall, includes 50,000 sq. ft. of gallery space, a separate education wing, study facilities, a shop and restaurants.

The Art Gallery (established 1886) has a permanent collection of pictures by Lely, Reynolds, Constable, Brangwyn, Lawrence, Fantin-Latour and Millais (many are of London interests) and also holds exhibitions, among them the Lord Mayor's Art Award Exhibition (for amateurs and professionals living or working in the City).

Open Spaces

Epping Forest, Burnham Beeches, Coulsdon Commons, West Wickham Common, Spring Park, Highgate Wood, Queens Park (Kilburn) and parks at Wanstead and West Ham, are open spaces (most of them in the Green Belt) acquired by the Corporation and maintained for the enjoyment of Londoners and the conservation of wild life. In June 1971 a Conservation Centre, run by the Field Studies Council, was opened at High Beech, Epping Forest. More than eighty small open spaces are cared for by the Corporation of London within the Square Mile of the City. Many of these are tiny—just a tree and a couple of seats providing an oasis among concrete office blocks and busy streets.

Markets

The Corporation is the market authority for the City. Billingsgate Market handles 250 tons of fish a day. Leadenhall Market has 70 shops, mostly retailing food. Spitalfields (just beyond the City boundary), with a main frontage of over 1½ miles, accommodates 150 wholesalers of fruit, vegetables and flowers. The London Central Markets (Smithfield) is the world's largest market for dead meat, poultry and provisions, covering 10 acres and handling 253,000 tons of produce annually.

Police

The City has its own police force, originating from the 13th-century Watch and Ward which manned the City's walls against attack. A mobile force with excellent communications, it has pioneered crime prevention techniques by day and night, controlling the security of 48 miles of streets and offices. A specialist Fraud Department deals with company fraud.

Health

Both the City and the Port of London are the responsibility of the Health Department under the Medical Officer of Health. This includes 90 miles of the Thames and its estuary, and (for veterinary control of imported animals) the whole of Greater London including London Airport. A Port Health Quarantine Service is maintained 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, with a doctor always on duty. It is in touch with all other port health officers in the United Kingdom and abroad, and has 3 "ambulance" launches patrolling the river and estuary. The Chief Port Health Inspector and his staff examine about three million tons of imported foodstuffs annually, follow up cases of infectious disease, inspect ships' hygiene and supervise rodent control.

The Chief City Environment Health Officer and his staff supervise food hygiene in shops and catering establishments in the City; inspect offices, control noise and other nuisances, and have fought a pioneering battle for clean air; the Corporation of London was the first local authority to make its whole area smoke-free in 1955.

The Chief Environmental Health Officer (Smithfield) is responsible for food hygiene in the whole of Smithfield Market. A highly specialized staff is needed for this work, the benefit of which is felt far beyond the City boundaries.

Social Services

The Social Services Department has a responsibility for the welfare of the aged, handicapped and sick and for others in need.

The services provided include, mobile meals, library services for the housebound, help in the home and aids for those who require special help. Where necessary help is given with the payment of telephone rentals and television licences and free bus permits for pensioners are issued.

The department is also responsible for providing social work support to the medical, surgical and psychiatric wards and clinics at St. Bartholemew and St. Mark's Hospitals.

* At present approximately 395,000 enter the City daily to work.

GUIDE TO THE ANNUAL ELECTION OF THE LORD MAYOR

The Lord Mayor of London is at the top of an electoral tree which is as strange and as ancient as any in the whole of the United Kingdom, and indeed in the world, and he is not elected on politcal grounds. He will always previously have been a Sheriff of the City of London (there are two Sheriffs), and is nominated by the Aldermen of the City, and elected by the Livery of the City.

Every Lord Mayor is groomed for the post for many years, and will have stood in line with other men grooming for office; each Lord Mayor spends a considerable personal fortune on his civic duties, for although the upkeep of the official seat, the Mansion House, and various ceremonies are met out of City's Cash, there are a considerable variety of things for which he pays out of his own purse. While in office for one year, no longer, he will entertain presidents, prime ministers and monarchs from abroad as part of his duties.

The diagram overleaf shows a simplified scheme of the nominating and electoral process for the office of Lord Mayor. The Livery, or Liverymen, are members of the City Livery Companies or ancient craft guilds which still flourish today, and of which there are 84. Like the concept of City of London business itself, the Livery is not geographically confined to those who live or work within the Square Mile, but is spread throughout the country. A Liveryman is not necessarily attached to an industrial or commercial descendant or branch of the Livery company concerned, but several companies do emphasise their history. The Worshipful Company of Needlemakers is an instance.

The other line of ascent in the diagram is the City electoral register. This includes the permanent residents of the City, and also City workers who occupy premises within the City as tenants or owners. There are 25 electoral wards in the City, and each year they elect members to the Court of Common Council—elections in the City are known as Wardmotes, and the elected member is known as a Common Councilmen (man or woman), not a Councillor. The Common Council sits at Guildhall every third Thursday to vote on civic affairs, and the debates are open to the public. The electors on the electoral register also elect Aldermen of the City—once an Alderman, always an Alderman, until you resign, do something dishonourable or die. Vacancies are filled when they occur.

THE LIVERY COMPANIES OF THE CITY OF LONDON

Like so many institutions in the City, the origin of the Companies is lost in antiquity, but in all probability they derive from the early mediaeval religious fraternities which were attached to many of the parish churches. In the middle ages it was customary for people working in the same trade to live in the same area, so that members of these fraternities were for the most part engaged in the same trade or craft. The main functions of the fraternities were originally religious and benevolent, but in the 12th century they began to be more concerned with the protection and regulation of their trades. So emerged the trade and craft guilds. These were more than mere trade associations, however; they united within themselves some of the basic functions of the modern trade unions, employers' associations, insurance and mutual benefit societies and social clubs. Over all these functions remained the religious aspect inherited from the fraternities, an inheritance which has never entirely been lost to the present day. The guilds gradually obtained complete control of their trades—a control for which they fought for centuries to maintain. With the development of industry and commerce both at home and abroad, the power of the companies began to wane and by the late 18th and early 19th centuries only a few of them had much direct connection with their trades. There are still, however, today a few which continue to have certain controlling powers within their trades, for example the Goldsmiths, Fishmongers and Gunmakers; the others for the most part concerning themselves, as far as their trades are concerned, with providing educational courses and fostering technical research. The fraternal element is still active in the maintenance of almshouses, poor relief and other work. The craftguilds came to be called livery companies during the late 15th century, from the custom originating in the 14th century for the more prosperous members of a company to wear a distinctive clothing or livery on ceremonial occasions. From the early 14th century the only persons entitled to call themselves "citizens" were those who were members, or "freemen" as they were called, of the craft guilds (livery companies) and until 1835 the freedom of the City could be obtained only through such companies.

In mediaeval times the whole body of citizens, that is freemen, had the right to attend at Guildhall to elect the Sheriffs and the Mayor. By the mid-14th century, however, some restriction had to be placed on the number attending. This was done by allowing only the more prosperous freemen to take part in the elections. This led finally in 1475 to only those who wore the "livery" of a Company being entitled to elect the Mayor and the Sheriffs. This right of the liverymen has continued to the present day.

Until the Reform Act of 1832, the liverymen had the sole right of electing members of parliament for the City. The Reform Act preserved this right but also enfranchised certain house holders and occupiers in the City. Nearly a hundred years later the right of liverymen as such to exercise the parliamentary franchise in the City was abolished by the Representation of the People Act 1918, but the Act allowed those liverymen who also possessed a business qualification to vote as liverymen, if they so desired. This latter privilege was abolished by the Representation of the People Act 1948.

Although many of their rights have gone, liverymen continue to play an important part in the government of the City. They still have the right to elect the Lord Mayor on Michaelmas Day, and the Sheriffs and various officers, including the Chamberlain of London on Midsummer Day; furthermore most members of the Court of Common Council are liverymen.

The constitution of a livery company is the same today as it has been for centuries. There are three ranks of membership namely freemen, liverymen and assistants. A person can become a freeman by one of three ways (a) by patrimony—that is through the father of the applicant having been a freeman before the son or daughter was born, (b) by servitude—that is through having served a period of at least four years as an apprentice to a freeman, and (c) by redemption—that is by purchase. Election to the livery is the prerogative of the company who can elect any of its freemen to this status. Assistants are usually elected from the livery and form a Court of Assistants which is the governing body of the company. From the Court of Assistants are elected annually the Master (sometimes called Prime Warden) and the Wardens.

LONDON BOROUGHS

DUTIES AND FUNCTIONS

The 32 London Boroughs were constituted by the London Government Act 1963 with powers and duties far greater than those of the authorities they superseded. The following is a summary of the most important:—

Baths and public halls
Cemeteries and crematoria
Education and youth employment (except within Inner London Education Area)

Environmental health services
Food and drugs
Housing and slum clearance
Libraries, museums and art galleries
Local roads—construction, maintenance, lighting and improvement
Offices, Shops and Railway Premises Act
Parking places for vehicles
Parks and open spaces
Personal Social Services
Refuse collection and street cleansing
Town planning—development control and preparation of borough development plan
Weights and measures and other consumer protection and public control functions

LONDON BOROUGHS ASSOCIATION

The London Boroughs Association, whose constitution and objects are set out below, was formed in 1964 to advise and assist its constituent authorities.

Constitution

The Association is composed of three representatives of each of the 32 London Borough Councils and the City Corporation. It appoints Committees to deal with various aspects of its work.

Objects

The objects of the Association are—

(a) To protect and advance the powers, interests, rights and privileges of the constituent Councils and to watch over those powers, interests, rights and privileges as they may be affected by legislation, or proposed legislation, or otherwise.

(b) To discuss questions of London government, and to advise and assist the constituent Councils in the administration of their powers and duties.

(c) To express the views of the Association and to consult with appropriate bodies or persons whenever deemed advisable.

Honorary Secretary and Offices

Sir Alan Dawtry, CBE, TD, PO Box 240, Westminster City Hall, Victoria St., SW1E 6QP (01-828 8070 Ext. 2737).

ASSOCIATION OF METROPOLITAN AUTHORITIES

Chairman: Sir Robert Thomas, DL, JP (Greater Manchester CC); Secretary: T. H. Caulcott, 36 Old Queen St., London, SW1H 9JE (01-930 9861).

Constitution

The Association has in membership all the authorities eligible for membership, i.e.:

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Borough (which comprises the major portions of the former Boroughs of Barking and Dagenham) lies on the north side of the River Thames, astride the main London-Tilbury Road.

It is primarily residential and industrial in character, Barking Power Station and the Ford Motor Company, two very large undertakings, are situated in the southern part of the Borough and there are various engineering, chemical, paint, wood and miscellaneous works elsewhere. Nearly three-quarters of the Becontree Estate, two-thirds of which is still owned by the Greater London Council, and the largest municipal housing estate of its kind in the country, lies within the Borough. There are other large estates owned by the Borough Council, two of which are served by a district heating scheme utilizing waste heat from a refuse incineration plant, supplemented by low grade fuel.

The total area of parks and open spaces maintained by the Council amounts to 584 acres. Refuse is collected by direct labour and disposal is undertaken by the Greater London Council. There are twelve public halls in the Borough, one of which is capable of seating 800 persons and the Council operate a civic catering undertaking. Provision by the Social Services Department includes an adult training centre, sheltered workshops, 2 hostels for the mentally handicapped and a day centre for the mentally ill, 5 children's homes, a reception centre and a hostel for girls and day centres and homes for the elderly and the physically handicapped.

Advances under the Housing Acts are available for house purchase subject to financial restrictions.

An allowance of £2,930 per annum is made to the Mayor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The London Borough of Bexley, one of the twenty Outer Boroughs of the Greater London area, is made up of the former Boroughs of Bexley and Erith, the Urban District of Crayford and part of the Urban District of Chislehurst and Sidcup.

The area is rich in historical interest. For example, records of the locality within the Borough known as Bexley, date back to AD 814 when Kenulph, King of the Mercians, in a Charter, granted the Parish of Bexley to Wulfred, Archbishop of Canterbury.

The Borough has a substantial housing and development programme, much of which is already taking place and the remainder scheduled for the near future. Many internationally known firms have works in Bexley and there are three main industrial areas, at Erith, Crayford and Sidcup as well as a developing industrial area at Thamesmead. In Erith, on the site of a new town centre, much of the work on the shopping area has been completed and many shop units are in occupation.

The Council has put in hand a substantial re-organization of its departmental structure and flowing from this is centralizing many of its departments in new offices adjoining existing premises at Bexleyheath which are to be modernized. The Council is also pursuing with the approved developer the redevelopment of Bexleyheath Central Shopping Area as soon as possible, and as part of the redevelopment of Bexleyheath a new Magistrates Court has now been opened.

Major improvements in road communications, either in hand or planned for the not too distant future, include various widening schemes. The building of a flyover as part of the Thamesmead road building programme was completed in November last year and a proposal is programmed for the near future to construct another bridge over the railway at the eastern end of Thamesmead to link it to the existing highway network south of the railway.

Part of the impressive Thamesmead undertaking falls within the Borough and work is well advanced on the 5,000 dwellings which are to be built in the Bexley sector. Its residents, at present numbering around 10,000 are already served by several shops and a supermarket. They have their own tenants' clubroom, a club for the elderly, four new primary schools, a secondary school, a youth centre and a library. Three further primary schools are planned to meet expanding population needs in 1978 and extensions to the secondary school includes the construction of a new junior department. There is a man-made lake specially designed for recreational purposes and adjacent to the lake there is a purpose-built health centre.

Recreational facilities in Bexley include three indoor swimming baths at Bexleyheath, Erith and Sidcup and two outdoor pools at Danson Park, Bexleyheath and Martens Grove, Barnehurst, as well as a sports stadium at Erith. In addition there are approximately 1,200 acres of parks and open spaces.

The residential population is fairly evenly distributed throughout the Borough and is well served by public transport linking it with London and parts of Kent.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Bromley is the largest in area of the 32 Boroughs created under the London Government Act 1963, amalgamating the former Boroughs of Beckenham and Bromley, the Urban Districts of Orpington and Penge and that part of the Chislehurst and Sidcup Urban District south of the A20 road.

An open-air market is held in Bromley each Thursday, the market rights, owned by the Council, having been granted under a Charter dated 1205. Another market, held more frequently, is at Maple Road, Penge.

Bromley is a County Court Circuit: It contains the petty sessional Division of Bromley, and is in the Metropolitan Police District.

The Thames Water Authority is responsible for the supply of water to the Borough and the London Borough is a constituent authority of the T.W.A. for sewerage within its area.

Extending from Penge southwards to the ridge of the North Downs Bromley provides not only urban facilities but also the amenities of the countryside.

Although predominantly residential, small belts of light industry are located in various parts of the Borough, which has up-to-date shopping thoroughfares and modern business premises. The Council is a Local Planning Authority and a new development plan is being prepared.

The district offers its residents excellent facilities for all kinds of outdoor recreation.

The south and south eastern parts of the Borough are mainly agricultural and included within this area of Metropolitan Green Belt are three large agricultural estates, comprising approximately 1,500 acres, owned by the Council, and let out to tenant farmers.

Hayes and Keston commons, within the Borough, are owned and controlled by the Corporation. In addition there are Commons at Chislehurst, St. Paul's Cray and West Wickham. The Crystal Palace Grounds are also within the district, although administered by the Greater London Council.

The public has access to National Trust Property at Chislehurst and Petts Wood.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The London Borough of Croydon, created in 1965, consists of the former County Borough of Croydon (created in 1889 in succession to the Municipal Borough incorporated in 1883) and the former Urban District of Coulsdon and Purley (created in 1915). The Council are Lords of the Manor of Coulsdon.

Croydon is one of the largest towns in the South of England with the largest population of all the London Boroughs; within its boundaries are Addington, Addiscombe, Coulsdon, Kenley, New Addington, Norbury, Purley, Sanderstead, Selsdon, Shirley, South Norwood, Thornton Heath, Upper Norwood, Waddon and Woodside. There are 415 miles of public roads in the Borough.

Large scale redevelopment has taken place in the central shopping and business area. The central shopping area is regarded as the leading centre in the South of England outside the West End.

Central Croydon is also one of the largest office centres in the country. About 40,000 new office jobs have been provided since the war.

Around Park Lane is an area of Council civic development including Fairfield Halls (an arts and entertainment centre including a theatre, concert hall and art gallery), the Croydon College of Design and Technology and the Law Courts. The Council's administrative offices are centred in Taberner House, a 21-storey building close to the old Town Hall.

The Council has in progress a continuing programme of building works of houses and schools.

Major main drainage works have been carried out in the central area and substantial schemes are in hand elsewhere to cater for new development and flood relief.

Some 15,860 dwellings have been provided since 1945. The largest housing estate is at New Addington comprising 6,199 council houses and 1,061 privately-owned dwellings, 15 schools, 1 central and 3 estate shopping centres, 4 churches, a public swimming bath, children's homes, an old people's home, public library, clinic, fire station, area offices for social services and two community centres; there is also an industrial estate.

Public parks and open spaces within the Borough cover 2,690 acres. A complete Sports Arena, a separate comprehensive Sports Centre, a Corporation-owned Public Golf Course and 18 hole pitch and putt course, are provided. There are several privately owned golf courses, and 121 acres of permanent allotments. A further 420 acres are owned and maintained by the City of London Corporation. Selsdon Woods (200 acre nature reserve) is National Trust owned; leased to the Council and jointly managed.

Education is provided to approximately 60,000 pupils in schools of which the County Secondary Schools were reorganized on Comprehensive lines in September 1971. The Croydon College of Design and Technology has about 11,000 students.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Greenwich is one of the 12 Inner London boroughs constituted under the London Government Act 1963. The borough comprises the two former Metropolitan Boroughs of Greenwich and Woolwich and includes the districts of Charlton, Eltham, Greenwich, New Eltham, Plumstead, Woolwich and parts of Abbey Wood, Blackheath and Mottingham.

It has a river frontage of nearly 9 miles and is exceptionally well endowed with public open spaces which cover some 1,750 acres of common land, woodlands, formal parks and playing fields.

In the north-eastern sector of the borough, partly on land formerly occupied by the Royal Arsenal, the new community of "Thamesmead" is being developed by the Greater London Council in co-operation with the London Boroughs of Bexley and Greenwich. This imaginative and extensive planning project includes facilities for water sports and a marina, and will ultimately provide new housing for a total population of 50,000 with supporting social services and amenities.

Education in Greenwich is the responsibility of the Inner London Education Authority. (See Inner London Education Authority.)

Greenwich is known internationally as the centre of world time and is rich in historical associations. Within its boundaries lie the Royal Naval College: the National Maritime Museum which includes the Old Royal Observatory and Planetarium; the "Cutty Sark", "Gipsy Moth IV"; Eltham Palace; the headquarters of the Royal Artillery (Woolwich Garrison) and the former Royal Military Academy; the Rotunda Museum; Tudor Barn at Well Hall; and Charlton House—a stately and well preserved Jacobean mansion.

Under the Civic Amenities Act 1967 six areas of the borough have been designated as Conservation Areas.

The Council provides amenities by way of both recreational facilities and entertainment and maintains eight centres for community activities.

As part of a comprehensive welfare scheme the Council owns a sea-front hotel at Westgate-on-Sea to provide assisted holidays for elderly Greenwich residents.

Greenwich has established links of friendship with two European municipalities—Reinickendorf in West Berlin and Maribor in Yugoslavia.

The Mayoral allowance is £3,730.

Hammersmith is one of the 12 inner London Boroughs and was formed in 1965 by the amalgamation of the former Metropolitan Boroughs of Fulham and Hammersmith.

The main administrative offices are at the Town Hall, King Street. Nearest underground station, Ravenscourt Park. This building houses the departments of the Chief Executive, the Director of Finance, the Director of Development Planning, the Director of Engineering, the Director of Operations, and Public Relations. The Housing Department is located at the Housing Centre, Glenthorne Road, a few minutes away while the Borough Solicitor, the Borough Valuer, the Director of Employees' Services and Personnel Staff are in the BOC offices near Hammersmith Broadway. The Registrar for Hammersmith is in Nigel Playfair Avenue, W6. Other offices, principally those of the Social Services, are at the old Town Hall, Fulham.

Although small compared with most other London Boroughs, Hammersmith is densely populated and has two Parliamentary constituencies: Hammersmith North and Hammersmith Fulham. The Council comprises ten aldermen and 60 councillors. The Borough has two representatives on the Greater London Council.

Hammersmith contains within its boundaries three Football League Clubs—more than any other borough in Britain—Chelsea, Fulham and Queen's Park Rangers. It also has six famous hospitals—Hammersmith, West London, The Royal Masonic, Charing Cross (Fulham), Queen Charlotte's Maternity and the Western Hospital, Seagrave Road.

It has 15 secondary and 46 primary schools, which come under the control of the Inner London Education Authority.

Parliamentary Constituencies (3): Haringey-Hornsey; Haringey-Tottenham; Haringey-Wood Green.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Created a London Borough in 1965, Haringey comprises the former Boroughs of Hornsey, Tottenham and Wood Green. The place name Haringey has been part of Hornsey and Tottenham since the 13th century.

Haringey, largely residential, also contains some light industry, principally in Tottenham, where the largest offset duplicator factory in the world is situated. Main industries are Engineering and Children's clothing.

Tottenham also contains Bruce Castle, where King David I of Scotland lived for a period, Harringay Stadium and the famous Tottenham Hotspur Football Club. Bruce Castle, also a museum, contains a wealth of archive material and a fine military section. Tottenham includes about 5 square miles of the River Lea Valley now being developed as a regional recreation centre. Although a built-up area it has retained its distinctive character.

Hornsey, mainly residential, which includes Highgate, Muswell Hill and Crouch End, lies about 5 miles north of the River Thames in the Northern Heights of London. Many of its roads are tree-lined and attractive wayside gardens are a noticeable feature, along with several fine large open spaces, including Finsbury Park, Highgate and Queens Woods.

Wood Green is already an important shopping and service centre for North London which is expanding to provide a wider range of facilities. This expansion is being carried out as a series of integrated projects which have now reached the implementation stage. The projects should improve the local amenities and ratepayers will benefit from the income new commerce will bring, both by way of increased rateable value and by sharing the income. Many of its pleasant streets climb to the breezy heights of Alexandra Palace, the playground of North London and for many years the home of the BBC Television News. The Palace in recent years has rapidly developed as a popular exhibition and conference centre. Wood Green contains the administrative centre of the Borough. The former administrative centres at Hornsey and Tottenham Town Halls now house other Corporation Services.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The London Borough of Havering comprises the former Borough of Romford and the Urban District of Hornchurch and is the second largest of the London Boroughs, with a frontage of 3½ miles to the River Thames.

The Council owns and controls community centres, purpose-built youth centres, allotments, 10 libraries, 3 public swimming pools and over 1,600 acres of parks and open spaces providing facilities for a variety of sports. The Council also maintains a civic theatre—the original Queen's was opened in 1953. A new theatre was opened in April 1975.

The Borough is mainly residential but small belts of light industry are located in various parts.

Extensive redevelopment of the centre of Romford has taken place. The construction of a ring road has provided an extensive pedestrian precinct, which includes a 9-acre scheme of new and multiple shops. Car parking capacity exceeds 3,500 with 3 multi-storey parks, another under construction and two more planned.

There has been an official Market in Romford since the year 1247. Originally for the sale of cattle, leather and farm produce, it became more general in character and is now held on Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. The Market has been under the control of the Local Authority since 1892.

Reorganization on Maud principles has reduced the number of Committees to 6 with extensive delegation.

The Borough twinned, in 1971, with the German town of Ludwigshafen, the large chemical centre on the Rhine.

Parliamentary Consituencies—3; Hayes and Harlington; Ruislip–Northwood; Uxbridge.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Borough came into being on 1st April 1965 and embraces the areas of the former Borough of Uxbridge, and the former Urban Districts of Hayes and Harlington, Ruislip/Northwood and Yiewsley and West Drayton.

The Borough is approximately 14 miles west of Marble Arch and is bounded by the Counties of Hertfordshire, Buckinghamshire and Surrey and by the London Boroughs of Harrow, Ealing and Hounslow.

Many parts of the Borough were mentioned in the Domesday Book and the area has several noteworthy historical buildings amongst them the Jacobean Mansion "Swakeleys" at Ickenham. It was from the underground control centre at RAF Uxbridge that the Battle of Britain was largely directed.

In addition Hillingdon has many modern industries of a national and international character, for instance Heinz and EMI. Almost the whole of Heathrow Airport London lies within the Borough's southern boundary and Brunel University is at Uxbridge.

The Borough is fortunate too in having large tracts of green belt, parks and open space, including Ruislip Lido, amounting to over 12,000 acres in all.

DEFINITION OF AREA

On 1st April, 1965, the former Boroughs of Brentford and Chiswick, and of Heston and Isleworth, and the former Urban District of Feltham were merged to form this London Borough.

Hounslow is an attractive Borough of contrasts from the industrial-trading complexes of Feltham and the Great West Road to the quiet secluded riverside communities of Chiswick and Strand-on-the-Green.

One of the major Boroughs of outer London, it stretches from Hammersmith in the east to Heathrow Airport in the west and from the M4 motorway in the north to the Richmond and Sunbury borders to the south.

The Council is noted for its comprehensive Social Services. The Mental Health Services have been well-developed, providing a hostel and home for the mentally handicapped, a day centre for the elderly confused and an adult training centre. 1971 saw the opening of a rehabilitation centre for the mentally ill. In addition, excellent residential and day care facilities are provided for the elderly, physically handicapped and young children.

The Authority is the first in London to introduce catenary street lighting—a system proved more effective than other forms of street lighting.

Isleworth riverside and Strand-on-the-Green have both been declared Conservation Areas, thereby protecting the picturesque character of these two districts, and further conservation schemes are under consideration.

Besides providing several of the main shopping and residential areas of West London, the Borough has a number of notable houses of architectural and historical merit—Syon House, Osterley House, Boston Manor House, Chiswick House, Hogarth's House and Gunnersbury House.

There are some 80 parks and open spaces together with six swimming baths—including an open air pool at Chiswick and a covered pool at Feltham. Facilities are provided for a comprehensive swimming instruction programme, diving, sub aqua, and for major competitive swimming clubs. There are sauna suites at Feltham and Isleworth baths. The Feltham suite has been augmented with a relaxation lounge and exercise room, and mixed sauna sessions were introduced in March.

There are 89 schools in the Borough—68 primary, 15 secondary and 6 special. There are also two polytechnics, a college of education and a voluntary college of education.

An additional feature to the established services of the Council is the setting up of a Housing Aid Centre in Staines Road, Hounslow, designed to give help and advice on all housing matters.

The community is well served by the three district libraries and eight branch libraries, and the museums at Gunnersbury and Hogarth's Houses are popular attractions.

The Hounslow Cavalry Barracks—once the headquarters of Southern Command—are now the centre for the West London Administrative Staff for all cavalry barracks.

DEFINITION OF AREA

This London Borough was created under the London Government Act 1963, by the amalgamation of the former Metropolitan Boroughs of Finsbury and Islington; it extends from the boundaries of the former administrative County of London, in the north, to the borders of the City of London, in the south.

The Borough has strong historical traditions connected with entertainment, light engineering and education (particularly technology). Sadlers Wells, the internationally known home of opera and ballet, is in the southern part of the Borough; nearby is the site of the once famous Collins Music Hall. Clock making is firmly established as an industry in the Clerkenwell area. The interests of education are strongly represented by the City University (formerly known as the Northampton College of Advanced Technology) and the Polytechnic of North London.

St. John's Gate, at Clerkenwell, is one of the oldest surviving buildings in the Borough. A beautiful early 16th century structure amid modern surroundings, it houses a collection of silver, paintings and furniture illustrating all periods of the history of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. For those who prefer their works of art to carry a price-ticket, Camden Passage (off Islington High Street) is a world-famous antiques centre housing over sixty elegant shops; an open-air market is held every Wednesday and Saturday.

Football enthusiasts are well served in Islington; Arsenal Stadium, at Highbury, is the home of the Arsenal Football Club. In November, 1971, the Council installed Europe's first full-size artificial turf football pitch at Caledonian Park; used for over 1,000 games per year, it has changing-room facilities for both male and female players.

The south of the Borough is predominantly commercial and industrial in character, with a small residential population, while the northern part is mainly residential. Due to the proximity of Main Line railway termini and work centres, the Borough is densely occupied and one of the major problems facing the Council is that of dealing with housing conditions. As at April 1976 there were 3,195 new homes in course of construction and 1,662 sub-standard dwellings were undergoing rehabilitation.

Due to intensive building development over the past 150 years, Islington is sadly deficient in open space; although immediately adjoining the Borough there are large open areas at Waterlow Park, Clissold Park and Finsbury Park. Open space provision within the Borough itself consists mainly of Highbury Fields, the recently extended Barnard Park, and a charming linear park called New River Walk, some 1½ miles long; there are, also, many small and pleasant squares. The Borough development plan aims to double the current provision: seven sites are already being laid out and a further twelve are at detailed planning stage.

Advisory Health Circles for the elderly are in operation and a Smoking Advisory Clinic is held.

An allowance of £2,830 per annum is made to the Mayor.

The borough, brought into being in April 1965, embraces Kingston upon Thames, Kingston Vale, Coombe, New Malden, Old Malden, Berrylands, Kingston Hill, Norbiton, Surbiton, Tolworth, Hook and Chessington.

A pleasant residential area with the amenities of the Thames and splendid open parklands close at hand, and within easy reach of Central London, it is also a thriving commercial and shopping centre, and supports a number of light industries.

Kingston and the surrounding area is rich in history. Many royal charters, dating from 1208, are in the possession of the Council, and the Coronation Stone believed to have been used at the crowning of seven Anglo-Saxon Kings, is displayed beside the Guildhall. Nearby stands the 12th Century Clattern Bridge spanning the Hogsmill River, and the Market, which has existed from at least the 13th century.

Recreation facilities are provided by 692 acres of public parks and open spaces, three golf courses leased by the Council to private clubs, an open-air swimming pool and two heated indoor swimming pools. A number of organizations have private sports grounds in the area.

Education is provided by 2 nursery schools, 43 primary schools, 13 secondary schools, one school for educationally sub-normal pupils, one school for severely sub-normal children, and one school for physically handicapped pupils, Kingston College of Further Education and the Kingston Polytechnic. In addition there are a number of independent schools including the Kingston Grammar School, founded in 1561 by Queen Elizabeth I, and Surbiton High School. There are nine libraries, a museum and an art gallery.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The London Borough of Lambeth consists of the former Metropolitan Borough of Lambeth and the following wards of the former Metropolitan Borough of Wandsworth: Larkhall, Clapham North, Clapham Park, Thornton (East of Cavendish Road), Streatham Hill, St. Leonards (East of the railway), Streatham Common and Streatham South. Lambeth has a larger population than any of the other Inner London Boroughs.

Lambeth's 215 miles of road spread from the 2½ miles Thames frontage (which includes the approaches to the Waterloo, Hungerford, Westminster, Lambeth and Vauxhall bridges) to the Inner London boundary at Croydon.

The Town Hall, a fine building, includes a well equipped Assembly Hall and meeting rooms which are available for hire. Many notable buildings are situated in the Borough, such as Lambeth Palace, The County Hall, The Royal Festival Hall, The National Film Theatre, the Oval Cricket Ground, the Shell Centre and The Old Vic theatre. The new National Theatre on the South Bank is also in Lambeth.

There are eight hospitals in the Borough, including St. Thomas', the largest in London, and King's College. London's largest railway terminus, Waterloo, and 13 other stations serve the Borough, as well as 11 underground stations.

The Borough contains 656 acres of parks and open spaces. On 1st April 1971 the Borough Council took over from the Greater London Council the maintenance of approximately 540 acres of public open space. The open spaces transferred included major parks like Brockwell Park and Kennington Park as well as Streatham Common and Clapham Common. There are open-air swimming pools in two of these parks and the only windmill in Inner London is at Windmill Gardens.

The Council establishments include 13 public libraries and a further library is operated jointly with Croydon. There is a major Central Reference library and collections of gramophone records at 6 of the public libraries. Lambeth Crematorium and cemetery and Streatham cemetery are at Tooting as well as another cemetery and crematorium at West Norwood. Twelve Day Nurseries are operated by the Council. There are seven works depots, two public indoor swimming pools and a public laundry in the Borough.

The Mayoral allowance is £3,850.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The London Borough of Lewisham was formed in 1965 by the amalgamation of the former Metropolitan Boroughs of Deptford and Lewisham. It covers 13·7 square miles.

It is primarily a residential borough and includes many desirable areas including parts of Blackheath, Sydenham, Forest Hill and Lee. There is a small number of large industries in the northern part of the borough but industrial employment has been going down steadily for a number of years.

To the west of Lewisham lies Southwark, to the east, Greenwich and to the south, Bromley. To the north the borough boundary runs along the river Thames for a few hundred yards where a wide promenade allows visitors to enjoy extensive views of the river.

Near to the river is the Pepys Estate, a recently completed GLC development whose tower blocks provide commanding views of South-East London. One of the largest urban renewal schemes in the country is in progress in old Deptford where an area of some 670 acres is being redeveloped. The intention is to rehouse about 30,000 people and to date dwellings for nearly 5,000 people have been built or are under construction. A "face lift" scheme for the High Street has also just been completed.

There are a number of good local shopping areas in the borough including those at Sydenham, Forest Hill, Catford, Lee and Deptford High Street. Central Lewisham has been selected as one of the six major strategic shopping centres in London and the first phase of the major scheme of redevelopment, prepared in conjunction with a private developer, to meet the increasing demands for more shopping, offices, car parking and ancillary services is completed. This first part includes a large covered shopping precinct, a car park, offices and a leisure centre. In Catford a new shopping precinct immediately behind the Town Hall has been completed. The new civic suite was opened in 1971 and other improvements made in the Town Hall area include a new road system, more off-street car parking and additional housing.

Sport and leisure is well catered for by the many clubs and voluntary organizations and the 1,000-seat concert hall in Catford is the venue for many shows and public events.

Altogether there are 33 parks and open spaces totalling nearly 800 acres and several new parks are planned. Panoramic views can be obtained from many vantage points, notably Hilly Fields, Blythe Hill, Mountsfield Park, Telegraph Hill and Horniman Gardens.

For museum enthusiasts there is the Horniman Museum in London Road, world-famous for its anthropological collection, displays and lectures. Goldsmiths College, an institution of London University, is also situated in the borough.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The London Borough of Redbridge comprises the former Boroughs of Ilford, and Wanstead and Woodford, part of the former Borough of Dagenham, and part of the former Urban District of Chigwell.

It came into being following the reorganization of local government in London in 1965. The name Redbridge comes from the Red (brick) Bridge which once spanned the River Roding, the boundary between the former boroughs.

Redbridge is principally residential in character but has some new industrial estates and important industries—light engineering, the manufacture of radio and electrical components, and chemicals. It has many large shops and offices and is an important regional shopping and commercial centre. Because of the national financial situation, some projects—the Civic Centre for example—have had to be deferred, while others—the planned redevelopment of Ilford Town Centre—are having to be modified or reduced in standard.

The Kenneth More Theatre was built by the Council in 1975 in the Town Centre. A Sports Centre was built at the same time, in the grounds of the Wanstead High School; it is a "dual use" centre. There is a community-based Sports Centre at Barkingside, and another is planned at Redbridge Technical College (built by the Council in 1969). There are 12 completed sheltered housing schemes providing for 680 elderly and handicapped people. Several other units are in the pipeline and Redbridge leads the country in this field.

Recreational facilities in Redbridge include two public swimming baths, and one outdoor pool in Valentines Park. There are twenty-six parks and recreation grounds in the Borough, totalling 520 acres, with facilities for football, cricket, bowls and tennis. The Borough is fortunate that in addtion to many acres of public and private open space, it has some 1,250 acres of Epping Forest and Hainault Forest within it boundaries.

And the future of recreation is also receiving attention. Plans are being made to restore hundreds of acres of Fairlop Plain in the north-east of the Borough, after gravel extraction. The major use will be recreational, ranging from a golf course to a huge sports centre, with nature walks, cycle racing track, and horse riding and sailing.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The administrative area, comprising the former Boroughs of Richmond, Twickenham and Barnes, was incorporated as a London Borough by Charter in pursuance of the London Government Act 1963.

Within the Borough there are approximately 5,394 acres of public open space and pleasure grounds, including Hampton Court Palace, Home Park, Bushy Park, Richmond Park, Old Deer Park, Kew Gardens and Ham, Sheen and Barnes Commons. The River Thames flows through the Borough and provides boating and many pleasant riverside walks. With the exception of a few yards, the whole of the Oxford and Cambridge boat race, the course of which runs from Putney to Mortlake, is rowed along that part of the Thames which lies within the Borough. The famous Rugby ground of Twickenham is also within the Borough of Richmond upon Thames as is Kneller Hall, the home of the Royal Military School of Music.

The area is mainly residential. The Mayoral allowance is £1,500.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Borough was formed on 1st April 1965 by the amalgamation of the former Metropolitan Boroughs of Bermondsey, Camberwell and Southwark.

It stretches from the River Thames to Crystal Palace, and contains a variety of industrial, commercial and residential development. The northern part of the Borough is mainly commercial and industrial, whilst the southern part is mainly residential. The whole area was subjected to heavy aerial bombardment during World War II, particularly in the riverside and dock areas of Bermondsey and Rotherhithe.

Two cathedrals are situated in the Borough Southwark Cathedral, adjacent to London Bridge, and St. George's (RC) Cathedral in St. George's Road, about one-quarter mile from the Elephant and Castle.

The Borough is fortunate in possessing numerous Open Spaces totalling in all some 350 acres including Peckham Rye and Park, Southwark Park and Lady Geraldine Harmsworth Park.

The South London Art Gallery was reopened in 1949 after having been closed by enemy action, the Cuming Museum in Walworth Road houses a collection illustrative of life in the area from the earliest times to the present day, and the Livesey Museum in the Old Kent Road displays changing exhibitions of local interest.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The London Borough of Sutton was created in 1965 through the amalgamation of the former Boroughs of Sutton and Cheam, and Beddington and Wallington, and the Urban District of Carshalton.

All these localities are rich in historic associations. Historic buildings include All Saints Church, Carshalton (12th Century); the Lumley Chapel, St. Dunstan's Church, Cheam; Beddington Church (14th Century); the Great Hall of Beddington Place. Cheam has a number of old timber-framed houses. Sutton is on the southern edge of Greater London with easy access to Central London and the South Coast. Bordered by open countryside on its southern boundary, it has good rail services to other parts of South London and the South Coast and is served by London Transport and London Country bus and Green Line coach routes.

Mainly residential in character, with some light industry, the area is a popular choice with commuters.

It has a wide range of residential properties and its many parks and open spaces make Sutton especially attractive to families with young children.

Sutton itself has an excellent shopping centre with most of the major chain stores represented, plus a variety of smaller shops, restaurants and other services. There are good shopping facilities at Wallington, Carshalton, Cheam, Worcester Park and Rosehill, with smaller shopping centres serving the main residential areas.

The River Wandle rises in the Borough and flows north to the Thames. There are 977 acres of parks and open spaces including The Oaks, the estate once leased to the 12th Earl of Derby. This gave its name to The Oaks horse race which, with the Derby, is run annually on Epsom Racecourse.

The residential areas of Sutton, Cheam, Worcester Park, Carshalton, Beddington and Wallington were rapidly developed between the first and second world wars. At the south-eastern corner of the Borough lies the former Croydon Airport site, which has been developed as a residential neighbourhood known as Roundshaw with its own shopping centre, schools, library and community centre, playing fields and open space.

An allowance of £1,750 per annum is made to the Mayor.

Parliamentary Constituencies: Bethnal Green and Bow, Stepney and Poplar.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Borough, formed by the London Government Act 1963, comprises the area of the former Metropolitan Boroughs of Bethnal Green, Poplar and Stepney. The name is a resurrection from the past when 143 years ago the three parishes of Bethnal Green, Poplar and Stepney formed part of the Borough of Tower Hamlets, the result of the passing of the Reform Act of 1832.

The whole of the present-day southern boundary consists of river frontage, including the Docklands redevelopment area. The Council is a member of the Dockland Joint Committee. But it is not only the Dockland area of the Borough which is changing. The Council is well up in its clearance programme and new Council housing is being completed every year. The target is 1,000 homes annually. At present, the Council has 16½ thousand homes. However, there are many fine historical buildings in the borough and the Council has made several conservation areas and a large general improvement area. In fact the Borough has many tourist attractions, including the Tower of London, the Royal Mint and the famous Petticoat Lane Market.

Within the Borough boundaries there lies 180·80 acres of open space administered by the Greater London Council, including part of Victoria Park on the northern boundaries; a further 175 acres of open space is administered by the Council itself.

The Council, as a Social Service Authority, runs many children's homes, day centres for elderly and handicapped and old people's homes. It also gives wide home support services and has a reputation for a very high standard in Social Services.

The Council maintains three holiday homes, which are open all the year round for residents of the Borough and a hotel at Hayling Island to provide holidays for the handicapped of the Borough.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Borough assumed full powers and duties on 1st April 1965, under the London Government Act 1963, and comprises the former Essex Boroughs of Chingford, Leyton and Walthamstow.

It adjoins the Metropolitan green belt and is bounded by Epping Forest and the valley of the River Lea. It is predominantly a residential area with belts of industry and is linked directly with central London by train and bus services.

The Borough has many acres of forest land within its boundary and also controls a large number of parks and open spaces with facilities for sport and entertainment. Two open air swimming pools at Whipps Cross, Leytonstone, and Larkswood, Chingford, are a special feature providing healthy recreation for thousands throughout the summer season. There are indoor baths at Leyton, and a large new indoor swimming pool, having a capacity for 640 bathers, was opened at Chingford Road, Walthamstow, in May 1966. The Borough also possesses three Assembly Halls in which social and cultural functions are held the whole year round. A number of fine modern schools ranging from primary to secondary and grammar establishments are within the Borough.

It is from the words of William Morris, the poet, craftsman and artist, who lived at one time in Walthamstow, that the Borough takes its motto, "Fellowship is Life".

Parliamentary Constituencies (3); the Cities of London and Westminster; Paddington; St. Marylebone.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Created under the London Government Act 1963 by the amalgamation of the Metropolitan Boroughs of Paddington, St. Marylebone and Westminster.

The City of Westminster has the largest rateable value of any rating authority in the United Kingdom. 23 per cent of the City (1,258 acres) is open space, including London's finest parks—Hyde Park, St. James's Park, Green Park, Regent's Park (part) and Kensington Gardens (part), together with Victoria Embankment Gardens and Paddington Recreation Ground.

Buckingham and St. James's Palaces are in the City of Westminster as are most of the Government and official buildings, the Houses of Parliament, Westminster Abbey, Westminster Cathedral, the National Gallery, the Law Courts, the Royal Albert Hall and other famous buildings. The Council owns and manages Porchester Hall, Seymour Hall and Caxton Hall and it provides two community centres and a Coroner's Court and mortuary.

'There are nearly 7,000 statutorily listed buildings of special architectural or historic interest in the City and considerable areas of special amenity value amounting to over one third of the City's acreage are designated as Conservation Areas.

The Council has provided twenty off-street garages with 7,000 car spaces.

The public libraries issue over three and a half million books and gramophone records annually. Emphasis is given to reference services and there are special collections on music, medicine, fine arts, local history and archives. The Social Services Department has four decentralized Area Offices supported by a central administration. Services provided include an adoption agency, homes for the elderly (three seaside holiday homes), children's homes and hostels, day nurseries, home help service, meals on wheels, day centre with lunch club for the handicapped and two hostels and training centre for the mentally subnormal and mentally ill.

The Council has over 18,000 dwellings under management. A further 2,160 dwellings are either under construction or programmed to start during the next four years. Heating and hot water for 3.200 dwellings is provided by exhaust steam from Battersea Power Station. A similar scheme serves 682 flats using steam from the Council's Porchester Baths. Post-1945 estates have been provided with as much open space as possible. Extensive provision has been made for car parking.

About 219 miles of street are cleansed and about 170,000 tonnes of refuse are collected annually; the frequency of both refuse collection and street cleansing varying according to the importance of the area and the density of the population. The salvage of about 6,000 tonnes of paper and cardboard per annum yields an income of £150,000.

SECTION 34

DISTRICT COUNCILS

DISTRICT COUNCILS

The Local Government Act 1972 abolished with effect from 1st April 1974 the 83 County borough councils
259 Non-county borough councils (excluding Douglas I.O.M.)
522 Urban district councils
468 Rural district councils (excluding Isles of Scilly)
in England and Wales and replaced them by two types of district councils, viz. metropolitan and non-metropolitan, as follows:
36 Metropolitan district councils }
296 Non-metropolitan district councils } in England
37 Non-metropolitan district councils in Wales
The 7 rural boroughs became parishes.

In this Section the districts have been arranged in alphabetical order irrespective of type and (M) signifies a Metropolitan district while (W) refers to a Welsh district.

Each district council consists of a chairman and councillors.

Elections of metropolitan district councillors were held on 1st May 1975 and will take place every year thereafter except in county council election years. The term of office for metropolitan district councillors is four years, one third in each ward retiring in 1975, 1976 and 1978.

Non-metropolitan district councils can, not more than once in ten years, request the Secretary of State to make an order providing for whole council elections or for a system of elections by thirds in any year.

Where all district councillors are elected at one time elections took place 6th May 1976, then 3rd May 1979 and every fourth year thereafter; where an order specifies elections by thirds, these elections will take place in the year when the order comes into force and every year thereafter except for the years in which county council elections are held. Councillors elected in 1973 and 1976 will serve for three years and those elected thereafter for four years. Elections will normally be held on the first Thursday in May.

The principal functions of district councils are summarized below:

Airports
Baths and Pools
Car Parks, off-street
Museums and Art Galleries
Education
Planning
Social Services
Cemeteries and Crematoria
Food and Drugs Act, 1955, Sec. 8
Markets and Fairs
Parks and Open Spaces
Housing
Refuse collection

Non-metropolitan districts

Baths and Pools
Car Parks, off-street
Museums and Art Galleries
Planning
Public Transport undertakings
Cemeteries and Crematoria
Food and Drugs Act, 1955 Sec. 8
Markets and Fairs
Parks and Open Spaces
Housing
Refuse collection

Welsh district councils will in addition to those in the right-hand column have the following functions:
Libraries, where so ordered by the Secretary of State

Food and Drugs, where so ordered by the Secretary of State Weights and Measures where so ordered by the Secretary of State
Refuse disposal
Car Parks, on-street (subject to approval of County Council)
Allotments Acts

Agency arrangements
A County Council may arrange for district councils within its area to carry out county council functions on an agency basis except police and fire services and, in non-metropolitan counties, education and social services.

ASSOCIATION OF METROPOLITAN AUTHORITIES

Chairman: Sir Robert Thomas, DL, JP (Greater Manchester CC); Secretary: T. H. Caulcott, 36 Old Queen St., London, SW1H 9JE (01-930 9861).

Constitution

The Association has in membership all the authorities eligible for membership, i.e.:

(i) the Greater London Council (including the Inner London Education Authority);

(ii) the London borough councils which for the purpose of this constitution, include the Corporation of the City of London;

(iii) the metropolitan county councils;

(iv) the metropolitan district councils.

(See also Section 32).

ASSOCIATION OF DISTRICT COUNCILS

Chairman: Comdr. J. D. Lock, RN; Secretary: S. Rhodes, OBE, LLB, 25 Buckingham Gate, London, SW1E 6LE (01-828 7931); Deputy Secretary: W. R. Warrington, LLB, DPA, Barrister-at-Law.

Constitution

(As approved at a representative meeting of district councils on 30th November, 1973.)

The Association consists of such of the non-metropolitan district councils in England and the district councils in Wales as desire to be in membership.

Objects

The objects of the Association are:

(a) To protect and further the interests of the district councils as they may be affected by legislation or proposed legislation or otherwise and to promote a high standard of administration of the public services in the districts.

(b) To join, where appropriate, with other local authority Associations (i) to promote the interests of local government in general and (ii) to provide such central services for the district councils as may be considered to be appropriate.

COUNCIL FOR THE PRINCIPALITY

Chairman 1976/77: Coun. J. G. Jones, Ynys Mon District Council
Vice-Chairman 1976/77: Coun. B. J. Scully, Blaenau Gwent District Council
Secretary: S. Jones, Chief Executive, Merthyr Tydfil Borough Council

The Council was created following local government reorganisation and held its first meeting on 7 May 1974. Under a constitution adopted on 5 July 1974, membership is open to all those district councils in Wales which are members of the Association of District Councils whose constitution provides for regional groupings of the ADC's members in England and for Wales a Council for the Principality. All 37 district councils in Wales are represented on the Council by one member per district.

Meetings are held at approximately quarterly intervals with the Annual Meeting in June and after meeting in different parts of Wales, it has been decided to hold all future meetings in Llandrindod Wells as the most centrally placed venue.

The objects of the Council are to protect and advance the powers, interests, rights and privileges of constituent councils and to watch over these powers etc as they may be affected by legislation or proposed legislation or otherwise.

The status of the Council as the "Welsh arm of the ADC" and as representing all Welsh district councils has been quickly recognised by government departments in consultations and in appointments, e.g. the Local Government Act 1974 provides that the representatives on the representative body for Wales shall be nominated by the Council, and two members of the Land Authority for Wales are nominated by the Council.

FORMER BOROUGHS WHICH ARE NOW TOWNS WITH CHARTER TRUSTEES

Section 246 of the Local Government Act 1972 provides that where the area of a city or borough on 1st April 1974 became wholly comprised in a district not entitled to the status of a borough and that former city or borough did not on that date become a parish in England or a community in Wales having a separate community council:

There shall from that date be a body corporate by the name of "the Charter Trustees of the City" or "the Charter Trustees of the Town" as the case may be, with the addition of the name of the former city or borough consisting of the district councillors for the wards wholly or partly comprising the area of the former city or borough or, if the number of those councillors is less than three, consisting of those councillors and such number of local government electors for that area appointed by the district council as will make the number of Charter Trustees up to three.

The Charter Trustees may in every year elect one of their members to be city or town mayor and another to be deputy city or town mayor.

Any powers to appoint local officers of dignity exercisable immediately before 1st April 1974 by the corporation of the city or borough shall be exercisable after that date by the Charter Trustees.

Notes: The population figures are taken from the Registrar General's estimate at 30th June, 1975. (M) following the name indicates Metropolitan, (MB) Metropolitan Borough, (B) Borough, (WB) Welsh Borough.

The rates quoted below are on commercial premises, including county precept, charges for sewerage, sewage disposal but exclude parish rates and water charges. They also exclude rate relief for domestic premises which in 1975–76 and 1976–77 amounted to 18·5p in England and 36p in Wales.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

In the administrative county of Caernarfon:
- the borough of Conwy.
- the urban districts of Betws-y-Coed, Llandudno, Llanfairfechan and Penmaenmawr;
- the rural district of Nant Conwy.

In the administrative county of Denbigh:
- the urban district of Llanrwst;
- in the rural district of Aled, the parish of Llansantffraid Glan Conwy;
- in the rural district of Hiraethog, the parishes of Eglwysbach, Llanddoget, Llanrwst Rural and Tir Ifan.

The area of the authority extends on both sides of the River Conwy as far as its source at Lake Conwy and the Snowdonia National Park covers most of the hinterland. The narrow coastal plain comprises four holiday resorts with lengthy sandy beaches and comprehensive facilities. The tourist industry is of paramount importance and its varied aspects are well reflected in the existence of mountains, rivers, climbing centres, craft industries, historic sites and other pleausure resorts.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Workington MB, Cockermouth UD, Keswick UD, Maryport UD, Cockermouth RD, Wigton RD.

Historically, the name Allerdale derives from the early 12th century with the creation of the Barony of Allerdale, its baronial seat being at Cockermouth Castle. Cumberland was later divided into parliamentary 'wards'; the ward of 'Allerdale Below Derwent' and part of 'Allerdale Above Derwent' are now contained in the present district.

The district is bounded by the Lake District mountains and the Solway Firth. It includes mountains and sparsely populated fells; hill farms on marginal land and intensive dairy farming on the Solway Plain; and a more populous western coastal belt in which the old heavy industries of steel and coal are rapidly giving way to new lighter industries. In post-war years and particularly during the last decade many new industries have been established along the west coast including plastics, footwear, electronics, fibres and the motor industry.

During the last few years communications have improved dramatically; the motorway is just outside the Allerdale boundary and the A66 improvements started in 1974 will link the western coast with the M6 by a fast motor road. The electrification of the Carlisle–London railway came into operation early in 1973.

Tourism increases annually, and is by far the most important industry in some parts of Allerdale. The district includes Keswick and the popular North Western area of the Lake District, six of the major lakes, and within the district the coastline is proving increasingly popular with holidaymakers.

Items of historical interest cover the time span from the stone circles of Keswick and Elva Plain; the Roman forts at Maryport, Papcastle and Wigton; the silver, lead and other mines and pack-horse routes in the Lake District; the more recent history of the industrial revolution on the west coast and of course the homes and haunts of the Lake District poets and the setting for Hugh Walpole's saga of Rogue Herries and his descendants.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,250.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Alnwick UD, Amble UD, Alnwick RD, Rothbury RD.

The Alnwick District Council, situated in Mid Northumberland, lies in one of the most beautiful parts of the country. The district is mainly rural but includes a number of important towns and villages and the administrative centre is in Alnwick, the county town of Northumberland.

The area is steeped in history, dating back to very early times, and has many places of interest including castles at Alnwick, Dunstanburgh, Rothbury and Warkworth; the first named being the home of the Dukes of Northumberland. Evidence still exists of Roman outposts, the invasion by William the Conqueror and camp sites made by the Ancient Britons.

For the more energetic there are numerous walks in the hills and dales particularly in the Cheviots and towards Rothbury; a large part of this area is included in the Northumberland National Park. The east coast comprises lovely villages with sandy bays stretching from Amble to Newton-by-the-Sea and including the famous fishing village of Craster.

The whole of the district is very attractive to tourists and thousands of people visit the area every year.

Industry is mainly light as one would anticipate in a predominantly rural area, but unemployment is well above the national average and attempts are being made to attract further industries into the area.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Alfreton UD, Belper UD, Heanor UD, Ripley UD and Belper RD.

The eastern half of the area contains most of the industrial companies of the district and is where numerous and diverse new businesses have become established following the closing of the coal mines. Some of the disused sites have been reclaimed and now accommodate new industries. Other sites are programmed to be reclaimed for the same purpose as well as for open spaces.

The western half of the area is mainly of a rural character containing farm land and some of the country's most beautiful scenery, lying as it does on the border of the Peak National Park.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Arundel MB, Bognor Regis UD, Littlehampton UD, Chichester RD (parishes of Aldingbourne, Barnham, Bersted, Climping, Eastergate, Ford, Madehurst, Middleton-on-Sea, Pagham, Slindon, Tortington, Walberton and Yapton), Worthing RD (parishes of Angmering, Burpham, Clapham, East Preston, Ferring, Findon, Houghton, Kingston, Lyminster, Patching, Poling, Rustington, South Stoke and Warningcamp).

The district includes the resort towns of Bognor Regis and Littlehampton, the ancient borough of Arundel and neighbouring parishes which were formerly parts of the Rural Districts of Chichester and Worthing. It has a seaboard of over eighteen miles and extends inland to include part of the South Downs. The district is well served by railway and bus services and is within commuting distance of London. The river Arun, which reaches the sea at Littlehampton, forms the natural geographic division between the east and west parts of the district. The central administrative services are located in Littlehampton with an area office in Bognor Regis and an information office in Arundel. A number of light industries have been established in the district, particularly at Bognor Regis, Littlehampton and Rustington.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of Basildon UD and part of Thurrock UD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

An area undergoing considerable development, the southern portion of the district is being developed as Basildon New Town which has expanded to some 89,000 population. Present proposals provide for ultimate population of New Town to reach 134,000.

There are some 169 factories on various industrial estates and a modern pedestrian shopping precinct in the town centre. In the northern part of the district are the two expanding townships of Billericay (28,000) and Wickford (25,000). The Fenchurch Street–Southend railway line runs through the southern part of the district with stations at Laindon, Basildon town centre and Pitsea. The Liverpool Street–Southend railway line runs through the northern part of the district with stations at Billericay and Wickford. The A127 and A13 roads also traverse the district. The Council administers some 1,000 acres of parks, recreation grounds, open spaces and allotments, including an 18-hole municipal golf course. There is a championship-size swimming pool in Basildon; district pools at Pitsea and Wickford; and the Town Gate Theatre in Basildon. Dinghy sailing facilities are available at Pitsea Marshes. As well as the considerable development, the area contains several beauty spots including Langdon Hills which is one of the highest points in Essex.

Parliamentary Constituency: Bassetlaw.

Regional Water Authority: Severn-Trent.

Agencies. The following regional water authority function is carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Sewerage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

East Retford MB, Worksop MB, East Retford RD (part), Worksop RD (part).

The district consists of the existing Boroughs and Rural Districts of East Retford and Worksop in North Nottinghamshire, having a population of approximately 100,000.

Bassetlaw is a fast developing area, possessing considerable potential for industry, commerce and office development. A variety of firms are already established in the Worksop and Retford areas. In Worksop, the Dukeries Industrial Area of approximately 100 acres has sites available on attractive freehold or leasehold terms. Land is also available for industry in Retford and in other parts of Bassetlaw.

Bassetlaw has good communication links with most parts of the country, being in close proximity to the M1, the M18 and the A1(M) which neatly bisects the district. Retford is on the main line from Kings Cross to Edinburgh and also the Liverpool to Grimsby line.

Sporting activities are well catered for in the district with both public facilities and many private clubs. The Sports Centres at Worksop and Bircotes provide a comprehensive range of recreational activities together with social bars and lounge facilities. A third sports centre is opening in July 1976. A new golf course is under construction at Worksop.

Clumber Park, a National Trust Property, is open to the public at all times and attracts thousands of visitors each year. King's Park in Retford, comprising an area of some 29 acres, is also an ideal recreational venue. In addition to formal gardens, tennis courts and a bowling green, there is a large area of open space for picnics, relaxation and for play.

The Nottinghamshire County Council is the Education Authority for the district and has provided excellent facilities for school, Adult and Further Education. The Worksop College Public School has facilities for 400 boys and there are several minor private schools within the area.

Agencies. Highway maintenance and Drainage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of the Bath CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The Hot Springs have been the centre of this world-famous Health Resort since Roman times; and the Roman Baths complex forms the most extensive group of Roman Buildings still in existence in this country. The 15th century Abbey stands on the site of the Saxon Abbey in which Edgar was crowned as the first King of all England in 973 AD. In the eighteenth century Bath became England's most fashionable centre of social life and an extensive programme of building was carried out by John Wood (Senior and Junior) and other famous architects. The Pump Room, Guildhall, Assembly Rooms, Roman Baths, Art Gallery and the Museum of Costume are under the control of the Council and open to the public. The Holburne of Menstrie Museum, the American Museum and 1 Royal Crescent are not Council owned, but are are also open to the public.

The Council in partnership with the Government and individual owners is carrying out an extensive programme of cleaning and restoring the facades of many of the City's famous Georgian Buildings.

The Bath Festival is held annually during May or June.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Beverley MB, Haltemprice UD, Beverley RD.

The new borough comprises an attractive area to the north of the River Humber. Its name is derived from the town of Beverley which was incorporated by Charter of Queen Elizabeth I on 15th July 1573 and which is a popular tourist centre with a fine Minster and many other buildings of interest to the visitor.

There are also a number of picturesque villages in the surrounding rural area which contains some of the best agricultural land in the country.

The South Eastern part of the district comprises the townships of Willerby, Cottingham and Hessle which are popular residential areas.

There is considerable residential development taking place in the borough and this will continue in the foreseeable future. Industrial expansion is also envisaged and the district already contains some important industrial concerns.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,380.

Agencies. Highways, Refuse Disposal: County Council. Sewage purification: Water Authority.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Blackburn CB, Darwen MB, Turton UD (part), Blackburn RD (parishes of Eccleshill, Livesey, Pleasington, Tockholes, Yate and Pickup Bank).

Date of Charter: 15th May 1974; became Borough 1974.

Once the weaving centre of the world, Blackburn is no longer pre-eminently a textile town. It now has a wide spread of industry with radio valve manufacture, electronic, heavy and precision engineering, paper felt manufacture and a prominent tufted carpet machinery manufacturer. It is the centre of the brewing industry for a large part of the north and other products include slippers, car accessories, paints and, of course, textiles.

Also recognised as a market and retail centre, the town now boasts one of the finest comprehensive covered markets in the country, completed in 1964, and was awarded the 'NALGO Accolade' for its design. The entire town centre, covering over 100 acres, is also being developed on a comprehensive basis as a traffic-free shopping precinct, with car parking above and service access below. The first phase, completed in 1970, comprises 60 shops, 3 supermarkets, a departmental store and also a large luxury nightclub providing entertainment and catering facilities for 1,000 people. The second phase, completed in 1972, provides additional shopping facilities and more car-parking spaces. Work on the third phase has recently started.

Darwen is a town which has largely developed since the time of the industrial revolution on its basic industries of cotton spinning and weaving, coal mining and the manufacture of paper. Although mining has lapsed and the cotton trade has shrunk considerably, wallpaper manufacture with a world wide distribution is still an important part of Darwen's industrial scene. The introduction of other traditional and contemporary industries, such as engineering and the manufacture of paint and plastics, has now provided for a wider field of employment.

The Borough provides a full range of recreational facilities including a Community Centre and an athletic track built to Olympic standards.

The Borough has a cathedral, to which substantial extensions have been completed and within the rural area of the Borough, Turton Tower, a 12th century mansion which also houses a museum, is open to the public.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,500. (Deputy Mayor's allowance: £250).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of the Blackpool CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Blackpool is recognised as the largest and most popular holiday resort in the country. Millions of pounds have been spent by the Corporation and private enterprises in the provision of a most extensive range of amenities and attractions which include a 7-mile-long promenade, 3 piers, pleasure beach, model village, open and covered swimming pools—the Derby Bath as one of few pools in the United Kingdom equipped to Olympic standards is the frequent scene of national and international swimming and diving events—and provides a full range of remedial baths, pleasure parks, extensive recreational facilities and a unique choice of indoor entertainments.

The latest Corporation development is a half-million-pound Zoo Park, adjacent to Stanley Park. Outdoors there are two golf courses, crown and flat bowling greens, hard and grass tennis, courts, and sailing and boating on the open sea and at Stanley Park. The cricket season provides league, county and representative games and there are senior league fixtures for both Soccer and Rugby League enthusiasts.

Entertainment is provided on a fabulous scale and the summer-season programme includes ten stage shows, dance halls and cinemas. Below the 520-ft. high Tower is housed a magnificent ballroom, roof gardens, aquarium, menagerie and an international circus. Each autumn the Corporation spends approximately £250,000 on an extensive scheme of decorative illuminations and the success of this attraction draws upwards of 4 million late-season visitors. The Corporation owns and manages the Blackpool Airport and has services linked with the Continent and various parts of the United Kingdom. Customs facilities are provided.

Modern electric tramcars are a feature of the promenade transport service.

Mayoral personal allowance: £2,600.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

In the administrative county of Gwent the urban districts of Abertillery, Brynmawr, Eddw Vale, Nantygle and Blaina and Tredegar.
in the rural district of Crickhowell, the parish of Llanelly.

The district is situated in the north western part of the County of Gwent.

The area in the past has depended on the coal, iron and steel industries for its industrial base but this is now being diversified. The area is well served by the Heads of the Valleys Road which is linked by dual-carriageway with the M5 and M50 and gives easy access to the Midlands, the North of England and West Wales, while the M4 provides good communications to London and the South of England.

The district has substantial investments in housing, roads, town centre redevelopment programmes and in the provision of industrial sites. Considerable expenditure has also been incurred in the reclamation of former derelict industrial land, which is now available for new development and for recreational purposes.

The Brecon Beacons National Park lies partly within the Council's area and includes facilities for hill- and mountain-climbing, fishing, pony trekking, sailing and canoeing. Within the district are three indoor leisure centres which provide excellent sporting facilities for all ages.

Mayor's annual allowance: £1,900.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Derbyshire CC.

Audit by District Auditor.

Agencies. Planning, Consumer Protection (including Food and Drugs Act, Trades Descriptions Act, Weights and Measures etc.), Libraries and Highways (environmental maintenance).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Bolsover UD, Blackwell RD, Clowne RD.

The Blackwell area is pleasantly situated on the border of Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire, and is essentially a mining district. The area has many historical associations, including Hardwick Hall, the Elizabethan Mansion, formerly the seat of the Duke of Devonshire and now maintained by the National Trust. The churches in the area, in many cases, date back a number of centuries.

The Parish of Bolsover is mainly a mining area and contains the largest smokeless fuel plant in the country. Bolsover has a commanding castle which goes back to Norman times. The present building dates from the 17th century.

Clowne's principal industry is coal mining with a certain amount of agriculture. Its historical associations include Barlborough Hall, built in 1583 and now used as a school, and Steetley Chapel the finest example of Norman architecture in the county. Exhibited in many museums are the finds from Creswell Crags, an archaeological site which was a human habitation more than 20,000 years ago. There is an industrial site at Station Road, Clowne.

Chairman's annual allowance: £500.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Humberside CC.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Goole MB, Goole RD, Howden RD, Isle of Axholme RD.

The Boothferry District is centred around the Port of Goole and comprises the former rural districts of Goole, Howden and the Isle of Axholme in addition to the town of Goole.

The district stretches from the edge of the Yorkshire Wolds at Holme on Spalding Moor to the bed of the River Trent at Owston Ferry. Five rivers form the key feature of the district which consists mainly of agricultural land.

Industry is present around the developing port and town of Goole, which is the most inland port on the east coast standing 50 miles from the North Sea on the River Ouse. Its frequent services to the Continent provide an economical outlet for exports of the great industrial areas of West Yorkshire, Lancashire and the Midlands, with which the port is connected by road, rail and inland waterways. The completion of the M62 motorway, which passes within two miles of the docks, makes Goole one of the best motorway-connected ports in the U.K. The proposed M18 motorway will also link the southern part of the district with the major industrial areas in this country and abroad.

The area has strong religious connections with Epworth being the birthplace of John Wesley and Howden being noted for its ancient Minster.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the Bournemouth CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Bournemouth possesses the reputation of being a leading resort and holiday town in Great Britain. This reputation is based on many factors, including its equable climate, its position on the sea, the vast unspoiled countryside of Dorset, Wiltshire and the New Forest which forms its hinterland, the good road and rail communications now supplemented by air travel facilities through Bournemouth (Hurn) Airport, a regional shopping centre of high standard, extensive entertainment and recreational facilities, and a wide range of accommodation for visitors including the largest number of first class hotel rooms of any town outside London. The Council is continually reviewing the facilities which are necessary to meet the full potential demands and the improvement of the town's attractions.

The town is proud of its miles of sea-front and sandy beaches extending from Alum Chine to Hengistbury Head which have been developed in a manner which preserves natural beauty, and although road access is accorded, the principal beach areas are completely free from vehicular traffic. The Council is responsible for providing conference, theatre, restaurant and café facilities, and has plans for considerable redevelopment to provide seating for up to 5,000 persons in one hall together with ancillary facilities necessary to accommodate the largest conventions and conferences, with a view to attracting international as well as British patronage. There are over 1,800 acres of public parks and gardens including three municipally- owned 18-hole golf courses.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of Easthampstead RD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The district is an attractive forested area with easy access to London, Reading and Windsor and has many areas of outstanding beauty. The administrative centre of the area is Bracknell which in 1949 was designated the site of a New Town.

The New Town comprises 3,285 acres and the 1981 designated population of the town is 60,000. Within the New Town area there is a wide diversity of industry. The surrounding parishes are also expanding rapidly and it is expected that the population of the district will grow to over 100,000 within the next decade. The Council is actively involved in the provision of amenities in the district. A Sports Centre with running track, football pitch, grandstand and a wide range of indoor sporting and social activities including three swimming pools has already been opened and a Municipal Golf Course has been established in co-operation with a neighbouring district. Picnic areas have been established at Bagshot Road and Caesar's Camp and a large Arts Centre covering a wide range of activities has recently been opened.

Chairman's annual allowance: £800.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The industrial and commercial centre of Bradford Metropolitan District is the city of Bradford and its direct links with the motorway network are increasing its importance in this respect. However, whilst Bradford dominates the District in terms of population and industrial output, the other towns, though smaller, make a valuable contribution to the economic and cultural vitality of the area.

The District is divided in two by the Aire Valley, and it is in this valley that the industry is concentrated, in such towns as Keighley and Shipley. Historically the area has always been associated with wool and textiles but industrial activity now covers a much wider range. Keighley, for example, is well known for its high quality machine tools and the engineering and electrical industries are well represented in the area. Many years' experience of international trading has helped to develop considerable commercial expertise, particularly in banking, insurance, exporting and marketing.

The District is not wholly industrial, however. To the North West dairy farming predominates, whilst to the West are the wild moors of Brontë Country and the village of Haworth, which attracts many thousands of tourists each year, through its close association with the Brontë family. North East is Ilkley Moor and the town of Ilkley on the banks of the River Wharfe. Ilkley is another centre for visitors, a spa town standing at the Southern entrance to the Yorkshire Dales.

Leisure activities are well catered for with plentiful facilities for a wide range of pursuits, indoor and outdoor. In addition to provision for swimming, athletics and similar activities, a number of multipurpose leisure and sports centres are being developed. The Council administers a number of public halls which cater for a wide variety of community activities and it owns large areas of parkland and public open space—the St. Ives Estate at Bingley has an 18-hole municipal golf course.

There are six established museums, one of which, the Bradford Industrial Museum, provides a unique record of the wool textile and allied industries.

The Bradford Metropolitan District is a unification, under one administration, of a number of places which are inter-dependent in terms of housing, employment, shopping facilities and some local authority services. Unity does not mean uniformity, however, and each town and village still retains its own character and individuality, each with special needs which can now be catered for more adequately.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Braintree and Bocking UD, Halstead UD, Witham UD, Halstead RD, Braintree RD.

The new district has been created by the amalgamation of three urban areas and two rural districts, giving an almost equal population mix. Two of the urban areas have existing town expansion schemes with the GLC; the rural areas vary in population and facilities depending on geographical position, while many villages are of a pleasant and historically attractive character.

The area is a large one, but with fairly easy communications to the proposed administrative centre at Braintree. The farthest village from the centre is about fifteen miles. In and around the three urban areas (Braintree, Halstead and Witham) development both residential and industrial is becoming rapid.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of the former county borough of Brighton.

As well as carrying out the various sea-front and sea-defence works associated with a popular seaside resort, the Council owns and manages many of the town's well-known tourist attractions. The Pavilion Estate with its world-famous Royal Pavilion is used for the Regency Exhibition, conferences and social functions and "The Dome" for entertainments, concerts, etc. The Estate also houses the museum, art gallery and the central library.

The Booth Museum with its collection of British birds was bequeathed to the Council by its creator E. T. Booth and Preston Manor with its museum and adjoining public park was given to the town by the Stanford Family. The race ground was presented to the town by the Race Stand Trustees and is managed by lessees who are members of the Council.

The Council has substantial land-holdings in the town as well as approximately 15,000 acres of the surrounding downland. In 1947 the Council acquired the Stanmer Estate which comprises approximately, 4,958 acres of land situated on both sides of the Lewes-Brighton road. The Council has leased Stanmer House and approximately 159 acres of land on the estate to the University of Sussex for the establishment of the University.

Conferences

An increasing number of conferences and exhibitions are held in Brighton each year and the town is one of the few resorts to employ staff specially for this purpose.

As part of the 15-acre Churchill Square Development, work is well advanced on a 5,000 seater multi-purpose conference, exhibition and entertainments centre. To be known as the Brighton Centre it will be the largest of its kind in Britain incorporating the latest designs in audio-visual aids, simultaneous interpretation equipment, press and television facilities.

Brighton Festival of the Arts

The Brighton Festival of the Arts is held in July. Its object is to point to contemporary and future developments in the arts against a background of Brighton's history and traditions. International artists of drama, music and the arts regularly appear in an extensive programme of main and 'fringe' events.

Mayoral annual allowance: £5,000.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Road Safety; Highway Maintenance; Provision of Transport; Sewer Maintenance; Works carried out under S.15 of Water Act 1973; Some Maintenance of Buildings; Printing.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of the Bristol CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Bristol is one of the oldest cities in the United Kingdom and it was created a county in 1373, and a county borough in 1881. On 1st April 1974 it became one of the districts in the new county of Avon and is the largest non-metropolitan district in England and Wales. The city can now be said to be at the cross roads of Britain, with its proximity to the junction of the M4 and M5 motorways. It has excellent rail connections and its own international airport. In addition, the city operates the largest municipally-owned dock undertaking in the United Kingdom.

The City Council delegates its powers to the Docks Committee and this body acts under the style of "The Port of Bristol Authority" being responsible for conservancy, navigational aids and the provision of capital equipment such as quays, sheds and cranes. The port comprises the Avonmouth and Portishead Docks with a new West Dock being constructed at the mouth of the River Avon. Scheduled for completion in 1976, West Dock will accommodate six vessels of 70,000 tonnes deadweight at any one time, entry being gained by a lock 1,200 feet long by 140 feet wide. A mile long private access road links the dock with the M5 motorway interchange No. 19 at Portbury and good connections to the National rail network exist. Principal imports through the existing facilities and associated trading estates are grain and animal feeding stuffs, refined petroleum products, metals, ores, tea and forest products.

Bristol's airport is situated at Lulsgate (A38 Bristol to Bridgwater) about 6½ miles from the city centre. The main instrument runway of 6,600 feet enables aircraft such as the BAC 111, Boeing 737, Comet, Caravelle, Britannia, DC9 and Tristar, to operate from the Airport. It is increasingly used as a departure point especially for package tours to south western Europe. Scheduled international services link it with Ireland and the Continent. A full airfreight service is offered, including customs clearance and a road link to London Airport.

Its situation on the main transport arteries of Britain is leading to the city becoming increasingly popular as a venue for national and international conferences and a popular tourist centre. There are five large luxury hotels within the city and many others which can offer accommodation and other facilities, and visitors can enjoy themselves in almost 4,000 acres of open spaces, administered by the city. The city also operates twelve swimming pools, including one open air, and two comprehensive sports centres, with facilities for squash, badminton, table tennis, sauna, bowls, etc. It is intended that the city docks, which will be closing to commercial traffic, will be redeveloped with areas for business, residential and leisure activities. The city also boasts the largest entertainment complex in Europe as well as twenty-six cinemas and four theatres.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Part of Blofield and Flegg RD, St. Faith's and Aylsham RD.

The district covers an area to the north and east of Norwich. It comprises highly populated urban parishes around Norwich, a number of the Norfolk Broads and a considerable area of agricultural land. Wroxham, as the centre of the Norfolk Broads, is well-known as a holiday centre. The National Trust property, Blickling Hall, and the many fine churches throughout the district are a tourist attraction. There are a number of manufacturing industries in the district.

Parliamentary Constituency: Bromsgrove and Redditch.

Petty Sessional Divisions: Two.

Regional Water Authority: Severn-Trent.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Hereford and Worcester CC.

Agencies. The council has an agency agreement with the Severn-Trent Regional Water Authority under Section 15 of the Water Act, 1973, for the maintenance and construction of sewers in its district.

Additionally the council has an agency agreement with the Hereford and Worcester County Council under Section 101 of the Local Government Act, 1972, for the maintenance of roads within a defined urban cordon and the execution of highway improvements up to a value of £40,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Bromsgrove UD, Bromsgrove RD.

The district is situate on the southern boundary of the West Midlands metropolitan county and comprises the township of Bromsgrove, the villages of Catshill, Bournheath, Marlbrook, Blackwell, Barnt Green and Rubery and the fourteen parishes of the former Rural District of Bromsgrove. Bromsgrove itself is an ancient market town situate on the A38 approximately 13 miles south of Birmingham and about the same distance north of Worcester. It is also at the junction of main roads to Kidderminster, Stourbridge and Redditch. Whilst predominantly a residential area, in the life of which agriculture plays an important part, the district has its industrial side. Many residents are employed at the British Leyland motor works, situate on the northern boundary of the district, and in Bromsgrove itself at, inter alia, the home of Europe's largest forging organization, the Newton Works of Garrington's Limited, one of the companies in the vast GKN Group. There are two industrial estates, the property of the council, at Aston Fields, at present being extended, and at Rubery.

The district is well served from the educational viewpoint in that it possesses a public school, a college of further education and a teachers' training college, now combined to form a higher education complex, high schools and many excellent middle and primary schools. It is also well served by hospitals.

The council owns markets and allotments and various recreation grounds. There is a putting green and tennis courts at Crown Close. Sanders Park, not far from the town centre, contains further recreational facilities, viz. bowling green, tennis courts, putting green, etc.

Development in the parishes is mainly residential and has been rapid during the past few years. Several of the parishes are urban in character and have sewerage, house refuse collection, water and lighting facilities.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Cheshunt UD, Hoddesdon UD.

The borough lies in the south-eastern corner of Hertfordshire bordering Essex to the east and Greater London to the south, and is traversed by the A10 trunk road. The area is predominantly residential, yet has flourishing light industry and areas of Green Belt and woodland reservations, including part of the Broxbourne Woods Special Country Area. The Lee Valley Regional Park runs the length of the borough, and a wide range of recreational activity is catered for both in the town areas and in the countryside.

Frequent train services are available from various parts of the borough to Liverpool Street and connect with the London Underground network. Green Line coaches, London Country and London Transport bus services serve London and its northern suburbs, as well as the Hertfordshire and Essex countryside.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the Burnley CB, Padiham UD and parts of Burnley RD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The new authority will continue the progressive traditions of the combining authorities. It owns parks, putting greens, bowling greens, allotments, swimming pools, sports pavilions, tennis courts, a golf course, a pitch and putt course, a boating lake and a concert pavilion. A large sports complex has been constructed in the Town Centre and the final phases of the Central Area Redevelopment Scheme have commenced for completion by the end of 1976.

Concerts are provided throughout the season by the Municipal Symphony Orchestra and Choir. Other entertainment is provided by the Mid-Pennine Association for the Arts to which the Council is a main contributor and the erection of an Arts Centre is under active consideration.

The area is rich in historical interest and attractive countryside. Towneley Hall, now an art gallery and museum, holds great attraction for visitors and is set in beautiful parkland. Part of the area is designated as an area of outstanding natural beauty while another large portion is described as being of high landscape value.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
The county borough of Bury.
In the administrative county of Lancaster:
the boroughs of Prestwich and Radcliffe;
the urban districts of Tottington and Whitefield;
in the urban district of Ramsbottom, the Central, East, South and West wards.

The borough is pleasantly situated in the County of Greater Manchester and adjoins large areas of moorland and countryside which provide facilities for relaxation for both the walker and the motorist. Areas of great natural beauty such as the Ribble Valley and the Lake District are easy of access and the Lancashire Coast is little more than one hour's distance away by car.

The borough has the great asset of excellent road communications having within its boundaries the M66, a direct link to the M62 motorway which links the M6 and M1 motorways. The M62 motorway also provices a direct link to Manchester Airport which can now be reached from any part of the Borough, by road, within half an hour. In addition the Borough has a frequent train service to Manchester. A new road/rail interchange is at present being planned and this interchange will form the northern limit of the Piccadilly/Victoria underground scheme at present being planned for Manchester. This scheme provides for a route extending from Bury in the North and Alderley Edge in the south.

The population of the new borough is continuing to rise steadily and there has been a considerable amount of attractive private housing development in the area in recent years and this, along with other factors such as excellent educational and recreational facilities, has done much to increase the attractiveness of the borough as a residential area.

The industry of the area is extremely varied and the council is anxious to encourage the further development of industry and commerce in the Borough in order to ensure the continued prosperity of the area. Land and accommodation is available in the borough for industrial and commercial development and the Industrial Development Officer will be pleased to supply details.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,500.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of the Cambridge MB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Cambridge as the seat of an ancient university has a wealth of buildings of outstanding historic or architectural importance and is visited yearly by thousands of tourists, many of them from overseas. There are special facilities for tourists including a guide service, and the Town has a number of English Language schools which cater—particularly during the summer months—for overseas students. There are many commons and open spaces reaching into the centre of the city and excellent bathing facilities, indoor and outdoor.

Industry is diverse and although strictly controlled includes a number of light industrial undertakings of considerable size particularly in the electronics field, the Pye Group being an outstanding example.

A scheme of central area redevelopment, based on the Lion Yard, was officially opened in December 1975. Shopping facilities are good.

The University provides conference facilities and many organizations, a number of them international in character, meet in Cambridge.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Cannock UD, Rugeley UD, Lichfield RD (parish of Brindley Heath).

The district contains the southern portion of the Staffordshire Coalfield, including the post-war Lea Hall Colliery and its adjoining power stations in the northern sector of the area.

The link between Rugeley and the towns of Hednesford and Cannock is formed by the Parish of Brindley Heath (formerly in Lichfield Rural District) which comprises large areas of forestry and open space on the fringe of Cannock Chase.

Alternative industries have been attracted to the area in recent years and there is a wide variety of employment opportunities.

Cannock is well served by road communications being near the junction of A5 and A34 and within a few minutes' travel of three accesses to motorway M6. Rugeley is on A51.

Chairman's annual allowance: £2,000.

Agencies. The maintenance of highways is carried out by the district council on an agency basis in certain areas.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Canterbury CB, Herne Bay UD, Whitstable UD, Bridge Blean RD.

Canterbury, the seat of the Primacy of All England and one of the oldest towns in the country, joins with the residential and seaside towns of Herne Bay and Whitstable and the rural district of Bridge Blean to make up the new City of Canterbury.

The City with a continuous history from Roman times was constituted a County Borough in 1888, but its earliest charter extant is one of Henry II. It is the main shopping and educational centre for East Kent.

The seaside resorts of Herne Bay and Whitstable have a continuous coastline of over 14 miles extending from Seasalter in the west to Reculver in the east. Built-up promenades extend for well over half of this distance.

Whitstable is noted for its oyster fisheries which are operated by two companies under charters of considerable antiquity.

The needs of education are well served by a Regional College of Art, a day and evening Technical College, Grammar Schools for boys and girls, 41 Primary Schools and 11 Secondary Schools. A Church of England Teachers Training College and the University of Kent are also established in the district as well as many private schools.

Year round entertainment is produced at the Civic Theatre—The Marlowe—whilst seasonal entertainment is presented by the council at the King's Hall and Central Bandstand at Herne Bay. A new sports centre is under construction at Herne Bay for spectator and other sports to complement the non-spectator sports centre at Canterbury.

The council owns and administers the harbour, pier, swimming baths, car parks, a modern cattle market, a corn market, general markets, caravan parks, foreshore rights and amenities, boating lakes, allotments, burial grounds, recreation grounds and well laid out parks. It also operates a full catering division and tourist information offices. The administrative centre is Canterbury with divisional offices at both Herne Bay and Whitstable.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
The county borough of Cardiff.
In the administrative county of Glamorgan, in the rural district of Cardiff, the parishes of Lisvane, Llanedeyrn, Radyr, St. Fagans and Tongwynlais.
In the administrative county of Monmouthshire, in the rural district of Magor and St. Mellons, the parish of St. Mellons.

Cardiff, capital of Wales, has a style all its own. It is a mixture of the quaint and elegant, the bustling and the beautiful. It boasts one of the most famous civic centres in the world, constructed of gleaming Portland stone, a castle with 1900 years of history, attractive shopping arcades, modern stores, cinemas, theatres and hotels, all within a few minutes' walk of each other. The city has diversified new industry, together with facilities for further industrial development, a major office centre and serves as a focal point for financial and cultural activities for Wales.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Highways, except major improvements and bridges.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Carlisle CB, Border RD.

The northern boundary of the new City forms the Scottish border for a distance of some 20 miles. To the east lie the North Pennines (an area proposed to be designated as one of outstanding beauty) and the Northumberland National Park; to the west the Solway Firth; and to the south the beautiful Eden Valley and the Lake District National Park. The old City of Carlisle was granted its first charter in 1158 and still contains many historic buildings such as the cathedral, the east window of which is considered to be one of the finest in Europe; the castle, where Mary Queen of Scots was imprisoned; old town hall, guild hall, tithe barn and parts of the city walls. Hadrian's Wall bisects the new city from east to west. Carlisle as a Roman town was the largest settlement on the wall and the Carlisle Museum and Art Gallery at Tullie House includes a major Roman collection. Carlisle is a busy commercial and agricultural centre where some of the largest livestock auction marts in the country are situated. There is a diversity of industry on modern industrial estates immediately adjoining the M6 motorway. Carlisle is an important rail centre and is the Motorail terminal for the Lake District and Southern Scotland. The Council owns its own airport whith first class facilities from which scheduled services run to the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands. There is also a flourishing shopping centre and entertainments and cultural facilities are provided for a wide area. A landscaped pedestrianisation scheme has been introduced in the city centre and a new $33\frac{1}{3}$ metre swimming bath has recently been opened. In addition to the city council offices, the headquarters for most of the Cumbria County Council departments are in Carlisle. There is also a Technical College and College of Art and Design.

The Council runs a 9-hole golf course at Stonyholme beside the River Eden in Carlisle and nearby is a miniature golf course at the Swifts. In addition, there are two 18-hole golf courses within the rural area of the city at Aglionby and Brampton. The rural area contains large stretches of unspoiled countryside and the highest point within the city is Cold Fell (2,041 ft.). The main towns and villages in the rural area include Brampton, Longtown, Dalston and Wetheral.

Mayoral annual allowance: £4,600.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Morpeth MB, Castle Ward RD (part), Morpeth RD.

The centre of administration of the district is Morpeth, which lies in the Wansbeck Valley surrounded by wooded slopes, whilst the river provides a focal point and is a setting for many of the town's most attractive features. Originally the A1 trunk road ran through the centre, but it is now by-passed by this road to the west of the town.

The Northumberland moors and the Cheviot Hills are less than an hour's run away, whilst nearer at hand, within the rural areas of the district, are delightful places for picnics, fishing, sight-seeing or walking. Morpeth is, therefore, an excellent centre and there is a good bus and train service to and from the town.

Surrounding Morpeth are found areas of moorland, magnificent beaches, wooded valleys and unspoilt villages.

Norman inspired remains can be seen at Newminster Abbey, the Chantry and the Castle in Morpeth. The area was once a centre of fierce border warfare and remains of many fortified manors and pele towers bear witness to this.

The coast line within the district commences at Lynemouth and there is an excellent caravan site, owned by the council, at Cresswell on the eastern edge of Druridge Bay. The area stretches from there southwestwards to the beautiful Tyne valley and the Roman Wall.

The Newcastle airport is situated at the southern end of the district within the village of Ponteland which lies 8 miles north-west of Newcastle upon Tyne and 12 miles south of Morpeth.

Playing fields, recreation grounds and parks have been extensively provided and in addition there are golf clubs at Morpeth and Ponteland.

There is extensive private development at Ponteland and in and around Morpeth.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Benfleet UD, Canvey Island UD.

The district, which comprises the former urban districts of Benfleet and Canvey Island, is the nearest seaside resort to London, and adjoins Southend-on-Sea. A new high level bridge across Benfleet Creek has been completed, together with a new access road from the west linking up with the A13 at Pitsea. The district is a rapidly developing residential area with suitably located industrial sites. Extensive housing development has been carried out. 2,533 dwellings are managed by the local authority together with some 414 houses erected on Canvey Island for the overspill population of Barking and Waltham Forest. Practically the whole of the district has been sewered. Some 34 playing fields and open spaces are provided (1,200 acres). In addition, some 1,300 acres have been scheduled as the Hadleigh Castle Countryside Park, which includes the Castle ruins. A nature sanctuary, 95 acres of which are in the district, has been preserved by agreement with other authorities. In addition, the Nature Conservancy has designated Hadleigh Ray, with its extensive marsh lands and saltings on either side, a site of special scientific interest. Advances are made under the Housing Acts. Six health services clinics have been provided by the county council. The council owns six allotment sites. A number of caravan sites and a tent site on Canvey Island cater for holiday makers. Seven new halls have recently been opened, together with a swimming pool and joint user sports hall. A large sports complex has now been completed at Waterside Farm, Canvey Island, which contains two swimming pools, a multi-purpose sports hall, squash courts, a trajectory hall and other facilities including an adjoining 9-hole, par-3 golf course, and facilities for soccer, rugby, hockey and cricket. Two original Dutch cottages, reputed to have been built in the 17th century, belong to the council, one having been converted to a museum. The 1¾ miles of beach controlled by the council provides deck chairs, bathing facilities, shops and kiosks. Boating facilities are provided by several boating and three yacht clubs. An undulating 18-hole golf course is situated at Boyce Hill, and the council licences moorings in Tewkes Creek and Hadleigh Ray.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Loughborough MB, Shepshed UD, Barrow-upon-Soar RD.

The district comprises the University and Industrial town of Loughborough together with a number of large industrial villages in the Soar and Wreake Valleys. To the west of the district is the very attractive Charnwood Forest area from which the district takes its name.

The principal industries of the district are electrical engineering, hosiery, chemicals, footwear, bell founding and sand and gravel extraction. Loughborough is an important education centre having a University of Technology, College of Education, College of Art and Design and a Technical College.

The district has good communications. The M1 and A6 pass through the district, access 23 to the motorway being at Shepshed 3 miles west of Loughborough. Hourly train service from Loughborough to London and the north. The East Midlands Airport is just eight miles outside the district.

Extensive leisure and recreation facilities exist in the district including Bradgate Park (1,200 acres of rolling heathland and granite outcrop), Beacon Hill and the Outwoods, together with parks and recreation grounds throughout the district. A country park is also being developed at Wanlip. The Town Hall at Loughborough has been completely reconstructed and the first phase of the Loughborough Leisure Centre (providing a swimming pool, sauna baths, squash courts, crêche and bar facilities) has been completed. The first Municipal Grand Carillon to be built in the country is situated in Queens Park, Loughborough.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,000 (plus £2,500 entertainments allowance).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the Cheltenham MB and Charlton Kings UD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Cheltenham is an all-the-year-round Health and Holiday Resort in the heart of the Cotswolds; easily accessible from all parts by road, rail and air—London 98 miles, Oxford, Birmingham and Bristol 42–46 miles. Easy access to M5. The town lies on a gentle slope at the base of the Cotswold Hills, and is protected from north and east winds by these hills. To the south and west stretches an open plain with the River Severn six miles and the source of the Thames four miles away. This position gives Cheltenham a mild but bright and sunny climate, peculiarly free from fogs and extremes of heat and cold. Cheltenham has many fine Regency houses and terraces. The very fine Pittville Pump Room has been completely restored.

It is both a residential and a holiday resort, providing all-the-year-round attractions, including symphony concerts and recitals by world-famous orchestras and artistes and dances on three or four occasions weekly. The Cheltenham Festival of British Contemporary Music (first two weeks in July) and the Cheltenham Festival of Literature (September or October or November) are now well established international annual festivals. In addition the following events take place each year: the Open Competitive Music Festival (May); West of England Ladies' Kennel Club Show (April); East Gloucestershire Tennis Tournament (July); County Cricket Festival (August); Cheltenham Race Meetings (January, April, March, November and December). Cheltenham has also formed associations with the town of Annecy, France; City of Gottingen, Germany; the Soviet town of Sochi and Cheltenham, Pennsylvania, USA.

The Council owns approximately 200 acres of open space at Leckhampton Hill adjoining the borough and is joint owner with the Gloucester City Council of the Staverton Airport.

The Council has made provision for industries which are suitable to the character and situation of the town and there has been a very extensive development of light industry in and around the town (with the employment of large numbers of highly skilled workers) without in any way detracting from the other amenities for which Cheltenham is well known.

Cheltenham is a well-known educational and cultural centre with colleges and public schools, including two teachers' training colleges.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,500.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following

local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Banbury MB; Bicester UDC; Banbury RDC; Ploughley RDC.

Situated in north-east Oxfordshire the district is predominantly rural in character but approximately half the population is located in the urban areas of Banbury, Bicester, and Kidlington which lie in the north, east and south of the district respectively.

Banbury is an expanding town under the Town Development Act, 1952, with a planned expansion programme which will achieve a population of 40,000 by 1981, and 2,000 houses are being provided under an overspill agreement with the Greater London Council. The town is increasing in importance as a centre for industry, commerce and tourism.

Bicester, an old market town, situated on the A41 trunk road, is rapidly expanding and now has a population of almost 14,800. Considerable industrial development has occurred and more is expected to follow.

Kidlington Parish lies just north of the City of Oxford, and, excluding Bicester, is the most populous of the 76 parishes in the new district, most of the residential development having occurred since the 1939–45 War. Oxford Airport straddles the north-western boundary of the parish.

The whole area has many historical connections and comprises some of the most picturesque scenery in Oxfordshire.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Chester CB, Chester RD, Tarvin RD.

The new City is bounded in the west by Wales, in the south by Shropshire and in the north and east by the Cheshire districts of Ellesmere and Neston, Port Vale, Royal and Crewe. The City originated 1900 years ago as a Roman fortress. Today the City is a busy commercial centre and a considerable tourist attraction, particularly to foreign visitors. Among the many attractions in the City are its ancient walls, the Cathedral, the River Dee, a flourishing regional shopping centre and many fine, buildings of architectural and historic interest. Outside the urban area of Chester, the new City is primarily of a residential and rural nature. The rural area is notable for its agricultural importance, natural beauty and villages of character. The main towns and villages in the rural areas include Malpas, Tarvin and Farndon.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Chesterfield MB, Staveley UD, Chesterfield RD (parish of Brimington).

Chesterfield is an ancient borough situated on an eminence in the valley of the River Rother along which has always run one of the country's main arteries of communication. It is the chief town in the North East Derbyshire hundred of Scarsdale.

The Roman road from the south bears a pre-Roman name 'Rykneld Street' and the element 'Chester' implies Roman occupation. In the Middle Ages it was a substantial market town granted Charters by successive monarchs between 1200 and 1600.

As early as 1700 was foreshadowed the Industrial Revolution in the shape of coal mining and iron smelting. From that time the medieval features have been successively overlain by the progress of industrialization which has also influenced the growth of Staveley. The Chesterfield Canal to the Trent was opened in 1777 and the Midland Railway in 1840. George Stephenson, the railway pioneer, lived at Tapton House from 1838 to 1848.

By 1900, Chesterfield was an important railway centre with three railway stations in the centre: the Midland, the Great Central and the Lancashire, Derbyshire and East Coast terminals. Until very recently the main road from Derby and Nottingham to Sheffield passed through the town. Some of the traffic now uses the M1 which runs through Staveley. Although industrialization has influenced the district, particularly to the east, there still remain traces of medieval history in the centre. To the west lies, within five miles, the boundary of the Peak District National Park, the proximity of which, together with its accessibility by road and rail, justifies Chesterfield's claim to be a 'Gateway to the Peak'.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Chichester MB, Chichester RD (part), Midhurst RD, Petworth RD.

The district is mainly agricultural and residential and stretches from the Hampshire border to the upper Arun and from the Surrey border to the sea, an area of over 300 square miles, most of which is designated Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty and Great Landscape Value, with a large number of conservation areas and buildings listed as being of historic or architectural interest. The ten miles of coastline runs from Pagham Harbour (Nature Reserve), round Selsey Bill, along Bracklesham Bay to Chichester Harbour. The City of Chichester (Noviomagus) is the administrative headquarters of the district, and dominates the coastal plain as the historic capital and county town of West Sussex, backed by the South Downs. The Rother Valley forms the northern part of the district, including most of the western end of The Weald, with local centres at the small country towns of Midhurst and Petworth. Notable amenities for residents and tourists are Chichester harbour (sailing); the Cathedral and the City generally; the Roman Palace at Fishbourne and the Villa at Bignor; Cowdray Ruins at Midhurst; the stately homes at Petworth, Goodwood and Uppark; racing at Goodwood and Fontwell; polo at Cowdray Park; golf at Goodwood, Cowdray Park, Selsey and Liphook Common; private flying from Goodwood Airfield; and Chichester Festival Theatre.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Highways; Food and Drugs; Controlled Sewerage Functions; Limited Libraries Agency.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Chorley MB, Adlington UD, Withnell UD, Chorley RD.

The district which covers an area of approximately 80 square miles is situate within Central Lancashire and a substantial portion of its area falls within the area of the Central Lancashire New Town. Borough status has been granted. The area comprises a blend of town and rural areas and stretches from the Pennine Ridge at Rivington, Anglezarke and Hoghton on the eastern boundary to the coastal plain of West Lancashire on the western boundary. The principal urban centre is the former Borough of Chorley. The area is exceptionally well served for transport purposes being situate both on the M6 and the M61 and has a direct rail link to Manchester. In addition to the high quality farming areas in the western coastal plain the easterly parts of the district are of outstanding natural beauty and are proposed to be included in a countryside park.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways; Refuse Disposal; Sewerage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Christchurch MB, Ringwood and Fordingbridge RD (part).

Christchurch incorporates some rural areas but a considerable part of the borough comprises urban development. During the past two decades there has been a rapid growth of residential estates and this type of development is still proceeding.

There is some light industrial development within the district, the main part of which is confined in a comparatively small area. Government experimental work is also carried out at two establishments within the area at the present time.

The borough is a holiday resort with beaches at Highcliffe, Friars Cliff and Mudeford Sandbank—all under the control of the council which has provided beach chalets at the last two places. Stanpit Marsh which adjoins Christchurch Harbour is owned by the council, and although it has been declared a Nature Reserve there is no restriction on public access. There are a number of recreation grounds and open spaces within the borough and the maintenance of many of these areas is undertaken by the council. The river frontages, Town Quay and Mudeford Quay are also maintained by the council which owns the Haven House Inn at Mudeford Quay.

The council also maintains a 25-metre 6-lane heated indoor swimming pool which is open all the year round. The building was opened in 1973 and includes a teaching pool.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April, 1974:

the county borough of Coventry;

in the administrative county of Warwickshire—in the rural district of Meriden, the parishes of Allesley and Keresley.

Coventry, which received its original charter of incorporation in 1345, was constituted a separate county in 1451, but was rejoined to the County of Warwick in 1842. It became a county borough in 1888 and on 3rd June 1953, H.M. Queen Elizabeth II commanded that the City's Chief Magistrate should be styled "Lord Mayor". On local government reorganization, the Authority became, as from 1st April 1974, a Metropolitan District enlarged by the addition of the above areas of Warwickshire. The district was granted a Borough Charter as from the date of reorganization; H.M. The Queen also approved the grant, with effect from the same date, of the title and dignity of "City" to the district and the use of the style "Lord Mayor" by the Chairman of the Council and the style "Deputy Lord Mayor" by the Vice-Chairman.

The Council House was officially opened in 1920, but St. Mary's Hall, a 14th century building, which was the municipal centre for some hundreds of years, is still used for subsidiary civic purposes. The Council controls large areas of common land and is the owner of large estates and properties, including the 280-acre Coombe Countryside Park, adjoining the eastern boundary of the City. Extensive housing and re-housing schemes have been undertaken and central re-development, incorporating a traffic-free Precinct and an inner-ring road system, carried out following the severe air raid damage inflicted on the City during the last world war. The great development in the engineering, motor-car, tractor, aeroplane and electronic industries led to an extremely rapid increase in population which has now stabilized. Significant recent educational development includes the University of Warwick and the Lanchester Polytechnic.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,500 (Deputy Lord Mayor: £800).

Audit by district auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Skipton UD, Settle RD, Skipton RD (part).

The district was formed by the amalgamation of the former Urban District of Skipton, the greater part of the Rural District of Skipton, and the Rural District of Settle.

Skipton itself is a market town, a focal point of trunk roads and a natural shopping centre for a large rural area. The district is mainly agricultural (cattle rearing, milk and sheep) but industry is encouraged, particularly in Skipton and the larger towns and villages.

Much of the district is situated within the most beautiful part of the Yorkshire Dales National Park. Features of the district are Barden Tower, Bolton Abbey, Skipton Castle, Malham Cove, pot holes, caves, waterfalls, and the three peaks of Whernside, Ingleborough and Penyghent.

The Council owns the Aireville Estate, Skipton, of which 27½ acres are open to the public as a natural park, and includes covered swimming baths, tennis courts, a pitch and putt course and a putting green. The Council's museum contains a rare collection of prehistoric remains from Upper Wharfedale, excavated remains from the Roman Camp at Elslack, and a very rare Brigantian Iron Age Sword found at Flasby, near Skipton.

Chairman's annual allowance: £500.

Parliamentary Constituency: Horsham and Crawley.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the West Sussex CC.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways; Traffic Management; Refuse Disposal; Sewerage. Additionally, the Borough undertakes to maintain all county buildings in the area on a Goods and Services Basis.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The new district came into being on 1st April 1974 as a result of local government reorganization. It comprises the whole of the former Crawley UD area, a small part of the former Cuckfield RD, and part of Dorking and Horley RD. Borough status was granted from the same date. Substantially, it covers the designated area of the new town and includes Gatwick Airport.

The former Crawley Urban District Council was created from part of Horsham Rural District in 1956 following logically upon the development of Crawley under the New Towns Act, 1946.

The town hall is situated in The Boulevard at the town centre and a central depot for the highways and works department is located at County Oak.

Having completed an inherited programme of 1,600 dwellings, the council is well into its new programme of 2,500 dwellings: 500 a year for the next five years. Currently, over 1,000 dwellings are under construction. The first house on the Bewbush neighbourhood was occupied on March 22nd, 1976.

Several parks, many playing fields and allotment sites were provided by the former urban district council and this generous standard of provision is being maintained in new developments. Permanent sports pavilions have been constructed on 11 of the playing fields and there are seven permanent playcentres and two permanent adventure playgrounds already provided in the various neighbourhoods.

With the completion of a new multi-sport hall, Crawley Sportcentre, at Haslett Avenue close to the town centre, now provides for a wide range of athletics, sporting and recreation activities for all ages. It can also cater for major events of a national/international nature. Facilities include the all-purpose sport hall, an outdoor athletics arena, floodlit all-season games area, covered swimming pools, and ample parking space for cars and coaches. The planned Theatre/Arts Centre has been postponed.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,530.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974; Crewe MB, Nantwich UD, Nantwich RD.

The council owns covered and open-air swimming baths, indoor and outdoor markets, parks and recreation grounds, several farms, cemeteries and a crematorium.

In Crewe three phases of a central town development scheme commenced in 1956 have been completed and an area of land on the north side of Victoria Street has been acquired for development as a covered shopping centre including a leisure centre, studio cinema/disco diner, indoor and outdoor markets, multi-storey car parks, day care centre for the elderly. A new civic centre has been established and includes a new central library (opened in 1967); divisional police headquarters (opened in 1968) and new magistrates' and county courts (opened in 1971).

The council owns a large industrial estate in Weston Road which has already been substantially developed and excellent sites are available for new industries.

Nantwich is considered to be the second most interesting town in Cheshire, having historical associations second only to Chester itself. The town contains many "black and white" half timbered buildings, typical of those to be found widely in the county. Many of these buildings are very fine examples of this type of architecture, the most notable being Churche's Mansion, Sweetbriar Hall, the Cheshire Cat and the Crown Hotel.

The Department of the Environment have listed 128 buildings of special architectural or historic interest.

The River Weaver landscaping scheme incorporating a boating pool and fishing facilities is nearing completion.

CYNON VALLEY (W) Borough (Mid Glamorgan)

Elections will be by thirds.

Pop., 69,600; RV, £4,191,044; Rate, 108·5p to 113·7p; Debt, £24,717,374; Area, 44,637 Ac.

Baths and Pools: 9; Cemeteries: 9; Crematorium; 1; Council Houses and Flats: 5,713; Parks and Open Spaces: 451 acres.

Parliamentary Constituency: Aberdare.

Regional Water Authority: Welsh National Water Development Authority.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Mid Glamorgan CC.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

In the administrative county of Glamorgan:
the urban districts of Aberdare and Mountain Ash;
in the rural district of Neath, the parish of Rhigos.
In the administrative county of Brecon, in the rural district of Vaynor and Penderyn, the parish of Penderyn.

Cynon Valley is basically a long valley following the path of the River Cynon situated to the north of Cardiff, 11 miles in length, narrow at the southern extremity but becoming gradually broader until reaching the town of Hirwaun, where it joins the southern reaches of the Brecon Beacons; it also includes the neighbouring Clydach Valley. It is basically an industrial region with coal mining in the former Mountain Ash area (Deep Duffryn, Perrikyber, Abercynon and Lady Windsor Collieries), and more recent light industrial development, with estates at Hirwaun, Ynysboeth, Cwmbach, Pontcynon and Robertstown. The northern part is predominantly rural with settlements at Rhigos, Hirwaun and Penderyn. The area includes the Brecon Beacons National Park, the Aberdare Country Park and a large area of afforestation at Llanwonno in the Clydach Valley which would be of great interest to tourists. The council administers two major sports centres, the Michael Sobell Centre at Aberdare and the Abercynon Sports Centre, also a major swimming pool at Aberdare. Other major council developments include the St. Mary's Social Centre at Aberdare and a Day Centre at Mountain Ash. Refuse Disposal is by pulverization with a plant at Pontcynon—the first in Wales.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Sewerage (Agreement not Agency); certain Maintenance of Classified Roads; Traffic Regulations within urban areas.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Darlington CB, Darlington RD (part).

The new borough includes the areas of the former county borough and the Darlington Rural District with the exception of Great Aycliffe Parish containing part of Aycliffe new town. It lies at the southern extremity of Durham County and its southern boundary is formed by the River Tees with North Yorkshire to the south and the Stockton District of Cleveland County to the east. The borough's administrative centre is based at the Town Hall which was opened in 1970 and will serve a population of approximately 98,000. The town has a long history probably best known as a 'railway town' and has various industries including iron and steel, heavy engineering and textiles. More recently it has developed a range of lighter industries, and as a result its employment situation has remained reasonably static despite the closure in mid-1960 of its once large and important railway works, the council having made land available for industrial estates. Darlington is also an important shopping and market town as well as a transportation centre by road, rail and air, viz. the main London–Newcastle–Edinburgh Railway Line and the M1 Motorway in addition to Tees-side Airport which is located at the eastern boundary of the district.

Housing, which remains a function of the borough council, is popular and pleasant. In the central area, extensive re-development schemes are planned and an inner ring road which is well established will almost encircle the shopping and business centre. Surrounding the district is rural, open and attractive farming country with villages of character, some of which are subject to conservation area policy, and some of which have developed as commuter villages in recent years.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,630.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Highway functions; public paths; Town and Country Planning; Collection of sewerage rate.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Dartford MB, Swanscombe UD, Dartford RD (parishes of Darenth, Southfleet, Stone, Sutton-at-Hone, Wilmington).

The district is situated between the North Downs and the Thames, the northerly part being predominantly industrial and residential, and the southerly part mainly rural in character.

The main industries include engineering, paper making and the manufacture of pharmaceuticals. The manufacture of cement is also a major industry but where excavation of chalk has taken place great emphasis is laid upon restoration by means of infilling and landscaping schemes.

Dartford is an old market town connected in history with Wat Tyler's Rebellion in 1381. It is situated about 15 miles east of London and has an industrial area situated near the station. From the town centre the land rises sharply to the residential districts in the east and west. The town centre is by-passed by the A2 Dartford Diversion, and this links with the Dartford Tunnel to the Essex side of the Thames. To the south lie the beautiful and very ancient parishes of Darenth, Southfleet, and Sutton-at-Hone, with Wilmington in the west and the parishes of Stone and Swanscombe in the east. Each of these parishes has its own particular link with early English history and evidence of this still remains through the existence of many fine churches and old buildings. Besides the natural beauty of the rural area of the district, there is the Central Park in the Dartford town centre, approximately 27 acres, and to the east of the town Hesketh Park of 10 acres. Each park provides excellent facilities for tennis, bowling, hockey, and cricket. Dartford Heath with 340 acres of open heath land provides a fine natural open space, with cricket and football pitches. An open space has also been provided by the layout out of the original, and now disused, St. Edmunds Burial Ground as a Pleasance.

Three branches of the Southern Region Railway have their junction at Dartford, and there are also stations at Farningham Road, Stone, Greenhithe and Swanscombe. The Council is actively engaged on housing construction and in addition housing associations are providing new accommodation within the district for many families. Town centre redevelopment is taking place, and a new "Arndale" shopping precinct is nearing completion. A new covered swimming pool is under construction and is due for completion during the summer of 1976. A rifle and pistol range, also an indoor bowls rank, is being built at Stone Lodge farm, a new sports complex. Plans for the addition of further sporting facilities are at an advanced stage.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

Parliamentary Constituencies (2): Derby North, Derby South.

Regional Water Authority: Severn-Trent.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Derbyshire CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of the Derby CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Derby's history can be traced back to the first century AD, when the Romans established the fortified camp of Derventio. The settlement was occupied by the Danes in the ninth century, and became a garrison town bearing the Danish name "Deoraby". The Doomsday book contained a detailed record of the town, showing it to be of some importance. It had been a royal borough long before the Norman conquest. Numerous charters were granted to the burgesses, the earliest known being that granted by Henry II (1154), which confirmed laws and customs already enjoyed, notably the right to hold a market. In 1446, Henry VI granted the right to appoint a recorder for the borough, and following the grant of a charter by Charles I in 1638, the first Mayor took office. In 1745, Bonnie Prince Charlie's army advanced into the town, which was the turning point of the '45 Rebellion. The first railway was opened in 1839, the town subsequently becoming one of the principal industrial centres of the Midlands. It was created a county borough in 1888, the boundaries being considerably extended on 1st April 1968 under the terms of the Derby Order 1968.

The borough owns a passenger transport undertaking, central omnibus station, golf courses, 2,100 acres of parks and recreation grounds and two industrial trading estates. There is also a direct labour department for building work. Under a pre-war central improvement scheme a covered market, an omnibus station, police buildings and municipal offices were built and redevelopment is now being continued over a wide part of the central area. A large scale main drainage scheme begun before the war is now nearing completion.

Superannuation Scheme administered by South Yorkshire CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county borough of Doncaster.

In the administrative county of Yorkshire, West Riding—

the urban districts of Adwick le Street, Bentley with Arksey, Conisbrough, Mexborough and Tickhill;

the rural districts of Doncaster and Thorne.

In the administrative county of Nottinghamshire—

in the rural district of East Retford, the parish of Finningley.

in the rural district of Worksop, in the parish of Harworth, the North ward, so much of the East ward as lies east and north of Ordnance Survey parcels 4800, 4749, 5136 and 8630, and the detached part of the West ward which includes the hamlet of Hesley.

The new district is one of considerable contrasts. At the centre is the town of Doncaster which offers excellent shopping, market and commercial services for a great deal of South Yorks., Notts. and Lincolnshire. The district also has large areas of unspoilt attractive countryside with numerous small villages of charm and character. The townships of Adwick, Bentley, Conisbrough, Mexborough, Thorne and Tickhill provide good local shopping and employment opportunities.

Great 'self help' efforts have been made to attract new industries to supplement the reliance on mining, engineering and agriculture. Much has been achieved and this policy will be continued.

There is an excellent range of leisure facilities and special mention is made of the Doncaster Racecourse, owned and administered by the Council. It is one of the most up-to-date courses with a new grandstand.

There are many historical features including Conisbrough Castle, and reminders of Doncaster's origin in Roman times.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,500.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974;

The County Borough of Dudley;
in the administrative county of Worcestershire, the boroughs of Halesowen and Stourbridge.

Dudley is an important industrial centre being one of the seven Metropolitan District Authorities forming the West Midlands Metropolitan County Council.

Dudley was reorganized in 1966 to include the former Brierley Hill Urban District, most of Sedgley and Coseley Urban Districts and small parts of Amblecote Urban District and Tipton Municipal Borough. The area is situated on the edge of the green belt and borders the open countryside of Worcestershire and Staffordshire.

One of the main features of the area is Dudley Castle which stands on a ridge in the centre of the town. Nearby is the Wren's Nest Geological Nature Reserve of 74 acres which together with an adjacent 80 acres of woodland provides an attractive setting for the modern Zoo which annually draws many thousands of visitors.

The area developed rapidly in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, at first through the mining of coal and manufacture of iron, although the most important industries are now steel manufacturing, processing and fabrication, engineering, cut glass, sanitary-ware and brickworks, clothing and leather goods, and bacon and ham products.

Dudley has a rapidly growing population with the added advantage of having large areas of land capable of development. The existing canals, disused railways and open spaces, together with established conservation areas will be linked to this development so that the full potential of the area can be realized.

Service and accessibility to the public is considered most important and has been recognized by the early establishment of District Offices offering a wide range of services at a local level.

Mayoral annual allowance: £4,300.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of Eastbourne

County Borough Council which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Eastbourne—Britain's sunniest mainland resort—is sheltered by the magnificent headland of Beachy Head and embraces eight miles of enchanting coastline with uncommercialized promenades and parades, flanked by fine hotels and guest houses. The flower-decked parades stretch for three miles, the centre-piece of which are the world-famous carpet gardens. Eastbourne offers a variety of entertainment to suit all tastes. The Congress Theatre, which can seat just over 1,700 for concerts, is a provincial centre for Sadlers Wells Opera, royal ballet, philharmonic orchestras, plus international stars and a spectacular summer show. The Congress Theatre is also available for conferences and can seat up to 2,000 for this purpose. In addition, the corporation owns the Winter Garden, the Devonshire Park Theatre (open all the year round) and the Royal Hippodrome.

A number of lawn tennis championships are held each year in Devonshire Park grounds where the grass courts are considered second only to Wimbledon. In fact, the year's calendar is packed with various events—bowls, flower shows, county cricket, regattas, etc. Military bands play from Easter to October at the Grand Parade Bandstand, which seats 3,500 people.

Treasure Island Play Centre, architecturally designed and covering 1·2 acres opened in the summer of 1973, is a children's paradise. Some of its special features are a 30-foot wrecked Hispaniola Galleon, 3 paddling pools, sand pits, climbing ropes, slides and colourful life-like models of crocodiles, zulus, lion, hippo and whale—not to mention Long John Silver and Jim Lad.

The council owns the ridge of the South Downs overlooking the town from Beachy Head to Willingdon. This estate includes four farms. The council's policy of preservation of the downland contributes considerably to the amenities of the town.

The council owns the local passenger transport undertaking, which is claimed to be the oldest municipal transport undertaking in the World.

The town is still growing rapidly, mainly due to continued extensive private housing development. The most substantial area of such development is now at Langney on the eastern side of the town, where a large shopping centre has recently been opened and other community services are also to be provided.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,700.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Hertfordshire CC.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Highways; Sewerage; Food and Drugs.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Hertford BC, Bishop's Stortford UD, Sawbridgeworth UD, Ware UD, Braughing RD, Hertford RD (part), Ware RD.

Within this largely rural area of rich farmland, set in undulating country and river valleys, are several historic towns within easy commuting distance of London but far removed from the noise and bustle of the metropolis. There are many picturesque villages with thatched cottages, medieval manor houses and ancient churches. Evidence remains of the Saxon, Danish and Roman occupations.

Good shopping facilities are offered to town residents and their country neighbours and modern buildings are well integrated with fine Conservation Areas.

EAST LINDSEY (Lincolnshire)

Elections will be of whole council.

Pop., 100,100; RV, £10,169,650; Rate 65·48p; Debt, £20,000,000; Area, 432,191 Ac.

Baths and Pools: 4; Council Houses and Flats: 6,129; Markets: 4; Museum: 1.

Petty Sessional Divisions: 5.

Regional Water Authority: Anglian.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Lincolnshire CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Louth MB, Alford UD, Horncastle UD, Mablethorpe and Sutton UD, Skegness UD, Woodhall Spa UD, Horncastle RD, Louth RD, Spilsby RD.

The district is characteristically rural, and is intensively cultivated in the chalk Wolds, the coastal marshlands and the fens of the Witham Valley. Small scale industrial development has been encouraged in the small towns and large villages of Louth, Horncastle, Spilsby, Alford, Mablethorpe, Skegness, Wainfleet, and Tattershall Thorpe, but the towns retain their characteristics as active market centres.

Along the coast, tourism is of great importance. The extensive sand beaches attract many holidaymakers, particularly from the East Midlands, and the whole coastline between Skegness and Mablethorpe caters for the tourist trade. Gibraltar Point, a Nature Reserve to the south of Skegness, is a particular attraction for many people.

Inland, the district has considerable historic interest: East Lindsey experienced settlement by the Romans (Horncastle was a Roman Town), by the Saxons and most notably by the Danes, who have left their mark on the place names of the district, names such as Hemingby, Scamblesby, Goulceby, Driby, Calceby, Swaby, and so on. There are a variety of historic buildings, including Louth Park Abbey and Kirkstead Abbey; Bolingbroke Castle, associated with John of Gaunt and King Henry IV, and Tattershall Castle. The National Trust owns Tattershall Castle, and also Gunby Hall, near Burgh-le-Marsh. Restored windmills are to be found at Alford and Burgh-le-Marsh, and there is a splendid manor house at Alford which is open to the public.

The Wolds, a substantial part of which are within East Lindsey, provide some attractive scenery and were recently designated as an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. A number of towns and villages have pleasant conservation areas; these include Louth, Horncastle, Alford, Spilsby, Burgh-le-Marsh and Wainfleet.

Sporting facilities are many. Stock Car and Motor Cycle Racing take place at Cadwell Park near Louth, and the district's rivers provide good fishing. There are golf courses at Louth, Skegness, Sutton and Woodhall Spa, and tennis courts in all the towns, notably along the coast. There are recreational flying fields near Alford and Coningsby, and water sports facilities are available at Covenham Reservoir.

Chairman's annual allowance: £300.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Cheshire CC.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways; Noise Insulation.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of Ellesmere Port MB and Neston UD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The borough extends from the Mersey to the Dee, at the south-western end of the Wirral Peninsula. The Borough Council provides the full range of services allocated by the Local Government Act, 1972. The Borough Council is also responsible for the Maintenance of roads in the borough other than trunk roads and motorways, under agency arrangements with the Cheshire County Council. Among the facilities available in the district are an all-purpose Civic Hall with a separate management staff, an indoor swimming pool opened in 1969, an outdoor swimming pool, a sports stadium, a leisure centre, four old people's community centres, a trading estate and an 18-hole municipal golf course opened in 1973.

The district is one of the major industrial centres of the North-West, with the advantage of having been largely planned and developed since the Second World War. Among the industrial concerns with heavy capital investment in the district are Associated Octel, Bowaters, Burmah Oil, Cabot Carbon, Manchester Ship Canal Company, Morgan Refractories, Odex-Racasan, Shell Refining, Shell Chemicals, UKF-Fertilisers, Shell Research, Total Oil, Van Leer, Vauxhall Motors, Calor Gas and H. H. Robertson. The district is nevertheless substantially rural/agricultural in land use, and includes a number of pleasant country villages (but no parish councils), a vital sector of the proposed West Cheshire Green Belt and an extensive section of the Cheshire County Council's Wirral Country Park.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Esher UD, Walton and Weybridge UD.

The borough is mainly residential, though the southern part of the area can be said to be rural in character. There are a number of shopping centres, including the towns of Esher, Walton and Weybridge, surrounded by high-class properties.

The Council owns almost all the extensive common land in the district. The Commons serve to separate the residential enclaves in the Green Belt, and maintain the reputation of the borough as a highly desirable residential area within easy reach of London by rail and car. Waterloo is a few minutes railway journey from Esher and Walton and Weybridge Stations on the main London and Southern region lines and the Guildford railway line runs along the eastern part of the district, serving the residential areas of Hinchley Wood, Claygate, Oxshott, Stoke and Cobham, also giving a direct service to Waterloo. There are extensive recreational facilities, catering for, among other sports, bowls, tennis, hockey, cricket and football. The Council owns the Upper Deck Open-Air Swimming Pool on the bank of the River Thames, opposite Hampton Court Palace, and an indoor swimming pool at Walton-on-Thames. In addition, a multi-purpose Sports and Leisure Centre stands alongside the Thames at Walton. Administration of the National Trust property, Claremont Lake, is carried out by the Council and the Lake and the adjoining estate attract large numbers of visitors during the summer months. Bathing, boating and fishing facilities are available on the Rivers Thames and Wey, and a number of golf clubs are situated within the borough.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,425.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Epsom BC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Borough Council comprises the same area as the Epsom and Ewell MB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Epsom and Ewell lies at the foot of the North Downs 15 miles south-west of London on the main road to Worthing and with excellent road and railway communications.

A considerable proportion of Epsom and Ewell consists of green belt and public open space which will be protected from future development. It has always been the Borough Council's policy to preserve the green belt and open spaces which form such an important part of the Borough, and the continuation of this policy will ensure that the character of the town is not affected.

Although many of the residents of the Borough travel to and from their work in London, Epsom and Ewell is nevertheless an independent local government unit which maintains and enjoys its own traditions and interest. The town has grown slowly with much variety of design both in dwellings and public buildings, and with due regard to the harmony of new estates and commercial premises with the architecture of the old village centres.

The Secretary of State for the Environment has approved proposals for the redevelopment of the town centre of Epsom involving a new traffic circulation system and the improvement of shopping facilities.

Epsom and Walton Downs, the site of the famous Epsom racecourse, are controlled by Conservators (on which the Council has the majority representation) appointed in pursuance of the Epsom and Walton Downs Regulation Act, 1936. Nonsuch Park, an open space of some 300 acres, is managed by a joint management committee consisting of representatives of the Epsom and Ewell Borough Council and the London Borough of Sutton.

Mayoral annual allowance: £5,200.

Agencies. The following county council function is being carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Highways (environmental maintenance) and maintenance of local roads (some).

Audit will be by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Ilkeston MB, Long Eaton UD, SE Derbyshire RD (part).

The eastern boundary with Broxtowe (Nottinghamshire) is the River Erewash from which the Borough derives its name. The Southern Boundary is formed by the Trent and Derwent Rivers. To the west the Borough extends as far as Derby and the River Derwent at Duffield.

The Borough is well served by communications. Long Eaton has a direct main line railway connection with London and there are frequent bus and rail services to Nottingham and Derby. The M.1 Motorway passes through the Borough and has an intersection with the main Derby-Nottingham road (A52) at Sandiacre (Junction 25). The East Midlands Airport at Castle Donington is barely three miles from the Borough's southern boundary.

Positioned between the major centres of Derby, Nottingham, Leicester and Sheffield, and within easy reach of the Peak District, the Dukeries and Charnwood Forest, Erewash Borough is ideally situated.

Canal cruising is catered for at Sawley and Trent Lock is a busy inland waterway centre.

Amenities in the area include both open-air and indoor swimming pools at Long Eaton (the indoor pool incorporates a sauna and solarium), an indoor swimming pool at Ilkeston, a Sports Hall complex at Sandiacre, a 9-hole golf course at Ilkeston and a fine 18-hole golf course at Stanton. Long Eaton and Ilkeston have a number of parks and recreation grounds, catering for a variety of sports.

The Borough Council is keen to encourage further industrial development.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,600.

EXETER City (Devon)

Elections will be by thirds.

Pop., 94,100; RV, £12,937,249; Rate, 90·26p; Debt, £40,800,000; Area, 11,037 Ac.

Art Gallery: 1; Baths and Pools: 1; Cemeteries: 3; Council Houses and Flats: 7,961; Markets: 2; Museums: 6; Consumer Advice Centre: 1; Parks and Open Spaces: 552 acres.

Parliamentary Constituency: Exeter.

Regional Water Authority: South West.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Devon CC.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the area of Exeter CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Exeter is the county town of Devon and geographically well situated as a focal point for major roads, railways and air services.

The City history dates from AD 50–55 when as Isca Dumnoniorum it became the administrative centre for Devon and Cornwall. It is a city by Royal charter granted by Henry II and the first recorded reference to the Mayor dates from 1202. The city claims to be the senior mayoralty in the County.

The Guildhall, dating from 1160 and still in use as a council chamber, is probably the oldest municipal building. Other historical buildings which survived the Baedeker raids of 1942 include the Cathedral and Tuckers Hall.

In those raids, extensive damage was caused and the city centre virtually destroyed. The rebuilding of the centre is now complete and the redevelopment of another five acres of obsolescent buildings at the rear of the Guildhall is virtually completed.

A new civic centre has been completed. The city has an expanding university to cater for eventually 15,000 students, St. Luke's teacher training college and Exeter College which serves a regional area and provides sixth form education.

The Council owns two industrial estates, the largest of 250 acres and further land for expansion is being bought. Another estate of 60 acres on the fringe of the city is jointly owned with the County Council and it is hoped to expand this area.

The route of the new M5 motorway passes close to the city and benefits communications with the Midlands.

The city is a good tourist centre within easy reach of the sea, Dartmoor and Exmoor National Parks.

The Council is the Port Authority with the Port of Exeter extending from the River Axe to the River Teign. It also maintains a ship canal approximately 5 miles long, the construction of which commenced in 1539. It is a proposed to maintain and develop the canal as an amenity waterway as part of a scheme to open up the canal and river as amenity areas. The area includes a unique maritime museum.

The Council owns many valuable properties and extensive land. The Mayor has an expense allowance of £4,000 per annum and an official car with chauffeur is provided.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Refuse disposal; Highways: unclassified urban roads with arrangements in respect of private street works, new streets, scavenging and street cleansing; Statutory arrangements with Regional Water Authority.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Wisbech MB, Chatteris UD, March UD, Whittlesey UD, North Witchford RD, Wisbech RD.

Fenland, which forms the greater part of the Isle of Ely, extends from the market town of Chatteris in the south to the Port of Wisbech in the north, borders westerly upon the outskirts of Greater Peterborough and is bounded by Norfolk in the east. The district is one of contrasts, an amalgamation of historic market towns, modern residential areas, picturesque villages, light industrial development, vast open countryside, Regency houses, great churches, National Trust estates, large syndicate farms, rivers and waterways. With its peat and silt soil, the area is the most fertile in the United Kingdom and amongst the most intensely cropped and productive in the world. Industries are in the main associated with agriculture but the Council has encouraged diversification and has its own industrial estates. There is a good labour market and excellent sites are available for commercial and industrial expansion.

The jurisdiction of the Council as port and harbour authority embraces an extensive coastline of the Wash. Principal cargoes include sugar, petroleum, grain, timber, pig iron, fertilisers and foodstuffs. March, also once a port, is nowadays known as an important rail junction with one of the largest marshalling yards in Europe. Whittlesey is a rapidly expanding residential area with high potential for development associated with the expansion of Peterborough.

Fenland, with its rail centre, its port and its greatest asset, some 200 sq. miles of rich earth, is strategically placed in readiness for expanded trade with the European Economic Community.

Chairman's annual allowance: £600.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Street cleansing at Newmarket; Maintenance of sewers and pumping stations.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Newmarket UD, Mildenhall RD.

The district is situated in the extreme north-west of Suffolk, adjoining Norfolk and Cambridgeshire.

The area possesses a rare charm, for it includes part of the Breckland as well as a large area of the great modern forest of Thetford Chase. The attractive villages amidst the farmlands, woods and rivers are set in a countryside where history can be traced from prehistoric times but which still preserves its unique character and unspoilt natural beauty.

The main town in the district is Newmarket, world renowned for its racing activities.

Town development schemes are in progress in Mildenhall and Brandon and the continued attraction of carefully selected industries is one of the principal tasks of the authority.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
The county borough of Gateshead.
In the administrative county of Durham, the urban districts of Blaydon, Felling, Ryton and Whickham; in the rural district of Chester-le-Street, the parish of Lamesley and the parish of Birtley except the part in Sunderland district.

With regard to schools, the terms 'Grammar' and 'Secondary Modern' are not in use within the Borough. The Comprehensive schools referred to here will include those in a 2-tier system (11–14 and 14–18) and those which are for 11–18 year old pupils. There is also increasing provision of Nursery Classes attached to Infants' schools.

The Technical College has six major departments, one of which includes an Art Conservation department.

Other maintained educational establishments include a Field Studies Centre, near Hexham, Northumberland; a Teachers' Centre: 19 Youth and/or Community Centres (and a considerable number of Youth and Community Organizations).

The Authority operates a Youth Employment (Careers Guidance) Service.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,000.

Parliamentary Constituency: Carlton.

Regional Water Authority: Severn-Trent.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Notts. CC.

Agencies. The following county council function is carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Arnold UD, Carlton UD, Basford RD (except parts in districts of Ashfield, Broxtowe and Rushcliffe).

The Gedling Borough contains the whole of the Carlton Urban District, the whole of the Arnold Urban District together with certain parishes in the Basford area. The name Gedling has historical significance for this area and was referred to in the Domesday Book as 'Ghellinge' and has had a church and a manor since Saxon times.

The council maintains public offices, community centres, depots, cemeteries, public bowling greens and tennis courts, allotments and approximately 140 acres of recreation ground.

The council has approved schemes for advances for house purchase and improvement, concessionary bus fares and television licences for the elderly and physically handicapped and sale of council houses.

The council, in conjunction with the Nottinghamshire County Council, is to provide several joint-use recreation centres, two being already operational (Calverton and Carlton Forum). Facilities provided include golf course, ski slope, swimming pool, indoor and outdoor tennis courts, football and cricket pitches and dry play areas.

The council will continue Carlton's 'twin town' links with Rotenburg A.D. Fulda in West Germany.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,400.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of the Gloucester CB which ceased to exist on 1 April 1974. Gloucester is the county town of Gloucestershire and as such is an important industrial and commercial centre.

From Roman times it has been an essential link in the communications pattern of the country and before the opening of the Severn Bridge was the lowest bridging point on the River Severn. A complex pattern of strategic motorways and trunk roads now surrounds or passes near the city. It is an important rail junction, and Gloucester and Cheltenham jointly own Staverton Airport which lies between the two towns. Gloucester Docks are connected by the Gloucester-Sharpness Canal to the Bristol Channel.

Gloucester has always been a town which enjoyed a diversity of industry. Some of the old Gloucester names such as the Gloster Aircraft Company have disappeared and been replaced by national firms bringing new industries to the area. The council also provided industrial and trading estates in order to encourage a more diverse industrial structure for the city. It is now the home of one of the largest ice cream factories in the world. The thriving livestock market which was formerly held in the centre of the city has been moved to a new site on the ring road and the old site has been developed as a multi-storey car park and bus station.

Over the past four years, the council has undertaken the improvement and modernization of the city centre including two large shopping redevelopments providing servicing at first floor level and roof-top car parking. A new retail market for the city is included. An important part of these schemes has been the provision of new amenity areas which ultimately will form part of the route of a pedestrian way linking the Cathedral and other ancient buildings in the city, including the old priories of Greyfriars and Blackfriars.

In the leisure field, the council has provided a new swimming pool, a large leisure centre complex, an art gallery and has also developed a country park at Robinswood Hill. These have added greatly to the facilities for recreation, leisure and cultural activities within the city.

Several new office blocks have been built in the city and a new hospital is now open. A start has been made on a new railway station.

During the period the city was Education Authority, it rehoused many of the old schools in modern buildings and also built a college of art and technical college.

Over thirty charters have been granted to the city. The first was given by Henry I in 1155 and the last was granted on local government reorganization in 1974.

Gloucester is an historic city with much to offer the resident and visitor alike. It is also a tourist centre for the Cotswolds, the Severn Vale and the Royal Forest of Dean. Its cathedral is said to be one of the finest in Europe.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,600.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The borough comprises the area of the Gosport MB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Gosport is situated on the western side of Portsmouth Harbour and has a coastline of six miles to the Solent. It is reputed to have acquired its name as 'God's Port' in 1140, when Henry of Blois, Bishop of Winchester, took shelter from a storm in the harbour and so named it. The development of Gosport has been closely linked with the growth and requirements of the Royal Navy and this has been especially marked since the Second World War. Apart from Service establishments, there are some industries, including boat-building, electronics, radio, television and chemicals.

Its proximity to the Solent, temperate climate and clean air, make Gosport a very pleasant residential area. Gosport received a Charter of Incorporation in 1922, was extended in 1939 and has been granted Borough Status under Section 145 of the Local Government Act, 1972. The council carried out an extensive scheme of sea defence works at Lee-on-the-Solent which includes a low-level promenade along the entire length of the clifflands. Multi-storey flats and dwellings for old people have been erected in the central area of the town, severely damaged during the war, and on the water front to Portsmouth Harbour. A new Town Hall accommodating all departments, a Council Chamber and Mayoral Suite was completed in 1966 and in October 1973, a new Central Library was opened contained in a building of four floors and including a Music Library. The council owns public parks, children's playgrounds, two swimming pools (indoor and outdoor), two children's paddling pools, hot slipper and 'Sauna' baths and a model yacht lake on which national and international races are held. The council also constructed an esplanade and landing stage in Portsmouth Harbour to carry pedestrian ferry traffic between Gosport and Portsmouth and has established a yacht marina off the town quay. In 1972 the Esplanade Gardens were extended and named the Royan Gardens, Gosport being twinned with the town of Royan in Charente-Maritime, France.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,250.

Regional Water Authority: Anglian.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Norfolk CC.

Agencies: The following regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: All drainage works under Section 15 agreement.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Great Yarmouth CB, Lothingland RD (parishes of Belton, Bradwell, Burgh Castle, Fritton and Hopton-on-Sea), Blofield and Flegg RD (parishes of Ashby with Oby, Caister-on-Sea, Filby, Fleggburgh, Hemsby, Martham, Mautby, Ormesby St. Margaret with Scratby, Ormesby St. Michael, Repps with Bastwick, Rollesby, Somerton, Stokesby with Herringby, Thurne, West Caister and Winterton-on-Sea together with that part of the parish of Reedham lying north-east of a line drawn approximately north-west from or near the junction of the Rivers Waveney and Yare).

The Great Yarmouth borough has a coastal boundary of fifteen miles and extends inland for up to eight miles in an irregular shape. The coast has wide beaches of soft golden sand and much of the coastal area comprises holiday development in the form of caravan and chalet sites and holiday camps. The hinterland is mainly agricultural and embraces large tracts of open marshland in the basin of the Rivers Bure, Waveney and Yare. These rivers converge on the tidal Estuary of Breydon Water, which is a Local Nature Reserve, and connect with the Norfolk Broads.

The principal town in the district is Great Yarmouth, which is a well-known holiday resort providing extensive and varied holiday accommodation and a wide range of seaside attractions to cater for family holidays. The town has a modern shopping area, and contains a large open market, held on Wednesdays and Saturdays, offering a wide range of goods, especially fresh agricultural produce.

The Port of Great Yarmouth, previously famous for its herring fishery, has been substantially rebuilt and now serves as a major base for North Sea Gas and Oil exploration. The geographical situation of the port, being less than one hundred miles from the continent, and enjoying tidal conditions which permit access for twenty-four hours a day, has attracted increasing Roll-on/Roll-off traffic.

Great Yarmouth is a cultural centre for the area and accommodates most of the service industries. A wide range of light industrial activity, including frozen foods processing, furniture, paper pulp, electronics, engineering, boat-building and textiles is centred on the town, and is rapidly expanding. In Roman times the Yare Basin was an inlet of the sea and the remains of the two large Roman forts each side of the old estuary, at Burgh Castle and Caister-on-Sea, are still visible. The town of Great Yarmouth has charters dating from 1208, and contains a number of fine houses and other historic buildings including the 11th century parish church and the 13th century toll house.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of Grimsby CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Unlike many ports, Grimsby is not dominated by its docks and industrial areas, but happily combines all the advantages of an urban community with the attractions of both the coast and countryside. The wide, tree-lined roads leading into the town, the spacious lay-out of its residential areas, the proximity of the lovely and unspoilt Lincolnshire Wolds and the attractions of nearby seaside resorts, all combine to add to the amenities of the town.

Although principally noted for its reputation as the country's premier fishing port, Grimsby has now become one of the leading centres—probably the leading centre—in Northern Europe for the quick freezing industry, which produces all kinds of quick-frozen foods both in bulk containers and consumer-packs. This rapid expansion of the quick-freezing industry has been accompanied by the construction of several massive cold-stores which also serve to encourage increased trade through the port with the Scandinavian countries. There are large chemical factories and other industrial premises along the Humber bank, and Grimsby is now the country's main producing centre for titanium oxide. Grimsby is the hub of the industrial South Bank of Humberside, and with the establishment of a Volkswagen terminal (one of two in the whole country), many more links with the Common Market are likely to follow. The town is a sub-regional shopping and commercial centre and there is a modern shopping precinct in the top town development. Leisure activities are also well catered for, by a leisure centre of an exciting new design, containing a whole range of features exceptional in a town of this size. In the educational field, a wide range of schools and other educational establishments are under the control of the Humberside County Council. Nationally famous orchestras and choirs appear regularly in Grimsby, and many other cultural activities take place. The council owns the newly opened covered market, abattoir, omnibus station and considerable leasehold estates, and maintains several parks, woodlands and recreation grounds. Public buildings include the Town Hall, Municipal Offices, Swimming baths and a Museum. A modern Central Library and several branch libraries are under the control of Humberside County Council and provide a first class service to the reading public. Omnibus services (both within and outside the borough) are provided by the Grimsby and Cleethorpes Joint Transport Committee, and there is a regular inter-city express railway service to King's Cross. Airport facilities are available at nearby Kirmington.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,000 plus £1,000 for Annual Council and Mayor's Sunday.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough, which was granted a Royal Charter on 13 November 1973, comprises the areas of the Guildford MB and Guildford RD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Apart from the Borough itself Guildford is a rapidly developing portion of West Surrey. The beautiful rural area forming the eastern half of the borough is within the original Metropolitan Green Belt and most of the remainder has now been included in an extension to the Green Belt. Cultural and recreational facilities centred on Guildford include civic hall, museum, an art gallery and exhibition centre, public baths, open-air swimming pool, pleasure grounds and a sports centre, athletics arena and running track.

To the north of the new cathedral on Stag Hill, the University of Surrey has now been established and on the Manor Farm site nearby Guildford District General Hospital is in course of erection.

The council subsidises the Yvonne Arnaud Theatre and owns a major orchestra.

Parliamentary Constituencies (2): Richmond (part), Thirsk and Malton (part).

Regional Water Authorities: Yorkshire (part), Northumbrian (part).

Superannuation Scheme administered by the North Yorkshire CC.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Northallerton UD, Bedale RD, Croft RD (parishes of Girsby and Over Dinsdale), Easingwold RD, Northallerton RD, Stokesley RD (part), Thirsk RD (that part not in Harrogate District).

The area is predominantly rural in character and stretches some 40 miles from the county boundary of Cleveland in the north to the York boundary in the south. It includes the attractive and thriving market towns of Bedale, Easingwold, Northallerton, Thirsk and Stokesley, each providing a focal point for villages and hamlets in the rural hinterland.

Good communications both by rail and road and easy access to regional amenities make the district attractive to residents and light industry alike. Austin Reed, York Trailers and Kosset Carpets are household names to be found on factory premises recently opened in the area.

The scenery is as attractive as any in the country. The eastern fringe, represented by the Hambleton Hills from which the district takes its name, is within the North York Moors National Park; to the west the Yorkshire Dales National Park is no more than 10 miles distant.

Chairman's annual allowance: £650.

Parliamentary Constituencies (2): Hartlepool Borough; Easington (part).

Petty Sessional Division: 1.

Regional Water Authority: Northumbrian.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Cleveland CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Hartlepool CB, Stockton RD (parishes of Brierton, Claxton, Dalton Piercy, Elwick, Elwick Hall, Greatham, Hart, Newton Bewley).

First Charter granted by King John in 1201.

By the Hartlepool Order, 1966, the Borough of Hartlepool and the County Borough of West Hartlepool were, with adjacent areas of Stockton Rural District Council formed into the County Borough of Hartlepool. Further changes have come about as a result of the Local Government Act, 1972, which has placed Hartlepool into the Non-Metropolitan area of Cleveland County with the status of a borough. Areas of Stockton Rural District Council, including the villages of Dalton Piercy, Elwick, Greatham, Hart and Newton Bewley form part of the Hartlepool Borough, which has been granted a new charter to enable the district to be known as the Borough of Hartlepool, and thus preserve the present rights and privileges. The Borough will continue to include the seaside resort of Seaton Carew. The town possesses various amenities including a passenger transport undertaking, a modern swimming bath, libraries, art gallery—now with an additional extension—two museums (including a maritime museum), parks, recreation grounds and an indoor bowling centre with eight rinks.

The council is responsible for the creation of a large main shopping centre.

In the industrial field Hartlepool is excellently placed to be the spearhead in the North-east's drive towards making the most of North Sea oil discoveries. The town is within a reasonable striking distance of the North Sea oilfields, has a progressive modern outlook, plus Special Development Area status, major supply industries and fast communications by rail, sea and air.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,000.

Superannuation Scheme administered by East Sussex CC.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of the county borough of Hastings which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Hastings is a first-class health and pleasure resort on the Sussex coast and is one of the Cinque Ports. The town has shown considerable municipal enterprise and operates an entertainments undertaking which includes the White Rock Pavilion (with accommodation for 1,300) providing entertainment ranging from performances by world-renowned symphony orchestras to famous summer concert parties; public baths, a Sun Lounge, St. Clement's Caves, Hastings Castle, and beach chalets. The promenade is three miles long and is partly double-decked with municipal underground car parks holding approximately 340 vehicles. A municipal multi-storey car park for 500 cars is now open. The town welcomes a large number of conferences each year.

The Council owns Alexandra Park (100 acres), together with seven smaller gardens totalling 51 acres. White Rock Gardens contains eight excellent bowling greens, on which the famous Hastings Bowls Tournament takes place annually. There is also a new indoor bowls pavilion, a Conference Hall and excellent tennis facilities (both grass and hard courts), together with several putting greens. Hastings is also noted for its annual International Chess Congress. Education is now administered by East Sussex County Council. A post-war feature has been the development by the Council of trading estates, providing facilities for light industry in the town. As a result several well-known firms now operate factories locally.

A Town Development Scheme accommodating initially 15,000 and ultimately 18,000 persons is being implemented in conjunction with the Greater London Council. About 5,700 dwellings, half being for sale in the private sector, will be erected and the needs of an expanding community for schools, libraries, social welfare, health, community and other services will be met. Additional employment is provided for on three employment areas totalling 112 acres. Factory sites of varying sizes are now available for development. A good standard of amenity and design is intended.

The Council owns some 500 acres of public open space in a four-mile stretch eastwards from the town which is designated as the Hastings Country Park. It includes some of the finest cliff scenery in South-East England. These include Fairlight and Ecclesbourne Glens and The Firehills. In addition the delightful Sussex countryside around the town, rich in historical associations, provides much of interest to resident and visitor alike.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authority which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Havant and Waterloo UD.

The Borough, some 13,000 acres in extent, nestles comfortably between the sea and the South Downs in the south east corner of Hampshire on the border with West Sussex.

The shore line which runs from Bedhampton to Emsworth abounds the waters of Langstone and Chichester harbours and the Solent which provide some of the best sailing and sea fishing in the country in an area officially designated as one of outstanding natural beauty.

The centre of the Borough is the old town of Havant in respect of which market charters were granted by Kings John and Henry VI. In former times Havant was renowned for its parchment industry but today it has many diverse light industries.

In spite of the rapid growth of the area and the demands on land made by housing and industry the rich coastal soil still supports a substantial agricultural community and much of the district remains delightfully rural.

There are speedy rail links to London and other centres in the south and from neighbouring Portsmouth there are regular and frequent ferry and hovercraft services to the Isle of Wight. Two trunk roads pass through the district—the A3 which follows the old London to Portsmouth coach road and the A27 coast road from Folkestone to Honiton.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,800.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Buxton MB, Glossop MB, New Mills UD, Whaley Bridge UD, Chapel-en-le-Frith RD, Tintwistle RD.

It has needed an Act of Parliament and the wholesale reorganization of local government to give formal recognition to an area of north-west Derbyshire which has, in fact, been a reality for Many years—the High Peak.

Sometimes referred to also as the Dark Peak, this area is the northern part of the Peak District and gets its name from the high moors and the dark, hard gritstone which are its main features.

The High Peak extends from Buxton (Derbyshire's premier holiday resort) in the south to Glossop and Tintwistle in the north; from the Cheshire boundary in the west almost to Sheffield in the east. Within the High Peak are to be found the towns of Buxton and Glossop, the large villages of Chapel-en-le-Frith, Hayfield, New Mills and Whaley Bridge, and numerous small villages. Of more importance to the visitor perhaps, the High Peak contains some of England's finest scenery; the high brooding moors of Kinder Scout and Bleaklow, the broad sweeping valleys at Hope and Edale, the charm and beauty of the Goyt Valley, and the man-made expanse of water at Ladybower and Derwent and many other features.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,860.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following

local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Hove MB, Portslade-by-Sea UD.

Hove is a modern residential seaside town on the Sussex coast immediately adjoining Brighton. Extensive seafront lawns backed by wide avenues terminate at the western end with the industrial area surrounding the eastern arm of Shoreham harbour. Behind a narrow coastal plain the town extends onto the gentle southern slopes and into the valleys of the South Downs which afford protection from the north. There are notable elegant Regency terraces and squares in the south eastern part of the Borough. The parks and pleasure grounds are of particular interest especially a twin dialled floral clock, scented garden for the blind, and woodland walks. Sporting facilities include the King Alfred Sports Centre, and the Portslade Sports Centre, the Sussex County Cricket Ground, League football, Greyhound Stadium, two golf courses and model yachting lagoon, as well as tennis courts, bowling greens etc.

The town is administered from a recently completed modern town hall comprising public halls, meeting rooms as well as offices and car park.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Accrington MB, Church UD, Clayton-le-Moors UD, Great Harwood UD, Oswaldtwistle UD, Rishton UD, Burnley RD (parish of Altham).

The Hyndburn district is situate on the northern fringe of industrial Lancashire, with easy access to the beauty spots of the Ribble and Hodder Valleys, and to the holiday resorts of the Lancashire coast. Equally, it is within easy reach of Manchester and the mid-Lancashire conurbations and the M6 motorway. Formerly a predominantly cotton weaving area with some engineering, there is now an extensive range of industry.

The council provides a wide range of facilities and services including transport, parks and gardens, swimming baths, playing fields, recreation grounds, markets, cemeteries and crematorium.

The townships of Accrington, Church, Clayton-le-Moors, Oswaldtwistle and Rishton form the Accrington Parliamentary Constituency, while Altham West and Great Harwood form part of the Clitheroe Constituency.

Parliamentary Constituency: Ipswich.

Regional Water Authority: Anglian.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Suffolk CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of Ipswich CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Ipswich, situated on the River Orwell some 10 miles from the river mouth, is the capital town of Suffolk and is an expanding industrial and commercial centre. The Council owns industrial land which is available for leasing. The local authority has encouraged and assisted large insurance companies and brokers to locate new offices in the town in recent years.

Extensions to the port are in progress in readiness for expanded trade with the European Economic Community. The first stage of the Civic Centre complex, comprising a unique underground spiral car park, local Police Headquarters, Crown Courts and a twelve storey administration block is now complete. It is hoped that a new Civic Theatre, a Magistrates' Court and other facilities will be included in the next stage.

The former Corn Exchange is being converted to an Arts and Entertainments Centre which will be opened early in 1975. A National Tourist information office is also based in the Town Hall and various publications including a bi-monthly news sheet are published by the Council.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,400.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Refuse Disposal; Food and Drugs; Sewerage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Devizes MB, Marlborough MB, Devizes RD, Marlborough and Ramsbury RD, Pewsey RD.

The Kennet District includes some of the most attractive landscape in southern England, and a large part of it comes within the North Wessex Downs Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty.

The district extends southwards to include areas of Salisbury Plain, and to the north the Marlborough Downs. These wide tracts of upland contain a varied range of scenery and provide extensive views of the picturesque Kennet Valley and the Vale of Pewsey.

The pleasant old market towns of Devizes and Marlborough have much to offer. In addition to their historical backgrounds and an abundance of buildings of historical and architectural interest, they both provide good shopping and other facilities. Light industry offers employment in both towns.

Throughout the area there are many delightful villages, a good number of which are designated as Conservation Areas.

A full range of public services are available in all but the most isolated parts and a comprehensive road network links the whole area. The M4 motorway from London to South Wales skirts the northern part of the district, and the M5 motorway is easily reached.

Pewsey has its own railway station, and along with nearby towns gives fast train services to London and other towns.

A considerable number of first-class cultural, recreational and leisure facilities already exist or are planned, and further expansion seems likely. The Kennet and Avon Canal, Savernake Forest, The Ridgeway Long Distance Path, to mention but a few, are included among the many outdoor facilities available. The area is rich in prehistoric remains with the biggest concentration being in and around Avebury. Further Education courses at Devizes, Marlborough, Pewsey and other centres cover a wide range of interests.

Chairman's annual allowance: £500.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Northamptonshire CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Kettering MB, Burton Latimer UD, Desborough UD, Rothwell UD, Kettering RD (part).

The Borough covers the largely rural northern part of the County lying on either side of the A6. Apart from the mainly late 19th Century town of Kettering with its beautiful parish church, famous pleasure park and large new town centre shopping precinct developed solely by the Council, the Borough includes the three small and charming towns of Burton Latimer, Desborough and Rothwell each with its distructive attractions. There are twenty-three ancient stone built villages, several of which enhance the natural beauty of the Welland Valley.

The industries of the area are mainly engineering, the manufacture of clothing and footwear in the towns and agriculture and ironstone quarrying in the rural area.

Attractions in the Borough include Boughton House and Park, Wicksteed Park, Kettering and two ancient monuments, the Queen Eleanor Cross at Geddington and the Triangular Lodge at Rushton.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,750.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the areas of the Kingston upon Hull CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Kingston upon Hull is the only major city in the predominantly rural area of North Humberside. Apart from the River Humber to the south the city is surrounded by open country and in easy reach of many seaside resorts. Its extensive and well diversified shopping centre serves a large catchment area.

The city received its first charter in 1299, was incorporated in 1440 and became a county borough in 1888. Since 1914 the Chief Citizen has been styled "Lord Mayor", and this title has been retained along with city status. Also, the Council has a scheme for the election of Honorary Aldermen.

Today it ranks, not only as one of the leading seaports of the United Kingdom, with dock installations extending over some seven miles along the north bank of the River Humber, but as a major industrial centre. Caravan manufacturing is one of the new growth industries in the area. A new ferry service to Zeebrugge was opened in June 1974 to complement the existing car/passenger service to Rotterdam.

The Council is represented on the Hull and Goole Port Health Authority and on the Humber Bridge Board which is responsible for building the first bridge across the River Humber linking North and South Humberside and due for completion in 1978—it will be the longest single-span suspension bridge in the world.

The city manages the only municipally owned telephone undertaking in the country. Extensive parks and recreation grounds, landscaped areas and floral displays along main thoroughfares are attractive features of the city. The City Hall is the area's principal venue for concerts, exhibitions and conferences. The City Council is recognised as an Archive Authority under the Local Government Act 1972 and its repository has been appointed as a place of deposit for Public and Manorial records. Frans Hal's "Portrait of a Lady"—the most valuable single purchase made by a municipal art gallery in England—was acquired in 1963 for the Ferens Art Gallery. The newly-opened Town Docks Museum contains one of the most comprehensive collections of shipping and whaling material in the country. The Corporation owns a number of housing estates and a 250-acre industrial site is well on its way to full development. The Department of Industrial Development set up by the Corporation is charged with attracting new industry and trade to the city.

The historic centre of the city is known as the Old Town and includes disused docks. The policy of the Council towards this area is that it should be revitalized and a series of principles have been adopted as an alternative to comprehensive development. Among these are that the character of the Old Town should be conserved and enhanced and that the mediaeval street pattern should be kept wherever possible.

In its first major re-appraisal of policies affecting the central area of the city the council has produced a City Centre Policy Statement to replace its original development plan. In view of the present rate of change and complicated inter-relationships of the various aspects which affect the city centre the Council feels that it is unrealistic to produce further reports on traditional lines.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,250.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of 11 former local authorities:

The county boroughs of Dewsbury and Huddersfield; the boroughs of Batley and Spenborough; the urban districts of Colne Valley, Denby Dale, Heckmondwike, Holmfirth, Kirkburton, Meltham and Mirfield.

The oldest Charter of the constituent authorities in the new Council was granted to Dewsbury in 1862.

The name "Kirklees" comes from the old "Kirkeleghes" or "Church Leas", meaning Church Meadow. It is the name of the home of Sir John L. Armytage, Bart., and the place of Nunnely Priory in Charlotte Brontë's novel Shirley. Indeed, Brontë connections are known to exist with Oakwell Hall and Red House, two of the museums in the area.

The name was chosen to show the wish for a new authority, rather than one or other of the constituent authorities, and the Authority's motto "Together we serve" also indicates this.

The area includes a section of the Peak District National Park, with the Holme Moss TV aerial, and is well served for public parks in all areas. Sports centres and swimming baths are also available in most parts. The musical tradition, from choral to brass bands, is very strong.

Industry is still firmly based on the textile trade, from the rag trade centres of Batley and Dewsbury, through to the fine woollen and worsted industries around Huddersfield. Yet the area has diversified, and most industries prosper, from biscuit making to boot manufacture, from mining to mattresses, from chemicals to engineering.

Access to the area via the motorway network of the M1, M62 and M606 is easy, and links the area with the rest of the country in a short time.

Education is given a high priority, from the high academic level of the Polytechnic, through the Colleges of Technology and Arts, and the secondary schools, down to the playgroups. As in many areas the educational pattern is changing to meet new demands.

The image of the grimy North is largely dispelled by the cleaning of hundreds of buildings and the reclamation and landscaping of waste and disused land, and the almost smoke-free atmosphere. The natural beauty of the North is now there to see and enjoy and helps to make Kirklees an attractive area for industrial or commercial concerns considering relocation.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,500.

Parliamentary Constituencies (2): Teesside Redcar, Cleveland and Whitby.

Petty Sessional Divisions: 2.

Regional Water Authority: Northumbrian.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Cleveland CC.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways (maintenance, allocation, traffic management and regulation, road safety, new estate and private street works, public utilities, maintenance of bridges and subways, omnibus shelters, pedestrian crossings, street closures).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Teesside CB (wards of Coatham, Eston Grange, Kirkleatham, Ormesby, Redcar, South Bank), Guisborough UD, Loftus UD, Saltburn and Marske-by-the-Sea UD, Skelton and Brotton UD.

The Borough of Langbaurgh is a blend of countryside and industry. Within its 61,060 acres lies some of the finest countryside including 3,000 acres of the North Yorkshire Moors National Park, three fine coastal resorts (Redcar, Marske and Saltburn), an ancient market town (Guisborough), an international port (Teesport) and the vast industrial empires of I.C.I. Wilton and British Steel.

In short, Langbaurgh offers employment of all kinds, a home and ready access to some of Britain's best recreational facilities.

It is an area with a long and varied history that can be traced back to the Stone Age. The Romans also had forts and stations in the areas, and, a millennium later, many of the Borough's villages can be found as entries in the Domesday Book. By the 19th century the ironstone of Langbaurgh played a major role in the industrial revolution, making it the important port and industrial centre it is today.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,500.

Agencies. The following regional water authority function is carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Sewers and Sewage Disposal.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Leominster MB, Kington UD, Kington RD, Leominster and Wigmore RD, Tenbury RD, Weobley RD.

The district covering the northern part of Herefordshire and north-west Worcestershire is mainly agricultural in character. Famed for its Black and White architecture the area is one of outstanding natural beauty. The boundaries of the area range from Clows Top which is within 8 miles of the industrial west midlands to the Welsh border and from the Shropshire border on the north to the River Wye on the south. The market towns of Leominster, Kington and Tenbury are steeped in the historical traditions of the country and Wigmore Castle was the seat of the Mortimers and where the English Parliament in the early medieval days was held. Leominster's first Charter of Incorporation was granted by Queen Mary in 1554 and the Grange, which forms part of the offices of the authority, dates back to 1650.

Superannuation Scheme administered by East Sussex CC.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Lewes MB, Newhaven UD, Seaford UD, Chailey RD.

The new District of Lewes comprises 113 square miles of Sussex coastline, downland and wealden countryside, the geographical centre of which is the ancient county town of Lewes, prominent in Sussex annals since before the Norman Conquest.

As well as Lewes, with its Norman Castle, Assembly Rooms, offices of the East Sussex County Council and headquarters of the Sussex Police Authority, the principal towns are Newhaven, with its thriving port, and the exceptionally pleasant seaside town of Seaford.

The River Ouse winds past Lewes through the outstanding natural beauty of the Downs to the sea at Newhaven, and a number of small and attractive villages are to be found in the Ouse Valley. The principal wealden villages are Ringmer, Barcombe, Newick, Wivelsfield Green and Ditchling.

Pre-eminent among the recreational facilities are the sports ground at Lewes, which is the venue for county bowls, hockey and rugby football, the golf course, clubhouse and beach at Seaford, the sailing and cross-channel ferries at Newhaven, and the South Downs Way which crosses the district. There is also the internationally famous Opera House at Glyndebourne.

Chairman's annual allowance: £2,000.

MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL (47)

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Certain Highway maintenance.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The district comprises the areas of Lichfield MB, and Lichfield RD (that part not in Cannock Chase) which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The district includes the ancient Cathedral City of Lichfield, birthplace of Dr. Samuel Johnson, the great lexicographer, and the home of many famous people—Elias Ashmole the antiquary and herald, Joseph Addison the essayist, David Garrick the actor and Erasmus Darwin the scientist, to name but a few.

The surrounding area is mainly agricultural in character with manufacturing industry in parts. It is a rapidly growing district with good quality residential development throughout.

Cannock Chase (an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty) is near and there are excellent communications to all parts of the West Midlands.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,797.

Agencies. The following functions are carried out by the city council on an agency basis for County Council: Highways, Traffic Regulation, Transportation and Refuse Disposal: for Anglian Water Authority: Sewerage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the area of the county borough of Lincoln which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Lincoln is the County Town of the geographical county of Lincolnshire. Famous as a Cathedral City with many ancient monuments, Lincoln contains many important remains and the Lincoln Archaeological Trust is conducting extensive excavation works on 'cleared' sites which are revealing a number of important 'finds'. The first of many Royal Charters was granted in 1154, and the first surviving reference to a mayor is dated 1206. Lincoln, at the centre of an agricultural county, is now an industrial centre of considerable importance. There are two large commons (containing golf courses), three parks and many open spaces. The Art Gallery houses the famous Usher Collection, the Peter de Wint Collection and a collection of Tennyson personalia and manuscripts.

The city's water supply comes from the Anglian Regional Water Authority's pumping station at Elkesley, Notts., 22 miles from Lincoln. The Council operates an omnibus system.

Parliamentary Constituencies (2): Llanelli and Carmarthen.

Regional Water Authority: Welsh National Water Development Authority.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Dyfed CC.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

In the administrative county of Carmarthenshire:
  the boroughs of Kidwelly and Llanelli;
  the urban district of Burry Port;
  the rural district of Llanelli.

The Llanelli Borough Council administers areas of marked geographical and historical diversity. A substantial sweep of the authority's area of over 57,000 acres lies on the coast and this affords a fine expanse of unspoiled sands known as Cefn Sidan. In agreeable contrast, the inland area's softly rolling countryside is some of the most pleasant in the whole of South Wales. Llanelli has important and enduring links with the past; Kidwelly, on the western edge of the authority, was granted a borough charter as long ago as 1115, while the Duke of Lancaster established a formidable castle there which survives today, providing the authority with a popular tourist attraction. Yet modern Llanelli has been shaped predominantly by the industrial revolution, indeed such was the scale of its industrial development that by the early 20th century the town was established as Britain's major tin-plate centre. More recently, and to meet the needs of today's more complex economic system, Llanelli has been successful in attracting a wide range of new and diversified industries which should ensure the town's prosperity for many years to come.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,500.

LUTON Borough (Bedfordshire)

Pop., 166,100; RV, £27,197,061; Rate, 90p; Debt, £95,685,000; Area, 10,657 Ac.

Airport: 1; Art Gallery: 1; Baths and Pools: 3; Cemeteries: 2; Crematorium: 1; Council Houses and Flats: 11,500; Market: 1; Museum: 1; Civic Theatre: 1; Consumer Advice Centre: 1; Parks and Open Spaces: 1,331 acres; Golf Courses: 2.

Parliamentary Constituencies (2): Luton East, Luton West.

Regional Water Authority: Thames.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Bedfordshire CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Luton, one of the leading industrial towns of the south east, is world famous for its production of motor cars, trucks, ball bearings, precision instruments and hats.

Founded on the enterprise of the 19th century straw hat industry and stimulated by the industrial boom of the early 20th century, Luton is today a fast redeveloping town of change and opportunity.

Symbolizing the new Luton is the multi-million pound Luton Arndale Centre development in the town centre, already well advanced and which, when completed, will provide the largest covered shopping centre in Britain.

Luton has first class communications with the rest of the country by road, rail and air. There are two access points to the M1 on the western side of the town and Luton is linked to London—just 30 miles away—by the Bedford–St Pancras diesel service and by main line to the north. Luton Airport, owned and operated by the council, is the leading British airport for inclusive holiday tours.

Luton museum, famed for its collection of lace, is registered as a silversmith with the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths and produces lacemakers' silver bobbins. Special bobbins were produced to commemorate the silver wedding of the Queen and Prince Philip and the marriage of Princess Anne and Captain Mark Phillips.

Luton was one of the first towns in the country to set up a department of recreation and leisure. More than 1,000 acres of parks and open spaces offer a range of outdoor sports facilities and a variety of indoor sports is catered for at three major centres. Sports complexes for public use are being built into two new high schools and a regional sports centre opened in 1975. Luton opened its first municipal golf course in 1973.

Luton's modern baths centre is equipped with an indoor, outdoor and learners' pool and the town's first district swimming pool opened in October, 1973.

A fully comprehensive system of secondary education was introduced in Luton in 1966 and Luton's 35,600 schoolchildren are provided for by 53 primary schools, 13 high schools and a sixth form college.

Local places of interest include the 12th century Parish Church of St Mary, Whipsnade Zoo, Woburn Abbey and Wild Animal Kingdom and the 18th century Luton Hoo, the home of Lady Zia Wernher, which houses the renowned Wernher art collection.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of Maidstone MB, Hollingbourn RD and Maidstone RD, which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The district, which includes the County Town of Kent, covers one of the largest hop-growing areas in the country, and through it runs the River Medway. Agriculture is, naturally, its main industry, although general and light industry has a not inconsiderable foothold. The town of Maidstone is a thriving commercial and industrial centre, with fine shopping facilities and also holds one of the largest open-air markets in the south-east of England. The cluster of fine old medieval buildings by the Medway still stands, the Archbishop's stables housing the Carriage Museum.

Agencies: The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Disposal of refuse; Local sewers.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Malvern UD, Bromyard RD, Ledbury RD, Martley RD, Upton upon Severn RD.

This corner of England, formerly divided between Worcestershire and Herefordshire, is largely designated an area of outstanding natural beauty, the centre-piece of which is the Malvern Hills, with Malvern nestling on their slopes. Ledbury, Bromyard, Martley and Upton upon Severn lie in the valleys on either side. Upton is on the banks of the River Severn and is a popular holiday and boating resort; Ledbury and Bromyard are old market towns and have, in common with the rest of the new district, many old historical buildings and places of interest for the visitor. The district is largely rural in character and has many orchards and hop farms within the range of agricultural activities. On the other hand, the Council's predecessors promoted industrial estates at Malvern Link, Bromyard and Bishops Frome.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,200.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Nottinghamshire CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Mansfield MB, Mansfield Woodhouse UD, Warsop UD.

Mansfield has a rich history and there is evidence of occupation by Druids, early Britons and Romans. Since these early times it has matured through commercial and industrial growth but still remains a market town with a character all its own.

Hard red and white sandstone, hewn out of local quarries, was used to build the Houses of Parliament in Westminster and the massive viaduct that straddles Mansfield which has become a local landmark.

Together with Mansfield Woodhouse and Warsop, the District forms the heart of the north Nottinghamshire coalfield. It is, however, the gateway to the Dukeries and is the ideal centre for touring the region's attractions in the form of a series of stately homes or the haunts of Robin Hood in the surrounding Sherwood Forest.

The District is recognized as having considerable industrial importance and, together with a nearby Derbyshire town, has been fused to form the Mansfield-Alfreton Growth Zone. A railway station has been re-opened at Alfreton to serve the needs of the zone.

The centre of Mansfield itself is the subject of a multi-million pound shopping development which is expected to be completed in 1976. Planners have done their work carefully to make sure the new complex does not detract from the essential Mansfield character and the flourishing open market will stand side by side with the precinct.

The District is surrounded by agriculture and it is only a matter of minutes from town centre to countryside. The Council is anxious to improve the environment and so far schemes have been completed along the banks of the Maun and the Meden, which run through the District, turning them into pleasurable riverside walks.

The District possesses many parks and recreation grounds, swimming pools, a sauna bath, a museum, a third division football team and a sports centre among the leisure facilities for the community. It has its own professional theatre company, and a Local Arts Association ensures that culture is not ignored.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Chatham MB, Rochester MB, Strood RD (part).

The Borough of Medway has the largest population and rateable value in Kent. It comprises the old city of Rochester, the first Charter of which was granted by Richard I in 1190; the naval town of Chatham; and the larger part of the former Strood Rural District. The river Medway runs through the Borough, a tidal river enabling vessels conveying 7,500 tons of cargo and drawing 26 feet of water to reach as far as Rochester Bridge. Rochester castle and cathedral are of particular interest and there are rich Dickensian associations in the district. The rural part takes in the Isle of Grain on the Hoo peninsula, and the Grain oil refinery is one of the largest in the world. The council owns the 130-acre Allhallows-on-Sea estate which provides sites for 900 caravans and 300 chalets and attracts many thousands of holidaymakers each year.

The Borough is a thriving commercial and industrial one, and the new 9-acre fully air-conditioned Pentagon Centre at Chatham, opened in 1975, caters for shoppers from a very wide area.

The council maintains an 18-hole golf course, two pitch and putt courses, two indoor bowling greens, a concert hall seating 1,200 and two large civic dance halls. There is an indoor swimming pool at Hoo, an outdoor pool at Rochester and a large new indoor pool (forming the first part of a sub-regional sports centre) which is being provided jointly with the Gillingham Borough Council sited within Gillingham and near the boundary with the Medway. An indoor swimming pool is under construction in Strood, and a new indoor sports hall has recently been opened in Chatham.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,380.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Melton Mowbray UD, Melton and Belvoir RD.

Situated in north east Leicestershire, the area of the Borough Council comprises the busy market town of Melton Mowbray, with one of the largest cattle markets in the country, surrounded by a rural area of beautiful countryside, including the Vale of Belvoir and part of the north Leicestershire wolds. It is in the heart of the fox-hunting country and is famous for its pork pies and Stilton cheese. Its urban industries include the manufacture of animal foods, joinery for the building trade, hosiery and knitwear, and rubber thread.

The Royal Army Veterinary Corps Training Centre is situated in Melton Mowbray and comprises Equine and Remount Wings, Veterinary Hospital, Army Dog Training School, and the Army Schools of Equitation and Farriery.

The Town Estate, dating back to the sixteenth century, owns and maintains public buildings, parks and recreation grounds, and owns the rights of a street market held on Tuesdays and Saturdays. The properties are held on behalf of the inhabitants by the Feoffees and the estate is administered by the inhabitants at the Annual Town Meeting.

Parliamentary Constituency: Mid-Bedfordshire.

Regional Water Authority: Anglian.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Bedfordshire CC.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Ampthill UD, Biggleswade UD, Sandy UD, Ampthill RD, Biggleswade RD.

Mid Bedfordshire is a pleasant, predominantly rural area stretching from Buckinghamshire in the west to Cambridgeshire in the east. Geographically the district is mainly farmland with a ridge of low hills crossing the area diagonally from north-east to south-west.

Although mainly rural in character there are parts of the area which are becoming industrialized. One of the largest brickfields in the country is situated in the west and although farming and market gardening predominate in the east, it is at Sandy that a small Town Development Scheme with housing and small factory units is being undertaken in conjunction with the GLC.

The main population centres are Biggleswade, which boasts an ancient church and is mentioned in the Domesday Book as a flourishing market town, and Ampthill, a small town with great charm and many attractive buildings.

Above all, this is an area of beautiful villages, too numerous to mention individually. Most well known are Woburn, with its Stately Home and Safari Park, and Old Warden, home of the Shuttleworth Collection of vintage aeroplanes and road vehicles.

The Council's future policies are based on a position statement which has been prepared following a comprehensive review of all its current services. The implementation of this Corporate Plan is the responsibility of the Management Team which comprises the Chief Executive and the four Departmental Directors.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways including Traffic Management and Regulations; Road Safety; Maintenance of Highways; Closure, Diversion and Adoption of Highways; Goods and Services for Highway Schemes and Architectural Services; Food and Drugs Sampling; Sewerage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of Teesside CB (part) and Stokesley RD (part) which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The former County Borough of Middlesbrough was, with some other districts, incorporated with the Teesside County Borough Council in 1968. The new Council of Middlesbrough is a district within the new Cleveland County Council and roughly corresponds in population terms to the old county borough despite an increase in area of about 4,000 acres.

The major problem facing Middlesbrough is the need for urban renewal and revitalization in the inner areas, and the whole strategy of the Council is designed to this end. The Council's aim in central Middlesbrough is to enhance its role as regional centre for Cleveland, by expanding shopping, office and leisure provision. There is also a need to maintain and improve the stock of older housing around the centre, as well as to reintroduce new housing. In north Middlesbrough, a major problem is the reclamation and redevelopment of former industrial areas, once occupied by the iron and steel industry. The Council's aim is to regenerate these areas and alleviate problems in adjoining industrial and residential areas.

The Council is also promoting major new developments in the south of the Borough. At Hemlington some 3,620 dwellings are being provided by the Council and other agencies, with supporting primary schools, a local shopping centre and recreational facilities. Development should be completed by 1979.

Construction of the first houses will start this year on an even larger development at Coulby Newham, comprising some 7,500 dwellings. In addition to local facilities, a district centre and secondary schools will be provided to serve both Coulby Newham and adjoining areas. Development will continue for at least ten years.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,400.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Burgess Hill UD, Cuckfield UD, East Grinstead UD, Cuckfield RD (part).

The new district of Mid Sussex is a largely rural area of outstanding natural beauty with substantial urbanized pockets and extends from the Surrey border to the southern slopes of the South Downs. The Ouse valley, bordered by the Balcombe and Ashdown Forests, runs through the northern half of the district whilst throughout the district there are a number of villages of considerable charm and antiquity. Nearly two-thirds of the district's population live in the four towns of Burgess Hill, Cuckfield, East Grinstead and Haywards Heath. The ancient towns of East Grinstead and Cuckfield each contain within a conservation area a number of exceptionally interesting buildings of considerable age and distinction. East Grinstead is also an important market town and shopping centre for a large rural area and features two light industrial estates. The more modern town of Haywards Heath is a mainly residential area with some recent office development and a good shopping centre and is the administrative centre of the new district, whilst the equally modern town of Burgess Hill features a thriving light industrial area together with a recently completed Town Centre Scheme incorporating a shopping precinct, an open market and a civic hall.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Dorking UD, Leatherhead UD, Dorking and Horley RD (part).

The district of Mole Valley was constituted under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1972 as amended by the Horley and Charlwood Act, 1974 and combines the areas of the former Dorking and Leatherhead Urban District Councils together with part of the area formerly administered by the Dorking and Horley Rural District Council excluding the parishes of Horley, Salfords, Sidlow and Charlwood detached.

The district comprises the towns of Dorking and Leatherhead which with their associated villages and hamlets makes for an area both residential and agricultural in character and containing two of the county's notable beauty spots, Box Hill and Leith Hill.

The Council owns 2 golf courses, 13 recreation grounds with facilities for athletics, cricket, football, hockey, tennis, bowling and putting. Woodlands and open spaces total 275 acres with a further 17 acres laid out as parks and gardens. 56 acres of allotments are provided throughout the district. A covered swimming pool at Dorking and a multi-purpose recreation centre at Leatherhead have been constructed. Dorking Halls, one of the finest concert and conference centres in Surrey, is owned and managed by the Council.

Chairman's annual allowance: £2,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

In the administrative county of Monmouthshire:
 the boroughs of Abergavenny and Monmouth;
 the urban districts of Chepstow and Usk;
 the rural districts of Abergavenny, Chepstow and Monmouth;
 the rural district of Pontypool (part).

The Monmouth District is an area of great natural beauty and of considerable historic interest, stretching from the Usk Valley in the west to the Wye Valley in the east and including part of the Brecon Beacons National Park. The towns of Abergavenny, Caldicot, Chepstow, Monmouth and Usk lie within its boundaries and there are in the district some seven well-preserved castles dating mostly from the eleventh century as well as the beautiful Tintern Abbey.

With excellent communications to London and the south-west via the Severn bridge and the M4, to the Midlands and the north via the M5 and to the remainder of South Wales via the M4 in the south and the Heads of the Valleys road in the north of the district, the area is one in which there is likely to be considerable but well-controlled growth.

Chairman's annual allowance: £2,000.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of Neath MB and part of Neath RD, which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The borough of Neath has as its centre the town of Neath (with a population of about 28,000). It extends across the county of West Glamorgan between Swansea Bay and the Brecon Beacons and contains areas of great scenic beauty particularly in the Vale of Neath. It is mainly industrial in character and contains coal mines, an oil refinery and plants for the production of motor parts, aluminium, and steel products. There is a harbour on the river Neath.

Within the boundaries of the borough are to be found the remains of the castle at Neath and Neath Abbey.

Facilities are available for many sports and recreations including sailing, fishing (both sea and river) and gliding and there are two golf courses.
Piped water and sewerage is available throughout almost all the district.

Parliamentary Constituency: Newark.

Regional Water Authorities: Severn–Trent; Anglian.

Audit by District Auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Southwell RD, Newark RD, Newark MB.

The Newark district is one of contrasts. The contrast between the predominantly agricultural influence of the eastern villages, with the strong industrial mining towns of the west and north; a constrast between one of the finest town squares in the country in Newark and the stark beauty of Southwell Minster, a contribution to the district's heritage from the Normans.

The potential as a tourist's "must" will be realized in the blending together of the three authorities astride the river Trent.

As regards industrial potential the district will be seeking to balance the opportunities and amenities in the certain belief that a better service to the public will result.

A district of strong, loyal and historic past, backed by commercial and economic stability; a district with a care for its people—a district with a future!

Chairman's annual allowance: £300, plus £3,000 civic allowance.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Newcastle-under-Lyme MB, Kidsgrove UD, Newcastle-under-Lyme RD.

Pleasantly situated in the north-west of Staffordshire, Newcastle-under-Lyme in terms of population, is the second largest district in the county and administers an area of some 52,000 acres extending from the foothills of the Pennines in the north, embracing the edge of the Potteries conurbation to the east and across to the Cheshire and Shropshire borders in the west.

Although standing on the fringe of the Potteries and situated on the North Staffs. coalfield the town is bounded on three sides by attractive countryside and good agricultural land. Indeed, the traveller along the M6 will be visually unaware of the existence of so much industry within only a few miles of the motorway. Within the rural part of the district there is Madeley College and the University of Keele, founded by people from the Potteries and noted for its modern approach to University education.

North Staffs. is well known for its mining and famous for its pottery and many Newcastle people work in these industries. It is recorded that Newcastle provided various materials including many tons of nails for the building of Chester Castle and these trades are carried out to this day. Other employment includes baking and the manufacture of wires, cables, bricks, tiles and textiles.

The Borough Council maintains a vigorous housing policy and current schemes will ensure the provision of 200 new houses per annum. Improvements to the existing housing stock are estimated at over £750,000 for 1976/77. Aged persons' welfare bungalow schemes have been an important development and there are now 16 occupied schemes catering for this particular housing requirement and 2 further schemes in course of construction and other schemes at design stage. All new housing developments will incorporate design features to cater for ease of access and possible future use by the physically handicapped.

Newcastle-under-Lyme is an attractive residential area and the town provides markets and good class shopping with excellent car parking facilities. A ring road will eventually circle the town, the first stage of which has been open since 1965 and work is proceeding on the final stages.

The council owns extensive estates of housing and industrial development and a new industrial scheme is being undertaken astride the A34 trunk road in the north of the town in association with a land reclamation scheme.

Recreation facilities include an 18-hole municipal golf course and there are numerous parks, playing fields and community centres.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,650.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Lymington MB, New Forest RD, Ringwood and Fordingbridge RD (part).

The New Forest District covers 290 square miles and occupies the whole of the south-west corner of Hampshire. The New Forest itself, managed by the Forestry Commission, and 145 square miles in extent of woods, common, heath and moorland, is a considerable attraction to visitors and a national asset. Yachting facilities in the coastal areas of the district are internationally famous. Industry in the district is diverse with petrochemical industries concentrated in areas adjoining Southampton Water, and with a wide range of other industries at Lymington and Ringwood. There is extensive farming and market gardening. This district is one of the most beautiful areas of the south of England and is increasingly popular with visitors from home and abroad.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county borough of Newport.

In the administrative county of Gwent:

- the urban district of Caerleon;
- the rural district of Magor and St. Mellons except the parts to be comprised in Torfaen and Cardiff districts.

The new Newport Borough Council area combines the industrial town of Newport with its surrounding countryside of Caerleon and most of the former Magor and St. Mellons Rural District, to make up a total of 77 square miles. Naturally enough, the highest density of population is in the town of Newport with its 112,000 inhabitants out of the total encompassed in the Newport Borough.

Apart from the new links that will be established through the Borough Authority, the three former Local Government Authorities already have many common bonds. Residents of Newport have long enjoyed the pleasant countryside surrounding the town. Conversely, many of those living in that countryside work in Newport. Not that all the industry in the Newport Borough is concentrated in Newport town: at Llanwern, for instance, is the giant Spencer Steelworks which, with its 10,000 employees, is becoming the major employer in the area.

But while Newport, with its 40,000–50,000 job opportunities, its first-rate docks and continuing policy of industrial diversification, can contribute to the financial stability of the new borough, it cannot compete in other aspects with the new area in which it is amalgamated. Newport's biggest claim to antiquity may well be its twelfth-century Castle, whereas the Romans in the A.D. 70s have left their marks in the countryside surrounding the town. Thus, a new aspect of tourism in the surrounding countryside is brought to combine with the industrialization of the town.

Another important feature of the new area will be its almost unique mix of communications. Dividing the whole area almost into two equal halves, the M4 motorway gives a central spinal access to Newport Borough. This accessibility is further enhanced by the A449 trunk road (to M50/M5/M6), joining the M4 at intersection 24 (Coldra Roundabout) and thus these two roads between them give an accessibility to the whole motorway network of Great Britain.

Surrounding these two main trunk roads is a pattern of A roads, B roads and country lanes to give a wide range of choice in traversing the new borough area.

Within the town of Newport major road schemes are already well ahead to ensure that those who wish to visit it for industrial and commercial reasons or for shopping and pleasure reasons will be able to do so without the traffic jams usually associated with town traffic today.

In all, the Newport Borough combines a mixture of the modern and historical, plus facilities for both employment and leisure which, although existing before, are now combined under one Local Authority.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,850.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Northampton CB, Brixworth RD (part), Northampton RD (part), Wellingborough RD (part).

Northampton has been of considerable importance from very early days. Its first charter was granted in 1189 and during the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries it was frequently the scene of the King's Court. Today it is a manufacturing town with extensive parks and recreation grounds. The area of the local authority has been designated for a major expansion of Northampton under the New Towns Act, whereby with adequate shopping, educational, recreational and social facilities it could accommodate a population of 230,000 by 1981, being ideally situated adjacent to the M1 motorway and on a loop of the main electrified London, Birmingham, Liverpool and Manchester railway.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,400.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Sodbury RD (part), Thornbury RD (part).

The new district has been formed from the Rural District of Sodbury, excluding the parish of Alderley and the Rural District of Thornbury, excluding the parishes of Alkington, Berkeley, Ham and Stone, Hamfallow and Hinton.

Several parishes in the central and south-western parts of the district are urban in character, but a wide area is rural. The parishes of Yate, Chipping Sodbury and parts of Dodington and Westerleigh are developing as a new town with an ultimate population of some 35,000 and a new town centre is well advanced.

A new swimming bath has been built at Yate which will form the first phase of a sports and social centre for the new town.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Bedford MB, Kempston UD, Bedford RD.

Bedford historically has long been the centre for this area and is the main source of trade and employment. It is the county town of Bedfordshire, a market town and administrative centre. The growth in population has been accompanied by extensive housing development and industrial expansion on a broad scale. It is the shopping and entertainment centre for a catchment area of approximately 200,000 people. Bedford is also situated astride several trunk roads midway between Britain's two main north to south arteries—the M1 and the A1. It has good rail communications and is within easy reach of several major airports including Luton, Heathrow and Birmingham.

There is no clear geographical boundary nowadays between Bedford and Kempston but, nevertheless the latter retains its individuality and provides its own community life and local amenities as well as the location for several of the more important industries. Kempston has seen a fair amount of expansion in recent years and its services and amenities have been improved to match the increase in population. It now has its own town council which will help to preserve the local character.

The rural parishes range in population from 50 to over 3,500. Those which are closest to or within easy reach of the urban centre of Bedford and Kempston provide attractive residential accommodation for people working in the town. Others, farther out, are more rural and agricultural in character. Brick making, which is one of the region's most important industries, is established within the rural area. The tall chimneys of the brick fields are well known landmarks of rail and road travellers. The villages provide a rich tapestry of English history captured forever in their churches, cottages and more stately homes.

The common link running through the area of North Bedfordshire Borough is the River Great Ouse which winds and loops its way across the Borough. Quiet backwaters, popular fishing spots and fine riverside walks lined with gardens and meadows represent contrasting features which the river brings to the Borough and which helps to make it such an attractive area in which to live and work.

Mayor's annual allowance: £2,500.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Cromer UD, North Walsham UD, Sheringham UD, Wells-next-the-Sea UD, Erpingham RD, Smallburgh RD, Walsingham RD.

The North Norfolk District incorporates a coastline in excess of 50 miles, providing some of the most attractive scenery in the county. A considerable part of the area has been designated an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty.

The main holiday centres are Cromer, Sheringham and Wells-next-the-Sea. Inland the area is mainly agricultural in outlook and the two principal market towns, which also provide considerable employment opportunities, are North Walsham and Fakenham.

Walsingham, the village with a significant religious background, is also situated in the district, and many thousands of pilgrims still gather there each year.

Amenities available include a sports centre in Fakenham, community centres, and museums at Walsingham and Glandford, in addition to the wonderful coastline where a wide variety of amenities exist.

Chairman's annual allowance: £300.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Salop CC.

Audit by district auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Market Drayton RD, North Shropshire RD.

Situated, as its name indicates, in the north of Shropshire where it adjoins Cheshire to the north, the Welsh county of Clwyd to the west, and Staffordshire to the east, the District of North Shropshire covers approximately 262 square miles and has a population of 48,400. The towns of the district are Ellesmere, Market Drayton, Wem and Whitchurch.

The land is undulating, lying in a depression between the Welsh hills to the west, the Pennines to the east and north-east, and it is an extension of the Cheshire Plain to the north with the Severn Valley to the south. The climate, therefore, is moderate, and this combined with the highly productive soil of the area has resulted in the main industry being agriculture with its associated industries. However, a variety of trades and light industries have developed over recent years in the urban areas of the district.

Predominantly the district is rural in character with such areas of outstanding natural beauty as the Ellesmere area where there are seven quite large meres, near Weston-under-Redcastle there is Hawk lake, which is approximately ¾ mile in length, and at Grinshill there is a large picnic site.

The Shropshire Union canal passes through the district. It is flourishing as a leisure amenity because at Market Drayton and Whinall there are large pleasure boating centres.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county borough of Tynemouth.

In the administrative county of Northumberland—
  the borough of Wallsend;
  the borough of Whitley Bay;
  the urban district of Longbenton; part of the urban district of Seaton Valley (the wards of Backworth, Earsdon and Shiremoor).

Situated on the north side of the River Tyne estuary in the county of Tyne and Wear, the Borough is of some antiquity, including in its boundaries the eastern extremity of Hadrian's Wall, the Tynemouth Priory, and Pen Bal Crag at the river mouth. As part of the unbroken conurbation of Tyneside the Borough has wide and varied characteristics, embracing shipbuilding and ship repairing in the Wallsend and North Shields areas, the fishing industry at North Shields, and the popular seaside and health resorts with extensive sands and havens at Whitley Bay and Tynemouth. With modern, up-to-date road, rail, air and sea communications the basic heavy industries have been supplemented by the development of industrial trading estates where light industries have brought further employment to the area, including the New Town of Killingworth, creating a balanced and varied economy. The Borough is a dormitory area for Newcastle and, in addition to new, modern housing estate development, provides a wide variety of services and amenities, including parks, playing fields, swimming baths, sports centres, as well as libraries and study centres for further education.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,000.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Leicestershire CC.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Highways in respect of urbanized area based on Coalville.

Audit by district auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Ashby-de-la-Zouch UD, Ashby Woulds UD, Coalville UD, Ashby-de-la-Zouch RD, Castle Donington RD, Market Bosworth RD (parish of Ibstock).

North West Leicestershire extends from Measham, close to the Warwickshire border, to Castle Donington in the north and Coalville to the east. It is influenced considerably by two coalfields, and at its eastern edge it has the upland area of Charnwood Forest forming a strong physical boundary. To the south it runs into the broad agricultural plain of south west Leicestershire and in the west it is bounded by Warwickshire, Staffordshire and Derbyshire. Since at least the time of the Industrial Revolution parts of the area have been dominated by the mining activities associated with the coalfield and other early industrial activities like clay extraction, pottery and engineering.

The largest town in the area is Coalville and although as the name implies the town is an industrial one centred around coal mining, Coalville is far from a typical colliery centre. The town and its picturesque surroundings are far too pleasant and there are so many other enterprises located in Coalville that coal mining does not dominate the industrial field.

One of the recent major developments in the area has been the provision of the East Midlands Airport at Castle Donington. The airport has a runway sufficiently large to accommodate the largest aircraft. Passenger services operate daily to all parts of the Continent and twice daily to all principal airports in the British Isles. There is a separate freight complex handling and despatching freight daily.

On the historical scene there are many references worthy of note. Ashby-de-la-Zouch, immortalized in the pages of "Ivanhoe" by Sir Walter Scott, is steeped in history. Its 15th century castle built by Lord Hastings and in possession for centuries of the Earls of Huntingdon now lies in ruins. Nearby is Coleorton Hall where such great poets and artists as William Wordsworth and John Constable once stayed. In the area there lay numerous ecclesiastical establishments which now lie in ruins. Among these may be mentioned Gracedieu Priory and Charley Priory. The modern Monastery of Mount St. Bernard's is a fine example of the work of the great architect Pugin.

Educationally the district is within one of the most up to date education areas in the country. There are many facilities available in the district including the North West Leicestershire Technical College at Coalville, three Grammar schools, four High schools in addition to the numerous junior and infant schools throughout the district.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,500.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Wiltshire CC.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Food and Drugs (Composition and Labelling).

Audit by district auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Calne MB, Chippenham MB, Malmesbury MB, Calne and Chippenham RD, Cricklade and Wootton Bassett RD, Malmesbury RD.

Lying in the north-west of Wiltshire, the northern part of the district, touching on Thamesdown, is set in the richly productive grazing vale between the Marlborough Downs and the Cotswolds. Here too are the upper reaches of the River Thames flowing from its source just over the border in Gloucestershire.

This area is akin to that further south to the extent that the villages are picturesque with old houses and cottages of stone or mellowed brickwork, with dignified manor houses. Castle Combe is a typical example. Most of the churches date from medieval days and all this part of Wiltshire is indeed "green and pleasant" with many antiquities and historical places. Approximately 500 local buildings, including Lacock Abbey and its village (National Trust) and Corsham Court, are scheduled as being of historical or architectural importance.

The very old boroughs of Calne, Chippenham and Malmesbury, as well as the towns of Corsham, Cricklade and Wootton Bassett, are busy places. Service establishments, such as RAF Lyneham, and many small industries blend with the countryside—all made more accessible than hitherto by the M4 motorway.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the area of the county borough of Norwich which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Norwich, "the city of churches and gardens", has a long historic continuity, and in the seventeenth century it was, next to London, "the first English Manufacturing town"—to quote Macaulay. The first Charter granted to the city is dated 1158, and the foundation of municipal self-government was laid by a second Charter, granted by Richard I in 1194. It was created a County Borough in 1888. The title of Lord Mayor was granted to the city's chief magistrate in 1910. The Norwich Corporation Act 1933, enacted that the name of the municipal Corporation shall be the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Citizens of the City of Norwich. To the antiquary, the City offers many attractions, and it is particularly fitting that several of the most valuable and historic buildings, chiefly through the munificence of public-spirited citizens, should be the property of the city. The centre of the municipal government is the City Hall. The former seat of government is the ancient Guildhall, a fine, flint-faced building dating from the early fifteenth century. St. Andrew's and Blackfriars' Halls, formerly the Church of the Dominicans or Black Friars, are maintained by the Council, Norwich Castle, with its splendid Norman Keep, was converted by the Corporation into a Museum and art gallery, and as such was opened in 1894. Its possessions include one of the finest collections of birds in Britain and a good selection of paintings by members of the Norwich School.

The City is well provided with parks, open spaces and recreation grounds, which comprise in all 480 acres, including Mousehold Heath (190 acres), of which the Council is the conservator, 140 acres of allotments are also provided. The Council owns large corporate estates, in addition to one of the largest cattle markets in England, and provision and fish markets.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The City comprises the area of the county borough of Nottingham which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The City, which stands almost wholly on the northern bank of the River Trent, has for many centuries been a place of great historical importance. It has been granted many Royal Charters, the first known charter being that of Henry the Second in 1155, and the last of the old charters being that of William and Mary granted in 1692 confirming the "Governing Charter" granted by Henry the Sixth in 1449 making Nottingham a county of itself. The City became a County Borough under the Local Government Act 1888, and was granted City status by a charter of Queen Victoria dated 7th August 1897. As a County, Nottingham had its own Lord Lieutenant and Sheriff. The office of Mayor was created by Charter of Edward the First in 1284, and on 10th July 1928 the title and dignity of Lord Mayor was conferred by George the Fifth. Mayors and Lord Mayors have regularly been elected from 1284 to date. The former County Borough ceased to exist on 31st March 1974 following local government reorganization.

The new City Council is responsible for housing, transport, local planning, leisure service facilities, environmental health services and its large land holdings. A charter dated 1st April 1974 was granted by Her Majesty conferring the status of borough on the new Council. The status of a City has also been granted, together with the right to appoint local officers of dignity including a Lord Mayor, Deputy Lord Mayor and Sheriff.

Nottingham is fortunate in possessing corporate estates. Three are of ancient origin and yield substantial revenues from centrally situated land. The Council owns The Castle, imposingly situated on the Castle Rock, which is used as a museum and art gallery; Wollaton Hall, a magnificent Elizabethan mansion and Park used in part as a natural history and industrial museum and an open space of 453 acres; and Newstead Abbey and grounds, once the home of Lord Byron, the poet. The famous Goose Fair is held annually on three consecutive days commencing on the first Thursday in October. The Council operates a covered central market, cattle market, wholesale fruit and vegetable market, a public cold store and abattoir.

Principal industries include the manufacture of lace, hosiery, chemicals, mechanical products, tobacco, cycles and general engineering works. Other important industries are bleaching, dyeing, spinning, tanning, brewing and furniture.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Nuneaton MB, Bedworth UD.

Bedworth and Nuneaton, the two towns merged into the new Borough, lie to the north of Coventry and have developed into thriving industrial and manufacturing market towns, with extensive residential areas and excellent recreational and leisure amenities.

Development of the town centres, with new shops and offices is in progress. Ring Road and By-Pass Schemes are already partly completed, and direct access to the motorway network is provided by the MI–M6 link at the south of the district. Car parking is free. Markets are held on four occasions each week. The Council owns a central bus station, and the Nuneaton station provides very good rail services both for passengers and freight.

The Council is well served by libraries and schools, and in the south of the area a new swimming pool and squash courts have been completed adding to existing facilities, which are being rapidly expanded to meet today's leisure requirements. A Civic Hall designed in conjunction with the Department of the Environment is owned and managed by the Council. Opened in September 1973, it provides for an extensive range of entertainment and leisure activities.

Planning strategies envisage a high rate of population and economic growth for the district.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Oadby UD and Wigston UD.

The borough lies to the south of Leicester and within easy access of the M1. There has been extensive residential development since the end of the Second World War and good shopping facilities exist. The A50 and A6 pass through the district.

Industry is of a wide variety, including hosiery, shoes, plastics, electrical, general engineering, printing and food products. In the main, factories and industrial buildings have been located on industrial estates.

A moderate increase in the population of the district is envisaged in the Draft Structure Plan. Educational and cultural facilities are good; a College of Further Education was opened in Wigston in 1970. A hypermarket, Woolco, adjoins the A6 in Oadby.

The existing Council Offices in Oadby and Wigston will remain in use in the interim period.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county borough of Oldham.

In the administrative county of Lancaster, the urban districts of Chadderton, Crompton, Failsworth, Lees and Royton.

In the administrative county of Yorkshire, West Riding, the urban district of Saddleworth.

Well known as an industrial town, Oldham offers very real benefits for commercial and industrial development. The town is well situated, immediately South of the M62 motorway, which connects Oldham with the conurbations of Yorkshire and Merseyside, with the M6, M1 and A1. It is within easy access of Manchester (Ringway) Airport, and convenient for the inter-city rail links from Manchester to London and all major cities.

Over 70% of the Oldham metropolitan district is open countryside. Part of the district is included in the Peak District National Park, and there are large areas of unspoiled moorland and attractive Pennine scenery.

Many dramatic developments are under way. An olympic-standard swimming baths, luxury hotel and several important town-centre office blocks have recently opened, and work is at an advanced stage a civic centre development which will provide an impressive focal point to the town centre.

Once primarily a cotton town, Oldham has recognised the need to diversify its industrial base. Textiles now employ about 14% of the employed local labour force. Engineering is well represented in the town, employing almost 16% of employed local labour.

The new borough offers, with nearly 45,000 school places, a wide range of educational services, whilst there are three universities and a polytechnic within daily travelling distance. The Oldham College of Technology provides courses ranging from craft level to near degree standard.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,500.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of the Oswestry RD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The north-western area of Shropshire is rich in agricultural development, and with its mountains and flowing valleys is one of the most beautiful parts of the county. The borough of Oswestry is situated here, with road and rail communications to both the Midlands and the North.

The town of Oswestry is an ancient market town, standing on a natural border between the pastoral lowlands of Shropshire and the foothills of the Berwyns. Old Oswestry (Hen Dinas), the nearby hillfort, could well have been a centre for trade between peoples whose background, productions and skills differed widely. The name 'Oswestry' is an identification with the site of a battle in A.D. 642 between Penda, heathen king King of Mercia, and Oswald, Christian King of Northumbria, in which the latter, later canonized, was killed. The church and holy well bear his dedication.

In the eighth century, Wat's Dyke was constructed as a result of raids made by the Welsh against the Mercian forces. Remains of this, and Offa's Dyke, built at the end of the eighth century, can be seen in the district.

After the Norman Conquest, Roger de Montgomery became overlord for the Oswestry area and attempted to keep down the Welsh raids which had increased. The raids continued, however, right up to the fifteenth century. The castle, built by the Normans, had as its first Lord of the Manor the family of Fitzalan, whose descendants held it in fee from the Montgomerys for many generations. In 1165 Henry II used the town as a base for a punitive expedition, as did Edward I. Llewellyn of Wales burned it in 1233, and it was sacked and the church almost demolished in 1400 by Glendower. The town and countryside has suffered numerous attacks through centuries past, the last being during the Civil War of the mid-seventeenth century. The castle withstood one attack by Parliamentary forces, only to be defeated by a second, when most of the original castle walls were demolished.

The borough provides full residential facilities, and more than 3,000 Council-owned dwellings have been erected there, in addition to the extensive private residential development which already exists, and which is encouraged. Following the demise of the town as a railway centre and the closure of local coal mines, light industry is being encouraged to the area, the Council providing land suitable for industrial development. Intensive dairy farming is carried on. There are adequate primary, secondary, modern and grammar schools. Oswestry School, founded as early as 1407, is one of the oldest 'free' schools in the country.

Only one-and-a-half miles from the town there is the world-famous Robert Jones and Agnes Hunt Orthopaedic Hospital, with its new research centre.

The residents of Oswestry find that the town, with adequate car-parking, caters for their needs in modern stores and supermarkets; alternatively, for those who prefer more personal service, there are smaller family-owned establishments. The whole area is pleasant, healthy and a fine place in which to live, work and enjoy life.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the city council on an agency basis:—Refuse Disposal; Classified and Unclassified Roads; Traffic Management; Food and Drugs and Food Hygiene.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the area of the Oxford CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The municipal history of Oxford is of considerable interest, Charters beginning with one granted by Henry II, and its list of mayors, bailiffs and aldermen starting in 1272. The freemen remain to this day an active body whose rights include those of pasturage over a large tract of land known as Port Meadow, and whose interests are represented on the Council by the Sheriff. Markets and fairs have existed since 1520, and the water supply, dating from 1615, is one of the oldest in the country. There are ancient municipal charities, and until 1889, when the City became a County Borough, the Corporation occupied itself mainly with these, its considerable properties, and the water supply; the paving, lighting and sanitary duties being discharged first by Commissioners, and then from 1864 to 1889 by a local board.

In 1929 the boundaries of the City were extended to include part of the urban district of Headington, the parish of Cowley, and parts of the parishes of Iffley, Marston, Cutteslowe, Water Easton and Wolvercote, and in 1957 the boundary was again extended to include part of the parish of Littlemore. The airport was opened in 1939 and is leased to private operators.

The City possesses many beautiful and historic buildings, chief of which are, of course, the university buildings and colleges, and has open spaces and interesting surroundings.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,100.

Baths and Pools: 4 indoor, 1 outdoor; Cemeteries: 6; Council Houses and Flats: 6,076; Civic Theatre: 1; Markets: 2; Parks and Open Spaces: 380 acres.

Parliamentary Constituencies (3): Nelson and Colne, Skipton (part), Clitheroe (part).

Regional Water Authority: North West.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Lancashire CC.

Audit by district auditor.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Colne MB, Nelson MB, Barnoldswick UD, Barrowford UD, Brierfield UD, Earby UD, Trawden UD, Burnley RD (parishes of Barley-with-Wheatley Booth, Blacko, Foulridge, Goldshaw Booth, Higham-with-West-Close Booth, Old Laund Booth, Reedley Hollows and Roughlee Booth), Skipton RD (part).

The non-Metropolitan District of Pendle lies on the easterly boundary of the new county of Lancashire adjoining the North Yorkshire non-Metropolitan county and the West Yorkshire Metropolitan county and comprises an area of more than sixty-five square miles. The district takes its name from Pendle Hill, a well known geographical feature of the Pennines which is visible from most parts of the district.

The new district comprises several thriving and progressive townships where much urban renewal is being carried out and whilst textiles and associated trades were, in the nineteenth and first part of the present century, the main industry in the area, a great deal of industrial diversification has taken place. Textiles still account for a large part of local industry but other industries attracted to and expanding in the area include general and light engineering, some of which are allied to the motor and aerospace industries. Other manufacturing processes are concerned with furniture, paper, plastics, carpets, felt and printing. As local government reorganization has brought about the amalgamation of urban and rural areas, there is also a great deal of agriculture within the district.

Much of the new District Council's area is rural and includes some of the loveliest countryside in Britain, the area to the west and north comprising the beautiful Forest of Pendle (the home of the Lancashire witches) and West Craven areas and to the east lie the Pennine moorlands extending to the notable and historic Brontë country. The magnificent English Lake District and the Yorkshire Dales are easily accessible from the district.

Among the recreational and sporting amenities provided by the council are golf courses, parks and playing fields, and indoor and outdoor swimming pools. There are also keenly supported sporting, musical and cultural societies and social clubs of all kinds.

The Lancashire County Council is the local education authority and provides a comprehensive education service. Special education is available for delicate and physically handicapped children and the educationally sub-normal. The Nelson and Colne College of Further Education is a fine and well equipped modern range of buildings providing academic, vocational and non-vocational courses in a wide range of subjects for all post-sixteen students. Technical training is available both at the College and other colleges in the large adjacent townships.

The proposed north Lancashire motorway from the M6 to Colne which is programmed for commencement in 1976–77 will be dual-carriageway, built to motorway standards, and it is hoped that it will be extended to the proposed Aire Valley motorway, thus providing a low-level trans-Pennine route which will link Pendle with the country's motorway system and provide a fast direct access to Liverpool and the deep water ports on the east coast.

Agencies. The Council has a wide agency for highways purposes in respect of the part of the city within the designated area of the New Town. Also an agency, at present for three years, in respect of refuse disposal. Agency in relation to sewerage is under negotiation with the Anglian Water Authority.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Peterborough MB, Old Fletton UD, Barnack RD, Norman Cross RD (part), Peterborough RD, Thorney RD.

Peterborough has long standing ecclesiastical associations focused on a magnificent Cathedral and has always been the centre of an important agricultural area though for the past century it has been established as a railway town and in more recent years has greatly increased in industrial significance. The new city under reorganization is very much an assimilation of town and country and the comparatively built up more central part is now embraced by a wide agricultural area, some seven times greater in acreage. The new area decided upon was much influenced in the first instance by the designated area of Peterborough New Town which is wholly comprised within the new city though in extent is only about one-fifth of it. A vigorous expansion programme is being undertaken under the auspices of the Peterborough Development Corporation and much stress has been laid on the partnership aspect of the enterprise with the City Council and the County Council. The projection—allowing for natural growth—is for nearly another 100,000 population by 1985.
